Reds Told We Won't Leave Berlin

Ex-Convict Confesses Bardwell Girl Slaying

Janitor With Sex Crime Record Also Admits Killing Baltimore Child

The last pieces of a jig-saw puzzle of murder in two cities fell into place yesterday when a Baltimore janitor admitted the slaying here on June 27 of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell.

Earlier, the janitor, Eugene H. James, 31, who has a criminal sex record and who was paroled last December, had been charged by Baltimore police with the murder of Marsha Brill, also 11, in Baltimore Tuesday.

Washington detectives questioned James in Baltimore for four hours Thursday night and Friday morning before he finally admitted he had killed the Bardwell girl with a butcher knife in a wooded section of Rock Creek Park.

No Show of Emotion

When he did break, he poured forth all the details of the grim slaying with no show of emotion.

He said he had come upon Carol Bardwell suddenly in the park and that he was seized with an impulse to kill. He said he slashed her throat twice with the knife, once on each side.

Announcement that James had confessed the Bardwell murder was made here yesterday in a joint statement by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, and Capt. Mark Raspberry, head of the park police.

Washington detectives began questioning James about the murder of the Bardwell girl at 9 p. m. Thursday and by 1 a. m. had obtained from him an admission that he was the girl's killer.

The janitor narrated in detail his actions on Sunday, June 27, the day of Carol's murder.

He said he had attended a 6 a. m. mass at St. Ambrose Church in Baltimore. After breakfasting on a cup of coffee, he said he went to the Pennsylvania Railroad freight yards and hopped into a gondola car.

"I just had an impulse to take a little trip," police quoted him.

James said that after arriving in the freight yards here he did some sightseeing. He visited the Navy Yard, then came downtown and viewed the Justice Department Building and the White House.

Wanted to See "Gorillas"

According to police, the janitor then decided he "wanted to see the gorillas" at the Zoo. Actually there are no gorillas at the Zoo here. James said he asked several passersby near the White House if there were gorillas at the Zoo. Nobody seemed to know, so he obtained directions on how to reach the Zoo and went there.

James told detectives he watched the animals at the Zoo for a time and then wandered off to a wooded section of the park where he was attracted by swans floating on a pond.

He said he sat and watched the swans in rapt attention for about two hours.

Then, he continued, he resumed his walk through the park.

Suddenly, he said, Carol Bardwell, "loomed up" in front of him. He said he first saw her bicycle. It left a clear image in his mind,

Body of Worker Sucked Into Earth Finally Recovered

Chelsea, Mass., July 9 (U.P.).—The body of Angelo Corsino was recovered today—10 weeks after the 33-year-old water department laborer was swallowed by the earth in the middle of a downtown street.

Workmen who have searched since May 1 found his body in quicksand 35 feet beneath the earth's surface. The discovery ended a $100,000 subterranean search.

Corsino vanished when a crevice opened beneath his feet as he was digging at the bottom of a 5-foot trench. An immediate search was undertaken, but workmen ran into quicksand and repeated caveins, even after a huge cofferdam and wooden and steel sheathings were driven into the earth.

Trapeze Artist Falls 110 Ft. as 15,000 Watch

Palisades, N. J., July 9 (U.P.).—A pretty 19-year-old trapeze artist fell 110 feet to the ground today while 15,000 onlookers thought it was only a trick.

Valentine Davie, performing at Palisades Amusement Park, had just made a fake fall. Spectators were horrified. Then the real fall came, and many onlookers believed it only another part of the act.

Miss Davie suffered a broken back and two broken legs.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THE PRESIDENT (OF COLUMBIA) IS HAPPY—While Democrats in Philadelphia read his "final and complete" refusal to accept a presidential nomination, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower beamed contentedly—indicating happiness in his present presidency—during a reception yesterday at Columbia University. "Ike" wears robes of office as the university's president

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—President Truman's first ballot nomination seemed assured tonight.

It was made almost inevitable by a third, last and loudest "no" from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"I would refuse to accept the nomination under any terms, conditions or promises," the General told Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) in a telegram which the Senator released. He asked Pepper not to nominate him.

That ended the Eisenhower "draft."

Senator Pepper was the first to admit it. He said he would comply with the General's request. In a telegram to Eisenhower, he stated he would "reluctantly bow to the determination impelled by your deep political conviction." At a press conference later, Pepper said he had not decided on any other choice. He thought Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas would make a "great President" and would support him if Douglas is nominated. He also would support President Truman if Mr. Truman is nominated.

Jacob M. Arvey, Chicago Democratic leader, one of the foremost "draft - Eisenhower," advocates, joined with Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, who has favored Justice Douglas, in a statement supporting Truman. They declared:

"We intend to vote in the convention for the nomination of President Truman. We are now convinced that General Eisenhower is unavailable for a draft, and that he would not permit his name to go before the electorate."

Senator J. J. Sparkman, (D., Ala.), another "draft-Eisenhower" Democrat also accepted the General's newest "no" as final. He sent a telegram to Senator Pepper agreeing that the Eisenhower boom finally was "nailed down," and urging the party to draft the best man for the party. He offered Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.); former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), Secretary of State George Marshall, or Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson as possibilities. His "nominations" were not being taken seriously.

Democratic Platformers Go Into High

By Robert C. Albright

Philadelphia, July 9.—The Democratic resolutions committee tonight closed platform hearings, and named a five-man subcommittee to shape the planks to fit the Truman record.

The drafting job, which for three days has torn the larger 18-man group, was simplified by developments removing the last remaining doubt that Truman will be the nominee.

In the light of that certainty, even the tangle over civil rights began to clear up.

Like Stand in 1944

With the President's strong stand for civil rights undisputed, the group may now proceed to draw a plank along the general lines of the 1944 stand which failed to detail specific measures.

A key member of the group pointed out that Mr. Truman already has interpreted the 1944 plank as embracing every point in the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights. His own position isn't subject to successful challenge, this informant argued.

Aubrey Williams Turns Up

There was a civil rights explosion at the hearing late in the day when Aubrey Williams, former National Youth administrator and now publishing a farm paper at Montgomery, Ala., told the committee the party would not lose Southern voters by supporting Mr. Truman's proposals.

Former Gov. Chauncey Sparks retorted that Williams represented "about 1 per cent of the intelligent citizens of Alabama." Williams insisted 25 per cent of the State's

Arabs Kill 325 as New Truce Fails

Palestine Warfare Renewed as Plea By Mediator for Peace Is Ignored

Cairo, July 9 (AP).—Arabs reported tonight they had killed 325 Jewish fighters during the first day of renewed Palestine warfare even as the United Nations mediator was pleading for a new 10-day truce.

Count Folke Bernadotte, the mediator, said in Rhodes after a meeting with King Abdullah in Amman, Trans-Jordan, that he had asked both sides to stop fighting for 10 days, beginning at 8 a. m. (EDT), Saturday.

The Swedish count's appeal was made on an urgent basis—but neither the Arabs nor the Jews showed any signs of agreeing. An Israeli spokesman said in Tel Aviv no action would be taken tonight because of the Jewish Sabbath.

Bernadotte will fly Saturday to Lake Success to place the whole situation before the United Nations Security Council.

The Egyptian Defense Ministry issued a communique here tonight saying 325 Zionist soldiers had been killed in military operations undertaken by the Egyptian army, Saudi Arabian troops and Sudanese volunteers.

Attacks were launched, the communique said, on points occupied by the Jews in southern Palestine during the truce period, which ended at 2 a. m. (EDT) today. These points were recaptured, the communique said. It added that Egyptian planes raided Aquir airport and Tel Aviv harbor. Aquir is 15 miles southeast of Tel Aviv.

Other developments of the day included:

1. Bombs dropped from a Spitfire on the Israeli capital of Tel Aviv killed two and wounded 10 or more persons. Haifa had its first air raid alarm since World War II, but no bombs were reported.

2. Jewish mortars opened up on the Arab-held Old City of Jerusalem. The heavy guns of the Arab Legion withheld answering fire, while Legionnaires deployed toward the Jewish-held modern section of the Holy City.

3. In Washington, Secretary of State Marshall indicated the United States Government blames the Arabs for renewing the fighting. But Marshall left to the Security Council any finding of guilt. He also ruled out for the present any idea that the United States might lift its embargo on shipping arms as a means of helping Israel.

U. S. Record Grain Crop Near Harvest

Farm Production Of 4571 Million Bushels of Wheat And Corn Forecast

America's fertile farms are about to produce the greatest grain crop in history.

The Government Crop Reporting Board yesterday forecast a wheat crop of 1242 million bushels, second in size only to last year's all-time record of 1364 million.

But the corn crop, which last year was only 2400 million bushels, is expected to yield a record-breaking 3329 million this year.

Together the two main grain crops total 4571 million bushels. The highest previous combined yield of corn and wheat was 4403 million two years ago. At that time experts freely predicted it wouldn't be equaled in years.

Two interesting developments came with the issuance of the amazing estimate:

1. Recently appointed Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan declared: "That report should make red faces among the Republican members of Congress who killed the International Wheat Agreement."

(The International Wheat Agreement, which would have guaranteed this country from $1.50 to $2 a bushel on exports of at least 185 million bushels of wheat next year, with slightly lower guarantees for similar amounts for five years, was not approved by Congress. Great Britain, one of the chief importing signatories to the agreement, withdrew from the agreement Thursday.)

Brannan said that without the agreement, the "future of our foreign market is uncertain." He added:

"Thus, we are now faced, for example, with the question of whether we can continue our present high level of wheat production or must reduce the wheat production goal for next year.

Five-Year Market Guarantee

"The International Wheat Agreement, if put into effect, would have guaranteed us a market in the participating countries of 185 million bushels of wheat during each of the next five years at a fair export price.

"This, in addition to our exports to occupied zones and other nonparticipating areas, would have provided as large an export market as we would expect to need."

Grain experts expect the optimistic report to have an immediate effect upon the grain market. Wheat already is nearing the Government price support level of $2 a bushel. Agriculture officials expect millions of bushels to be offered for Government loan within a short period.

The Significant Paragraph In U. S. Note to Soviet Union

A striking paragraph in the United States' note to Russia on the blockade of Berlin reads:

"In order that there should be no misunderstanding whatsoever on this point, the United States Government categorically asserts that it is in occupation of its sector in Berlin with free access thereto as a matter of established right deriving from the defeat and surrender of Germany and confirmed by formal agreements among the principal Allies. It further declares that it will not be induced by threats, pressures or other actions to abandon these rights. It is hoped that the Soviet government entertains no doubts whatsoever on this point."

Tito Angered By Hungary, Diplomat Says

Treatment of Slavs Reportedly Brings Protest From Marshal

Budapest, Hungary, July 9 (AP).—A diplomatic source said today Yugoslavia has protested to Hungary against alleged pressure on the Yugoslav minority in Hungary.

A note yesterday was said to have accused Hungary of trying to induce Yugoslavs in this country to desert Premier Marshal Tito.

The Communist Information Bureau recently accused Tito of leaving the party line, being hateful toward Russia and conniving with the West.

Efforts of Hungarian Communists to induce Yugoslavs in Hungary to condemn Tito have been only partly successful. Only two minor organizations of Yugoslavs in Hungary have supported the Cominform attack.

The diplomatic informant said police have released Edward Kargagie and Milan Tomic, leading members of the Yugoslav "Democrats" in Hungary. They were detained Wednesday.

Europe's Communists Line Up to Battle Tito

Paris, July 9 (NYHT)—The Communist parties of Europe, led by the Soviet Union, are closing their ranks for a "battle" with Marshal Tito and his followers in Yugoslavia, according to an address yesterday to the central committee of the French Communist Party.

Etienne Fajon, mouthpiece of the Cominform in France, made it clear that, even if there has not been a change in the party line since the organizational meeting of the Cominform in Poland last September, there has been a change of emphasis in two important respects:

1. The Soviet Union is the dominating power in international Communist affairs and this leadership must be acknowledged more frequently and with greater determination.

2. The Cominform or international Communist front is the one hope of the entire movement and its rules must be obeyed.

It was specifically Marshal Tito's challenge of these two points of view which put him in the "enemy" camp, according to Fajon. He said the last Cominform meeting took place in Bucharest on June 10 and not "in the latter part of June" as the Cominform communique announced.

Eastern Roads Get 17 Pct. Fare Rise

New 17 per cent average increases in railroad passenger fares in the East were authorized yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is estimated that the increases will produce some 61 million dollars more revenue annually.

A Pennsylvania Railroad official said the roads have chosen July 19 as the date for the fare boost.

Reserves Coy, Army Weighs Officer Draft

Lack of Volunteers Poses Problem for New Draft Force

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Officers to lead the new 837,000-man Army, as well as the men to bring it up to strength, eventually may have to be drafted, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Efforts to get these officers by calling for volunteers from the reserves have failed miserably. Reserve officers, under present laws, cannot be ordered to active duty beyond 15 days without their consent.

The only alternative, according to Army officials, appears to be an appeal to the next Congress for legislation empowering the Army to place on extended active duty whatever officers it needs.

Army Relaxes Requirements

In its desperation the Army yesterday relaxed some of its requirements for reserve officers seeking active duty, especially the stringent age-in-grade rule. Now it will take field officers, otherwise qualified, who can complete their term of active duty before reaching 60. It will take company grade officers (captains and lieutenants) who can complete their terms of active duty before reaching 50.

To lead the new Army, at least 20,000 company grade officers will be needed, in addition to those already on duty. On top of that, about 10,000 officers must be placed on active duty each year to replace those lost through various causes, chiefly return to civil life.

Recent efforts to get volunteers from the nearly 300,000 officers listed as reserves revealed only 21,000 company grade officers from whom leaders might be selected. And these will by no means produce even 21,000 of the 30,000 needed, for these reasons:

1. At least 5000 of the 21,000 already are known to be unacceptable for various reasons.

2. The 21,000 in question merely indicated an interest in extended active duty. They did not flatly volunteer, and a number of them undoubtedly will back away when confronted with the dotted line.

3. They represent all arms and services, some of which need many officers and some need very few. There will be surplus officers in some categories who cannot be used, while acute shortages exist in others.

270,000 Are Questioned

The Army recently sent questionnaires by registered mail to 270,000 reserve officers on their rolls. It now has compiled some results, preliminary, tentative and approximate, but nevertheless disheartening.

These results show that 6000 reserve officers could not even be located, and 60,000 did not bother to reply after receipting for their registered letters. Some 68,000 said they would like to retain their reserve commissions, but take no active part in the reserve program.

The remaining 136,000 expressed

2 Officials Criticized

Unsanitary Slum Conditions In Alexandria Scored by Jury

An Alexandria grand jury yesterday scored "unsanitary" and overcrowded slum conditions in some parts of the city, and criticized lax city enforcement of the sanitary code.

Jury recommendations—including criticism of two city officials—were made public yesterday in an eight-point statement handed up to Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls.

Also urged in the report was a Civil and Police Court crackdown on chronic drunks and vagrants.

The grand jury's views on Alexandria's health and sanitation followed the launching of a Virginia State Board of Health investigation of the city health department June 30.

The survey, requested by the city council, came after the Alexandria League of Women Voters disclosed existence of widespread unsanitary conditons in the city and charged serious shortcomings in the local health program.

In its swing at unsanitary, substandard housing conditions, the jury cited two examples—and jury foreman Arthur F. Campbell said there were "quite a few around town like them."

The jury said "about six families" lived in two garages at 526 and 528 N. Alfred st. with "no water, toilets, or lights."

Waste from the families is being placed in a bucket and "thrown down a nearby sewer," jury members told The Washington Post.

Also mentioned in the jury report was a frame rooming house on the northeast corner of Henry and Oronoco sts. in which 12 families were said to be living "without plumbing," and using sanitary arrangements similar to those in the garages.

To eliminate such conditions, the jury said, the city should for-

Note Warns Pressure And Threats Will Fail

Russian Blockade Called 'Intolerable;' Marshall Demands That Soviet Lift It

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United States "will not be induced by threats, pressure or other actions to abandon" its right and duty to remain in Berlin, and it hopes "the Soviet government entertains no doubts whatsoever on this point."

This is what the United States told Russia in a strong note delivered Tuesday to Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

In the note, made public yesterday, Secretary of State Marshall declared this country is "obliged to insist that in accordance with existing agreements the arrangements for the movement of freight and passenger traffic between the western zones and Berlin be fully restored."

British, French Notes Released

Similar notes, forwarded to Moscow by the British and French governments, also were released yesterday.

Marshall declared that:

1. This country is willing to negotiate with the three other nations occupying Berlin any question in dispute as to the administration of the city. But, he said, it will not do so until the Russian blockade of the city is lifted.

He added "that duress should not be invoked as a method of attempting to dispose of any disagreements."

2. This country considers the blockade a "clear violation of existing agreements."

3. The United States would never have withdrawn its troops at the end of hostilities from Saxony and Thuringia, parts of the present Russian occupied zone, had there been any question as to its rights of free access to Berlin.

4. Commitments "entered into in good faith by the zone commanders and subsequently confirmed by the Allied Control Authority" guarantee this country, Great Britain and France free access to Berlin.

5. This country shares with Great Britain and France the responsibility "undertaken at Soviet request" for the physical wellbeing of 2,400,000 persons in the western sectors of Berlin. The note charged that recent Soviet restrictions have operated to prevent us from fulfilling that responsibility.

Calls Blockade "Intolerable"

"It is intolerable," the note says, "that any one of the occupying authorities should attempt to impose a blockade upon the people of Berlin."

Marshall went into the details of

Arlington Dump Gas Explosion Shatters Windows

A gas explosion shook Arlington County dump about 6:40 o'clock yesterday, shattering windows in nearby Beverly Plaza apartments and sending billows of heavy black smoke over the area.

The entire dump, covering a wide area at Jefferson Davis hwy. and S. Glebe rd., was also ignited. Smoke was visible all over the county and in downtown Washington.

Fire Chief A. C. Sheffel said the explosion was caused by accumulated gas in the dump. He ordered one piece of fire apparatus to stand by in case of an emergency, but said no attempt would be made to extinguish the blaze.

Tin cans were catapulted for considerable distances from the dump, according to eyewitnesses.

Soviet Eases Curb On Auto Traffic

Berlin, (Saturday) July 10 (AP).—The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN said last night the Russians would permit Allied automobile traffic to proceed to and from Berlin if the vehicles carry special travel permits issued by Soviet authorities.

This would amount to easing the current highway blockade for traffic moving from the west into Berlin, but would place a new restriction on Allied automobiles departing for the west.

The report was issued only a short time before the Western Allies made public three notes calling on Russia to lift the 21-day land blockade which has forced them to supply western Berlin by air.

Tightens Westbound Traffic

Allied highway traffic en route to Berlin has been stopped at the Helmstedt border point by Russian authorities since June 18 when a currency reform was decreed for western Germany. The highway through Helmstedt is the lone authorized road through the Russian occupation zone to the German capital.

Allied motor traffic leaving Berlin for western Germany previously was allowed to proceed without special permits. In this sense the new Rusisan order represents a tightening of travel restrictions.

An American official last night described as "a lot of hooey" Russian claims that repair work forced them to close the lone railway line to Berlin from the west.

"There is nothing at all wrong with the line," this official added.

No Repairs Crew Called Out

They said the Russians have not even brought out repair crews.

It was the first time the Americans and British had directly challenged the Russiains to show that the three-weeks land blockade was not a political move to squeeze the western powers out of Berlin.

The Russians, meanwhile, blamed repairs to a lock for a holdup of barge traffic on the waterway system from western Germany to blockaded Berlin.

Alternative Water Route

The British said they would pursue the waterway question with the Russians. They said the Russian letter did not refer to the fact that a suitable alternative water route exists and that barges going downstream from Berlin have passed through the checkpoint.

Roaring on to Berlin despite the first fatal crash costing three American lives, the U. S. Air Force set a new record for the food and coal lift. It flew 1130 tons in 241 flights in a 24-hour period. The previous high was 1001 tons, two days ago.

Board to Investigate Crash of Transport

Koenigstein, Germany, July 9 (U.P.).—The United States Air Force named a board of officers today to investigate last night's crash of a C-47 transport plane in which three persons were killed.

The C-47 was flying supplies into Berlin when it struck Steinkopf Mountain near Frankfurt. It was the first casualty of the airlift service which has been supplying Berlin with food since the Russians began their land blockade of the city June 19.

Called 'Primitive'

British Plan For Colonies Is Criticized

London, July 9 (AP).—An all-party parliamentary investigation committee reported today it could find no "coherent strategy of economic planning" in Britain's program for developing her colonial empire.

The report said large portions of appropriations for colonial welfare and development have gone unspent since the war, but in the colonies, "techniques and tools are primitive hygiene deplorable, and conditions too frequently accepted as inevitable when knowledge and right tools could improve them."

The committee, formed to study expenditure and results of the development program, urged that colonial nationals "be taken into full partnership in achieving a common goal."

"It must be made plain that the advantage of the colonial peoples is the paramount objective," it said.

A parliamentary act of 1945 set up a 10-year program to develop colonial resources and improve the welfare of the colonial peoples. It set aside 120 million pounds ($480,000,000) to pay for it.

Only 8,872,966 pounds ($35,491,864) was spent in the two years ended last March.

The committee recommended "an early investigation . . . into additional financial provision likely to be required to complete existing schemes and into the need for extending the 10-year period originally contemplated."

ILO to Seek Guaranteed Weekly Wage

San Francisco, July 9 (AP).—The International Labor Organization today initiated action to discuss the guaranteed wage at a future conference.

Overriding the opposition of employers' delegates, the 31st annual conference voted to ask the governing body to consider placing the subject on an early conference agenda. The final vote was 77 to 29.

The resolution, reported out by the committee on wages, deals with the principle of the guaranteed weekly wage and not with particular methods of application.

Three new conventions or treaties, one recommendation and three resolutions were given final approval by roll call votes today. The 58 ILO member nations must consider ratifying the treaties. The measures approved were:

Treaty concerning freedom of association and protection of the right to organize: 127 to 0, with 11 abstentions.

Treaty concerning organization of national public employment services: 129 to 0, with 7 abstentions.

Recommendation on the organization of such employment services: 102 to 24, with 4 abstentions.

Treaty concerning night work of women in industry, revision of an earlier treaty: 120 to 2, with abstentions.

Resolution converning placing before the next conference the question of labor clauses in public contracts: 103 to 0, with 25 abstentions.

Resolution to place on the next conference agenda the question of protection of wages: 124 to 0, no abstentions.

Resolution to place the general subject of wages on the 1949 agenda: 123 to 1, no abstentions. Discussion of this subject was not completed at the present session.

The approved treaties now will be submitted to the member nations for ratification.

The conference concludes its sessions tomorrow.

Jewish Board Gets Navy Award for War Services

The National Jewish Welfare board received a certificate of achievement recently "in greatful acknowledgement of exceptional cooperation and outstanding services rendered to the medical department of the Navy during the period of World War II."

Army Weighs Officer Draft

willingness to participate in a reserve program of weekly armory drills and summer camps, but of those only the 21,000 already mentioned indicated willingness to consider extended active duty of the sort the Army needs to train and lead its expected draftees.

Outside of the Officers Reserve Corps, sources of new officers are insignificant and, even so, do not produce the trained, battlewise officers needed. There is a trickle, of course, from the college Reserve Officers Training Corps. And the Army has an Officer Candidate School in operation.

Only 900 Candidates a Year

This OCS, however, can admit only 900 candidates a year and it has consistently experienced difficulty in finding sufficient qualified candidates to maintain even that rate of admissions. And its graduates are no more experienced in leadership and training than the young second lieutenants emerging annually from the ROTC.

Officers here inevitably compare the present situation with that in 1940, when a similar expansion was in progress and reserve officers rushed eagerly to the colors. Eight years ago, jobs were hard to find and even a temporary Army career was better than pumping gasoline at a filling station or mowing lawns.

Now there are plenty of jobs and pay is good. And, in addition, the young reservist now does not have the statutory guarantee of his job he had then. Reemployment rights included in the recently enacted draft act do not apply to reserve officers accepting extended active duty.

Under that law it is expected that at least 230,000 men 19 through 25 will be drafted into the Army by the end of 1949 for 21 months of service. In addition, the Army is authorized to enlist 161,000 18-year-olds for 12 months' training in the continental United States.

To officer these new troops and train the youngsters, the Army wants officers with World War II experience, especially in combat. As Brig. Gen. Wendell Westover, executive for Reserve and ROTC affairs, said, the Army needs leaders with actual experience, "not films on military courtesy."

Those leaders are now in the reserve pool of some 200,000 company grade officers, only 10 per cent of whom will even consider extended active duty.

Voice of U. S. Programs Hit

The State Department charged last night that the "dictatorship" in Hungary apparently is conducting a "systematic campaign to frighten the people of Hungary" from listening to the Voice of America radio programs.

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said in a prepared statement that "these repressive tactics by the present Hungarian government to protect its dictatorship by keeping the people in ignorance and insulating them from the outside world, is another indication that totalitarian rule is being applied there against the popular will."

He said the present Hungarian leaders plainly show they fear they can continue in power only by denying to their people freedom of information to an increasing degree.

Allen said the measures taken to frighten the Hungarian people from listening to the voice radio program have not yet taken the form of legal or police restrictions. But they take the form of arrest of persons on charges of "inciting against Hungarian democracy."

As one of the evidences of guilt, Hungarian police have cited the fact that persons arrested have listened to the Voice of America radio programs, he said.

Sharp Note Sent Moscow

the agreement on the four-power control of Berlin. He said it was drafted on a basis of friendly cooperation which this Government "honestly desires to continue to pursue."

"These agreements implied the right of free access to Berlin," he said bluntly. "This right has long been confirmed by usage."

The agreement was set out specifically in a message from President Truman to Premier Josef Stalin on June 14, 1945, Marshall said. Mr. Truman agreed to withdrawing American forces from what later became the Russian zone, provided satisfactory arrangements were concluded between the military commanders of Russia and the United States for free access to Berlin.

The only alteration in the plan suggested by Stalin, he recalled, was a change in the date of withdrawing the troops.

He also recalled that similar correspondence took place between Stalin and the then British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Because of this, he said, this country's rights in Berlin are equal to those of the Soviet Union. "It is impossible to assert the latter and deny the former," Marshall concluded. Berlin, he insisted, is an international zone of occupation, and not a part of the Soviet zone.

French Suggest Big 4 Talks

The French note declared France is "in no way disposed to abandon its rights" in Berlin, and "will not give way before menace or pressure."

The French suggested four-power discussions on Berlin, provided they are limited to local levels at the former German capital and to the issues at stake in Berlin.

The French hinted they might call the Berlin situation before the United Nations if the Soviet Union persisted in the Berlin blockade. The note said the blockade is a violation of international accord and had brought about a "serious international situation."

It is understood here that the United States is prepared, if necessary, to take the situation to the U. N. probably under Article 33, which covers disputes "likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security."

French Cabinet Called In Finance Strike

Paris, July 9 (U.P.).—The cabinet was summoned to a special session tonight to seek a way to end the nation-wide strike of 60,000 Finance Ministry employes.

The workers struck yesterday for a general pay reclassification. The stoppage closed the main office of the Ministry of Finance and its banks and tax collecting offices. Customs and tobacco workers also walked out.

Text of U. S. Note to Russia on Blockade of Berlin

Text of the United States note on the Berlin blockade handed to Soviet Ambassador Alexander Panyushkin by Secretary of State George C. Marshall:

THE United States Government wishes to call to the attention of the Soviet government the extremely serious international situation which has been brought about by the actions of the Soviet government in imposing restrictive measures on transport which amount now to a blockade against the sectors in Berlin occupied by the United States, United Kingdom and France. The United States regards these measures of blockade as a clear violation of existing agreements concerning the administration of Berlin by the four occupying powers.

The rights of the United States as a joint occupying power in Berlin derived from the total defeat and unconditional surrender of Germany. The international agreements undertaken in connection therewith by the Governments of the United States, United Kingdom, France and the Soviet Union defined the zones in Germany and the sectors in Berlin which are occupied by these powers. They established the quadripartite control of Berlin on a basis of friendly cooperation which the Government of the United States earnestly desires to continue to pursue.

These agreements implied the right of free access to Berlin. This right has long been confirmed by usage. It was directly specified in a message sent by President Truman to Premier Stalin on June 14, 1945, which agreed to the withdrawal of United States forces to the zonal boundaries, provided satisfactory arrangements could be entered into between the military commanders, which would give access, by rail, road and air to United States forces in Berlin.

Stalin replied on June 16 suggesting a change in date but no other alteration in the plan proposed by the President. Premier Stalin then gave assurances that all necessary measures would be taken in accordance with the plan. Correspondence in a similar sense took place between Premier Stalin and Mr. Churchill. In accordance with this understanding, the United States, whose armies had penetrated deep into Saxony and Thuringia, parts of the Soviet zone, withdrew its forces to its own area of occupation in Germany and took up its position in its own sector in Berlin.

Thereupon the agreements in regard to the occupation of Germany and Berlin went into effect. The United States would not have so withdrawn its troops from a large area now occupied by the Soviet Union had there been any doubt whatsoever about observance of its agreed right of free access to its sector of Berlin. The right of the United States to its position in Berlin thus stems from precisely the same source as the right of the Soviet Union. It is impossible to assert the latter and deny the former.

IT CLEARLY results from these undertakings that Berlin is not a part of the Soviet zone, but is an international zone of occupation. Commitments entered into in good faith by the zone commanders and subsequently confirmed by the Allied Control Authority, as well as practices sanctioned by usage, guarantee the United States together with other powers, free access to Berlin for the purpose of fulfilling its responsibilities as an occupying power. The facts are plain. Their meaning is clear. Any other interpretation would offend all the rules of comity and reason.

In order that there should be no misunderstanding whatsoever on this point, the United States Government categorically asserts that it is in occupation of its sector in Berlin with free access thereto as a matter of established right deriving from the defeat and surrender of Germany and confirmed by formal agreements along the principal Allies. It further declares that it will not be induced by threats, pressures or other action to abandon these rights. It is hoped that the Soviet government entertains no doubts whatsoever on this point.

This Government now shares with the governments of France and the United Kingdom the responsibility initially undertaken at Soviet request on July 7, 1945, for the physical well-being of 2,400,000 persons in western sectors of Berlin.

Restrictions recently imposed by the Soviet authorities in Berlin have operated to prevent this Government and the governments of the United Kingdom and of France from fulfilling that responsibility in an adequate manner.

The responsibility which this Government bears for the physical wellbeing and the safety of the German population in its sector of Berlin is outstandingly humanitarian in character. This population includes hundreds of thousands of women and children, whose health and safety are dependent on the continued use of adequate facilities for moving food, medical supplies and other items indispensable to the maintenance of human life in the western sectors of Berlin. The most elemental of these human rights which both our governments are solemnly pledged to protect are thus placed in jeopardy by these restrictions. It is intolerable that any one of the occupying authorities should attempt to impose a blockade upon the people of Berlin.

The United States Government is, therefore, obliged to insist that in accordance with existing agreements the arrangements for the movement of freight and passenger traffic between the western z es and Berlin be fully restored. There can be no question of delay in the restoration of these essential services, since the needs of the civilian population in the Berlin area are imperative.

HOLDING these urgent views regarding its rights and obligations in the United States sector of Berlin, yet eager always to resolve controversies in the spirit of fair consideration for the viewpoints of all concerned, the Government of the United States declares that duress should not be invoked as a method of attempting to dispose of any dis-agreements which may exist between the Soviet government and the Government of the United States in respect of any aspects of the Berlin situation.

Such disagreement, if any, should be settled by negotiation or by any of the other peaceful methods provided for in Article 33 of the Charter in keeping with our mutual pledges as copartners in the United Nations. For these reasons the Government of the United States is ready as a first step to participate in negotiations in Berlin among the four Allied occupying authorities for the settlement of any question in dispute arising out of the administration of the City of Berlin. It is, however, a prerequisite that the lines of communication and the movement of persons and goods between the United Kingdom, United States and the French sectors in Berlin and the western zones shall have been fully restored.

Accept excellency, the renewed assurance of my highest consideration.

George C. Marshall,
Secretary of State.

Italy, Russia To Talk Trade

Rome, July 9 (AP).—Italy will send to Moscow this month an economic mission to discuss renewal of trade with Russia, the Foreign Ministry said tonight.

Thee mission will discuss a trade agreement, expected to provide for Italian manufacture and processing of Russian raw materials. It also may cover the exchange of Soviet wheat for ships and mechanical equipment.

However, the Italian delegation will adhere strictly to provisions of the U. S. European recovery program, banning export to eastern Europe of materials manufactured from American ERP supplies, a spokesman said.

Small Nations Open U. N. Charter Drive

By Peter Kihss

Lake Success, July 9 (NYHT).—Overriding opposition of the United States, Britain and France, in an unprecedented assertion of small-power resentment over the great-power veto, the Soviet-boycotted Little Assembly urged the General Assembly today to "consider" calling a world conference to amend the U. N. Charter.

Energetic Jose Arce, of Argentina, rallied the forces which produced 19 nations in favor of the call, with seven opposed, and 12 abstaining.

The recommendation came after the Little Assembly earlier this week had advocated Big Five agreement on specifict veto limitations.

The three great western powers, while blaming the Soviet Union for veto abuse, still oppose any effort to amend the Charter as untimely, and, as Joseph E. Johnson, of the United States, commented after the vote, "likely to produce an effect in reverse of that desired."

The 19 in favor of the motion, as tallied by reporters, were Afghanistan, Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Ethiopia, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Iran, Mexico, New Zealand, Pakistan, Panama, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Turkey.

In opposition besides the United States, Britain and France were Canada, Norway, India and South Africa. With the Soviet Union boycotting the Little Assembly, the other Big Five power, China, abstained.

Officially, only 10 nations were listed in abstention, but reporters' checks found a dozen either abstaining or claiming to have done so—China, Belgium, Brazil, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Iraq, the Netherlands, Siam, Sweden, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Earlier, the delegates recommended that the General Assembly urge all U. N. members that, "in agreements conferring functions on the Security Council, such conditions of voting within this body be provided as would exclude the application of the rule of the unanimity of the permanent members."

Such a policy would eliminate vetoes, for instance, in any enforcement entrusted to the Security Council in atomic energy controls. It thus represented a possible preview of debate in the full Assembly in Paris this fall, when it takes up the long-deadlocked atomic problem.

New Palestine Truce Fails

with members of the U. N. truce commission staff on board. Only 40 members of the U. N. team which once totaled at least 200 remained, most of them on Mount Scopus in Jerusalem.

5. The British Foreign Office disclosed in London that Britain had appealed to the Arab countries twice in the last 24 hours to extend the four-weeks truce which ended at 2 a. m. (EDT) today.

6. Strong Syrian concentrations of men and armor were reported by the Jews in the Lake Hula area north of the Sea of Galillee. The Jews said they expected a major attack.

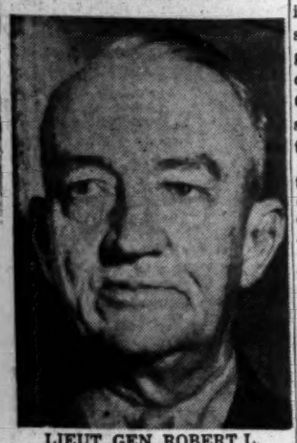
Count Bernadotte's surprise visit to King Abdullah lasted an hour. After the conference, Bernadotte said they discussed "many things, including the prospects of another truce in Palestine." Foreign diplomats in Amman said the two talked about the "fundamentals of a permanent solution."

From Amman, Bernadotte flew to Haifa, picked up Dr. Ralph Bunche, his chief U. N. aide, and flew on to Rhodes.

In Rhodes, the mediator said he had made one more appeal to the Jews and Arabs to stop fighting, at least for 10 days, and that he would go to Lake Success.

Scattered fighting was reported from various fronts. But there were no appearances that either side was ready yet to launch full-scale offensives.

General in Japan Plans to Retire



LIEUT. GEN. ROBERT L. EICHELBERGER, commander of Allied occupation ground forces in Japan, said yesterday in Yokohama that he plans to return to the United States soon and retire at an early date. His departure will be the first major change in the United States Army staff since the Japanese occupation began

U. N. Palestine Action Waits On Mediator

Lake Success, July 9 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council tonight dropped plans for another emergency session on Palestine to await the arrival of Count Folke Bernadotte.

Informed quarters viewed the U. N. mediator's surprise decsion to fly here from Rhodes as a turning point in the Holy Land negotiations. It was felt that Bernadotte now was convinced he could not single-handed bring the Arabs and Jews together, and was prepared to seek help from the Council.

To Stay 10 Days

The U. N. said it had been advised by Bernadotte's aides that the mediator planned to remain here only a few days before flying back to the Middle East to resume personal efforts at mediation.

There were no immediate indication here whether the Jews and Arabs could be expected to accept the new unconditional 10-day cease fire asked by Bernadotte. It would start at 8 a.m. (EDT) Saturday.

Bernadotte is due to reach Lake Success late Sunday or early Monday. Council President Dmitri Z. Manuilsky then is expected to call the Council into session to hear a first-hand report on the Palestine negotiations.

Possible Developments

During the day Secretary General Trygve Lie's office received the official text of the Arab rejection of a four-week truce extension as suggested by Bernadotte and accepted by the Jews.

An official familiar with the trend of Council affairs predicted the 11-nation body would listen to the mediator's report and then find the Palestine situation a threat to world peace, and issue orders for cessation of hostilities and resumption of negotiations.

Failure of the Arabs to comply would open the way for action declaring a breach to the peace existed. Under such a decision the Council could invoke diplomatic and economic sanctions and, if necessary, use international force.

Three Slain In Malaya

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, July 9 (U.P.).—Terrorists ambushed and killed a European rubber estate manager and two Asiatic assistants today, and British Maj. Gen. C. H. Boucher declared battle conditions prevail in the Malayan union.

D. W. Jennings, the estate manager, and a Malay and an Indian were killed while riding in Jennings' automobile west of Kuantan near the coast. Jennings' assistant, a European, was missing and feared dead.

Boucher said rocket-firing Spitfires will be sent to attack a concentration of Communist troops 8 miles south of Kuala Lumpur, capital of the Malayan union. Gurkha troops will be dispatched to follow up the planes, he said.

The Spitfire raid was planned on the tip of a planter who reported 400 guerillas were planning to attack Kuala Lumpur in their campaign to drive the British from Malaya.

Boucher said the number of Communist troops probably was nearer 40 than 400.

In Johore, police reported a "large gang" had attacked the Pangkat police station. The constable was wounded seriously. One Chinese was killed.

Justice Lawyers Discuss Captive Coal Mine Strike

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough talked over the "captive" coal mine strike with attorneys for both sides yesterday, leading to speculation on an out-of-court settlement of the four-day-old shutdown in mines owned by the steel industry.

Goldsborough met with Attorneys Welly K. Hopkins of the United Mine Workers and John C. Gall of the steel company "captive" mines, and Harry M. Moses, chief negotiator for the operators whose pits are closed in a new contract dispute.

The steel companies represented refused to agree to a union shop provision carried over by UMW President John L. Lewis in his new contract with the rest of the soft coal industry.

U. S. Won't Act Independently In Palestine

Independent United States action to seek peace in Palestine was ruled out yesterday by Secretary of State Marshall.

This Nation and Great Britain, he told a news conference, have not relaxed their efforts to bring peace to the Holy Land, but stressed that any action in that direction would be taken through the United Nations.

Marshall also said the United States was not at this time planning to lift the ban on arms to Israel and Arab countries imposed last December 5. This and all other issues in the Palestine situation, he said, were being handled through the U. N. Security Council.

The Secretary said it was deplorable that hostilities seemed to be breaking out again after efforts of the three-nation truce commission in Palestine to extend the recent armistice. He pointed out that the United States had exerted every effort as a member of the commission to hold on to the temporary peace.

The United States, Marshall said, is doing all possible to safeguard Americans in the war zone. He added that Navy ships were standing by.

Asked who was to blame for renewal of hostilities, Marshall said news reports appeared to indicate the Arabs were responsible.

In response to another question, he said the bipartisan conduct of foreign affairs would continue between now and the November election. In that connection he said John Foster Dulles, GOP foreign policy adviser, probably would talk with him here after a vacation in Canada. Meanwhile, he said, Republican leaders in Congress were being furnished information on all important foreign policy matters.

Marshall said he would head the United States delegation to the Paris meeting of the U. N. General Assembly in September. Dulles, he added, presumably would go along.

Man in Priest's Garb Sought in Boy's Abduction

Boston, July 9 (U.P.).—He was a soft-spoken man garbed as a Catholic priest and he won the heart of predominently Irish South Boston with his gentle manner and understanding smile.

But today he was sought by police as far West as Oakland, Calif. They withheld his assumed name and identified him only as "Father X." He wasn't a priest, police said.

It was feared he was a maniac. He was sought on a charge of abducting a 15-year-old boy whom he purportedly induced to accompany him to enlist in a religious order as a brother.

Mrs. Mary Kelly, aunt of the missing boy, Francis C. Flaherty, said Father X diner with a score of South Boston families and had to refuse many invitations because he said "I have only a few days to stay here before I must return to the Coast to found a new boy's town."

Reds Threaten To 'Crush' South Korea

Seoul, July 9 (AP).—North Korea's Russian-controlled radio today broadcast a threat to "crush" the newly organized South Korean government.

The threat was made in a broadcast from Pyongyang, where the radio said a second North-South Korea unity conference had been held June 29-July 5.

The first Pyongyang unity conference was attended by South Koreans Kim Kiusic, a moderate leftist, and rightist Kim Koo, along with 15 other South Korean leaders. Neither was mentioned today as having attended the second conference.

The Communist radio, according to the U. S. Army translation, termed the May 10 election of a South Korean assembly "a total failure."

That assembly is due to approve a national constitution Monday. North Koreans opposed and did not participate in the South Korean election.

The North Korean radio called the South Korean government "a puppet and separate government" aimed at separating Korea and turning South Korea "into a colonized state of the American imperialists."

The radio said the second Pyongyang conference repeated demands for a nation-wide election of "a superior peoples' council and establishment of a unified government."

The new council, the radio said, would reiterate a demand for withdrawal of both Russian and American soldiers from Korea.

Wallace Group Meets Here Today To Pick Delegates

Local supporters of Henry A. Wallace will convene at 10 a.m. today at Hotel 2400 to form the "New Party" here and elect delegates to the Wallace party convention in Philadelphia July 21-23.

Attorney Harry Lambert and Dr. Joseph Johnson of Howard University's medical school are expected to be temporary cochairmen until a permanent chairman is selected, Attorney Joseph Forer, member of the platform committee said last night.

A platform calling for an end to racial segregation here and throughout the country and for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act will be presented for consideration.

War Freight Rate Probe Block Denied

Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday promised swift Justice Department action if the Bender Subcommittee of the House can furnish "any facts" to substantiate charges of misconduct or fraud against former Army officers who set wartime freight rates for the Government.

Clark vigorously denied that he had ever blocked any Justice Department investigation into military personnel engaged in setting the rates the Government paid the railroads to carry arms during the war.

Frank L. Barton, a former Justice Department official, told a House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee Thursday, that he had started such an investigation in the spring of 1945 but had dropped it on orders of the Attorney General.

The Justice Department pointed out yesterday that Clark did not become Attorney General until July 1, 1945. His predecessor was Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Clark pointed out that under his direction the Justice Department had filed civil suits, which might return as much as one billion dollars to the Government, to recover what the Government claims were excess freight charges from the railroads.

Until there is a determination that the rates were in fact excessive, Clark pointed out, officers who set the rates could not be held liable.

Chairman George H. Bender (R., Ohio) of the House Executive Expenditures group has maintained there is a "suspicion of criminal activity" on the part of officers who set the rates and has announced he will call the officers for a hearing sometime this summer.

Pointing out that the Justice Department operates on facts, Clark said he would be most happy if the subcommittee would refer any evidence to his department, if any is developed.

Rails Return To Owners

By the United Press

The Government returned the railroads to their private owners yesterday and three big railway brotherhoods immediately began a drive for third-round wage increases.

Army operation of the lines, which began 61 days ago, formally ended at 4 p. m., EDT., when Secretary of Army Kenneth C. Royall handed them back to the owners with a statement that nothing unusual had occurred during Federal control.

Return was made possible Thursday when a settlement was reached in the 18-month-old wage dispute between the carriers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

The three unions and the railroads agreed on a wage increase of $1.24 a day, or 15½ cents an hour, and 16 rules changes that also will mean more money for the unions' 125,000 members.

But the brotherhoods originally had demanded a $3-a-day wage increase and President David B. Robertson of the firemen said they were going after "the balance."

9 CIO Leaders May Face Contempt Charges Before Congress After Communist Hearings

New York, July 9 (AP).—Nine CIO officials who refused to tell a House subcommittee whether they are Communists will be recommended for citations for contempt of Congress.

Representative Charles J. Kersten, chairman of the House Education and Labor Subcommittee, announced the action today at the end of three days of hearings.

The nine labor leaders are officials of the CIO Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union. Kersten said he would recommend to the whole Education and Labor Committee that they be cited.

Nine Face Charges

Faced with the possible contempt charges are Arthur Osman, president; David M. Livingston, vice president; Mrs. Esther Letz, wholesale department director, and Jack Paley, secretary and treasurer, of Local 65; Samuel Lewis, business manager, and Carl W. Andren, business agent, of Local 3; William Michelson, business manager of Local 2; Nicholas Carnes, president of Local 1250; and Nathan Solomon, president of Local 830.

Paley was last of the nine to refuse to answer the Communist question. He countered by asking Chairman Kersten whether he had received campaign support from the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith or whether "Nazi" funds were contributed to his election campaign.

When Kersten insisted he tell whether he was a Communist and Paley refused, Paley was dismissed. "You refuse to answer my question?" he asked Kersten.

"There is no substance to it," Kersten answered, "and there is not anything that bears a resemblance to the truth."

Asks Chance To Answer

Near the end of the sessions Mrs. Letz demanded that the committee give her an opportunity to answer charges made earlier by a former union member.

The former member, Dorothy C. Barry, testified she saw Mrs. Letz wave a Soviet flag at a union meeting and shout: "This is the flag we take our orders from."

Mrs. Barry said she objected to the United States Flag being placed in a subordinate position. Later, she said, she suffered "the silent treatment" in the union, decreases in her work and pay and "contemptuous" treatment from other union members.

After the hearing Kersten said the subcommittee would hold further hearings and Mrs. Letz would be permittted to testify. He said the time and place of the further meetings had not been decided.

The only witness to answer what Representative Fred Hartley (R., N.J.), committee member and co-author of the Taft Hartley law, called the $64 question," was Jack Altman, a department store director of the union.

Asked if he was or ever had been a member of the Communist party, Altman replied:

Altman Enters Denial

"I never have been and I am not. Even though I don't think it is a proper question to ask, I am absolutely not a Communist."

He also said he thought the subcommittee was making "martyrs" of the Communists.

"You're giving them a field day," he said. "They couldn't buy this publicity."

Disorders frequently occurred during the hearings as witnesses loudly defied the committee to make them answer, most of them claiming the question violated their constitutional rights.

Several times United States marshals forcibly put witnesses out of the hearing room after the committee dismissed them and they insisted on continuing what committee members called "speech-making."

Mrs. Esther Letz

Dorothy C. Barry

Earlier today Samuel Wolchok, anti-Communist president of the union's international organization, told the committee 99 per cent of the union's 150,000 members were "good Americans."

"It is more dangerous to drive Communists underground than to have them on top of the table," Wolchok said.

Kersten replied that "we want to get them out from underground and on the table where we can know them for what they are and expose them."

"I think everybody knows who they are," Wolchok said. "I think every Communist is known, at least I hope the FBI knows them."

Good Work

Washingtonians, shocked at the brutal murder of Carol Bardwell in Rock Creek Park, will rejoice at the arrest in Baltimore of the confessed slayer, one Eugene H. James. The murderer, a recently released convict, also admitted a similar killing of a young girl bicyclist in Baltimore as well as the rape of another woman there. The arrest itself seems to have resulted from the alertness of Baltimore police in following up a lead obtained from the rape victim. It is no reflection on the efforts of Washington police that the murderer was apprehended in Baltimore, since he fled there the night of the Bardwell attack. But although the arrest apparently clears up this particular case, several important questions of public policy are left unanswered.

First, what can be done to assure that sex maniacs, once confined, will not be freed to prey on society? Apparently James was afflicted with a sort of hemothymia that led him to attack young girls with a knife. He was released from prison in December, 1947, after serving more than seven years for assault on a woman. The fact that he was dismissed indicates the need for some better means of diagnosis and some way to continue restraint of such persons while they are still dangerous. Moreover, it demonstrates the necessity for concentrating on the cure of such cases, if that is possible, rather than on mere confinement as punishment.

Secondly, what is to be done to afford better protection in Rock Creek Park and other such areas in Washington? The same question has come up before under similar circumstances, and still there is divided police responsibility in Washington, with the pitifully small and inadequate force of the U. S. Park Police still charged with patrolling large areas of park land. Surely Congress must realize that a situation in which the public is afraid to use the parks is not healthy. It should not take the sacrifice of another young life to force the merger of police forces that the public interest demands.

Atom Custody

The military can make a convincing case that the nature of the next war is likely to require instant retaliation, and that a delay in procuring atomic weapons might be fatal. They argue that divided responsibility for defense inevitably means delay. Even the knowledge that the Air Force had immediate access to atomic bombs, they contend, would deter any aggressor. These arguments are now being put forward in behalf of the case that the military and not the Atomic Energy Commission should be custodian of the Nation's stock of atomic bombs. The question is bedeviled by the secrecy surrounding the A-bomb. With this proviso, the controversy seems to be a jurisdictional dispute having little significance. After all, the final decision on whether to use atomic bombs is not up to either the military or the Atomic Energy Commission, but is a question for the President as Commander in Chief to decide.

As a matter of fact, under the law the President has the authority to place supplies of completed atomic weapons in the hands of the military when he deems this necessary. Whether he has in fact done so is of course a secret. However, it is apparent that the campaign to transfer custody to the military does not involve small quantities, but the whole stockpile of atomic weapons. Basically the issue comes down to this: The President himself is the person ultimately charged with the security of the United States. It is inconceivable that he would allow a situation of imminent catastrophe to develop without taking proper steps to prevent it. The Atomic Energy Commission is responsible to the President just as is the Secretary of Defense. It is a reasonable assumption that the commission, too, is cognizant of the international situation and has established a liaison with the military to permit rapid use of atomic bombs if that should prove necessary. This is the manner in which control of atomic energy, including atomic weapons, follows the clearly expressed wish of Congress. No evidence has come to light to indicate that the procedure as established by Congress is not fully adequate for American security. We hope that the President will not be stampeded by scare talk into negating the whole principle of civilian control.

Steel Pricing

Speculation is rife as to why U. S. Steel suddenly decided to abandon its basing-point pricing system for f.o.b. mill pricing that will force buyers to pay the full cost of transportation from all mills to delivery points. President Fairless says that the company has "no recourse other than to comply with the law of the land as determined by the Supreme Court, regardless of the hardships and dislocations to American industry which may result." That explanation simply won't wash.

The recent Supreme Court decision outlawing the multiple-basing-point system of the cement industry was based on the Court's finding that cement companies had been parties to a conspiratorial combination acting collectively to maintain a system that restrained competition. But Mr. Fairless says that the basing-point system of the steel industry is in no way collusive and his company believes it to be essential to maintenance of competitive industry in this country. Yet U. S. Steel has quit the fight it has been waging to maintain that system before the FTC has completed its current hearings on the steel industry's pricing methods. Those hearings might result in the issuance of restraining orders later on, but at the present moment the steel companies are under no compulsion to change a pricing system that has been under Government fire for more than a quarter of a century.

There are, however, a number of reasons why it might be considered smart strategy to change to a system of f.o.b. mill pricing at this juncture. The Iron Age, for instance, says it is the best time for the shift to be made because of the current high demand for steel at almost any price.

The pinch will come later when a buyers' market for steel develops. The Iron Age predicts that then "the going will be rough on those mills which are concentrated in an area where far more steel is produced than is consumed." Meantime the change will be rough on buyers located at distant points from supplying steel mills. For they will have to pay freight charges previously absorbed by those mills. On the other hand, buyers located near steel mills may benefit from the changed pricing system, provided the change is not accompanied by offsetting increases in f.o.b. mill prices. It is at least worth noting that some of the cement mills forced by the Supreme Court decision to abandon the practice of absorbing freight charges have just raised their f.o.b. mill prices. If the U. S. Steel Corp. were to follow their example and increase its own f.o.b. mill prices those particular increases could not be laid at the door of the FTC and the Supreme Court. However, the public might be persuaded to the contrary. In any event, it is expected that the new pricing system will raise the over-all cost of steel for the company's customers.

In addition to the extra revenue that U. S. Steel is expected to obtain under the new pricing system, the company may derive certain tactical advantages from its sudden abandonment of efforts to preserve the basing-point system. Indeed, there is a well-founded suspicion that U. S. Steel has no intention of permanently abandoning the basing-point system. On the contrary, its departure from that time-honored system may be a calculated move to gain support for a campaign to legalize the basing-point system. Aggrieved businessmen who have to pay higher prices for steel under the new dispensation can be counted on as allies if such a campaign is launched. Their protests will reach the ears of sympathetic Congressmen and increase the pressure from industry for legislative exemption from anti-trust-law prohibitions that have, or may have, the effect of outlawing basing-point pricing systems.

Before adjourning, the Eightieth Congress appropriated funds for an investigation, among other things, of the effect on business and on consumers of the Supreme Court decision in the cement case. Presumably the results of that investigation will be available by fall. If Congress, following this investigation, should decide that the advantages of the basing-point system outweigh its incidental evils, as The Washington Post believes, the antitrust laws should be amended to permit legalization of the system. But it should be a conditional legalization, accompanied by some measure of governmental control to protect the public against abuses of privilege.

Another Injunction

John L. Lewis has been ordered to appear next Wednesday again before Justice Goldsborough to show cause why he should not be temporarily enjoined from refusing to bargain in good faith with the owners of captive mines and insisting on inclusion of a union-shop clause in wage contracts in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act. Presumably the hearing will end with the issuance of another injunction ordering miners now on strike to return to work.

Mr. Lewis' appearances before Justice Goldsborough have almost ceased to be news by this time. The public is becoming accustomed to having the mine leader haled into court; the only relief from what threatens to become a monotonous performance is provided by the ingenuity of Mr. Lewis in finding new excuses for breaking off bargaining negotiations and causing mine shutdowns that call for injunctive relief.

Injunctions are devices to be resorted to only in emergencies. When they have to be relied upon repeatedly to protect the public from the threat of serious loss and damage caused by strikes in vital industries, the conclusion is that the country is faced by a chronic emergency calling for a different kind of relief. As this newspaper has said many times, injunctions and Government seizure of properties to break strikes are purely negative protective devices offering no insurance of a settlement of the disputes that necessitated such action. If John L. Lewis has embarked on a campaign to demonstrate the futility of injunctions as a means of furthering peaceful collective bargaining, he may succeed in his endeavor. But he is playing with fire; for if he remains unregenerate, the public will call for stronger labor laws to cope with the strike menace.

Injunctions affording temporary relief from strife, in other words, may be replaced by some form of compulsory settlement of disputes that would be even less palatable to Mr. Lewis.

Who Wrote What?

Ever since the Glastonbury (Conn.) Glawakus signed a contract with the circus and the Loch Ness sea monster joined the Alcoholics Anonymous and the flying saucers disappeared into the cosmic dishpans, the public prints have been in sore need of some seasonable diversion from the daily staples of rape, murder, suicide and presidential politics. What was wanting has now been supplied by Mr. Charles Wisner Barrell of New York, and our readers, it seems to us, should be accordingly grateful. Mr. Barrell has entered suit in our District Court against Dr. Giles E. Dawson of the Folger Library, thereby reopening the question of who, if anybody, wrote the plays and poems attributed to Shakespeare.

This controversy is, to be sure, a bit of a chestnut, but we must face the fact that ours is not an imaginative age. Besides, is it not, as the Bard (or whoever it was) said, the destiny of both men and chestnuts "with vilest worms to dwell"? Anyway, the controversy serves a useful and hygienic purpose. It is one of those rare and precious public questions about which it is possible to get excited in hot weather without endangering the peace of the world or the survival of free institutions. It is also the sort of controversy which is eminently suited to democratic methods of discussion, since no particular qualifications of scholarship are required to entitle one to an opinion and each disputant is at liberty to devise his own rules of evidence.

As for the particulars of the suit, it appears that Mr. Barrell took some X-ray and infra-red photographs of a supposed portrait of Shakespeare in the Folger Library which, he says, prove that it is really a picture of Edward de Vere, the seventeenth Earl of Oxford. Dr. Dawson says that whatever it is Mr. Barrell sees in these photographs, it is something that nobody else can see in them, and also what—not to put too fine a point on it—actually isn't there. This, it seems, constitutes the libel for which Mr. Barrell is asking $50,000 damages and raises an interesting question in epistemology; but perhaps we had better not go into that.

Those who think that it was neither Oxford nor Shakespeare but Lord Bacon who wrote the plays are, we gather, remaining haughtily neutral in this contest between the Messrs. Barrell and Dawson. Probably this also applies to the champions of the Earl of Derby, Sir Edward Dyer, Sir Philip Sidney and other putative authors of Shakespeare. About all these sects have in common anyway is the belief that the Shakespeare myth persists only because of the obscurantism of the English professors who have made it their vested interest. If this is so, it seems to us that the anti-Shakespeareans have pointedly failed to profit by the lessons of the recent Republican National Convention.

Obviously, the only way to depose the Bard from his present preeminence in English letters would be for the Oxfordians, Baconians, Dyerites and the rest to get together in a smoke-filled room somewhere and agree on a single anti-Shakespearean candidate. This, apparently, they are unable or unwilling to do. Another mistake they make is to insist on replacing the barefoot country boy from Stratford with some elegant, court-bred nobleman, on the premise that the Shakespeare plays are just too damn good to have been written by anybody below the rank of a baronet. Naturally, this sort of argument does not go down very well in a democratic country like ours.

Yet it seems to us that a solution of the controversy, satisfactory to all concerned, is quite possible. The compromise we propose is that not only the Shakespeare plays and poems, but the Novum Organum, the Apologie for Poetry and all the other famous works of the period be declared the products of multiple authorship. In other words, we can assume a sort of general production and editorial board, assisted by an extensive research department, prepared on short notice to knock out a masterpiece in almost any field, including drama and philosophy. Let us assume that Shakespeare's position in this organization was that of chief editor and majority stockholder, and that the senior associate editors included Lord Bacon, Sidney, Dyer, the Earl of Oxford—and just to broaden the democratic base, as they said at Yalta—the first and second grave-diggers, Guy Fawkes, Doll Tearsheet and Queen Elizabeth. This would explain how, by popular confusion, Shakespeare got the credit for doing it all by himself. Even today, as you have doubtless observed, there are a lot of people who don't bother to read all the acknowledgments of collaboration which precede a big movie feature.

DARK WINDOW

No longer clear, the house across the way,
No longer visible, the rapid road;
Only the charcoal eve bent in its place,
Only the green bough, stooping with its load.

All else is night and night and yet more night
Reaching to skies that dim eternity;
Only the storm leaps to the shuddering breast—
The window's dark, through which no man may see.

Transit Fares

I wish to compliment The Washington Post on its intelligent attitude as expressed in its editorial columns toward the present suit instigated by the Capital Transit for a rate increase.

Indeed, a thorough and complete analysis of the books of the Capital Transit is always in order and most assuredly is in the public interest. New and different routes must be explored, must be broken down, and finally when the mist purposely stirred up by the Capital Transit has been dispelled, an intelligent appraisal of the necessity of a rate increase can be made.

To take an example from a slightly different situation, look at the Benning abandonment of streetcars and the substitution of buses, which was approved by the PUC only last year. The annual report for 1947 shows on the profit and loss statement that the operating revenue on bus lines was less than the operating expenses on bus lines, while on streetcar lines operating revenue was more than operating expenses by a considerable amount. Of course, that report was not before the PUC, but on its face it justifies a complete reversal of that decision, even though the substitution is presently postponed because of the gasoline shortage—a shortage not likely to abate.

It would seem then that from the Capital Transit's own records the Benning substitution of buses for streetcars will be an investment in a losing business. If any more such decisions are made, we shall surely see an increase in rates.

The PUC must begin to fulfill its public trust by examining account by account, charge by charge, and route by route, the books of the Capital Transit Co. I feel sure that if this is done, it will be readily discovered that no rate increase is necessary, but rather that a more efficient routing of buses and more intelligent use of express buses will more than solve the present presumed dilemma. Capital Transit, because of the lack of organized opposition, has too easily won its case in the past. This time the PUC itself must act in the public interest both as a body and through its public counsel.

"Superseniority"

Your editorial of June 30 certainly compromises the vein of your editorial attitude during the war when "nothing was too good for the boys." I do not propose to discuss this matter at length because Mr. Clinton J. Parker has summed my attitude up nicely in his letter of July 5. I do, however, desire to comment on your remark that the efficiency of the Government is seriously impaired when a veteran displaces a civilian with a number of years' service.

I think it can be assumed that the personnel in the armed forces was a good cross-section of the people of this country. I further think that the personnel in the Government service represents a cross-section of the people of this country. It is insulting to the veteran to feel that with a few months' training in the displaced civilian's job he cannot fulfill the duties just as capably as they have been fulfilled. It seems to me that 5 or 10 preference points is a nominal reward for the job he performed in winning the war.

L. M.

Silver Spring.

I'm not in favor of kicking out loyal Government employes whose only crime is that they did not get drafted, in order to give jobs to men who happened to have been drafted and who also sat upon "overstuffed posteriors" in Washington or elsewhere in the United States. These latter outnumber the overseas vets many, many times.

In the bureau where I work, all vets have regained their jobs, together with all raises that they would have received had they not been in the service, which no one will deny is as it should be. Only 1 of the 20 vets saw overseas service. We have some non-vets who have worked with the bureau for many more years than most vets, and who are loyal, efficient workers and the backbone of the organization. According to the "superseniority" rules, these men will be fired in case of reduction in force, and the younger vets retained. What kind of Americanism is this?

Hospital Visiting Rooms

Why couldn't the visitors' rooms at St. Elizabeths Hospital be refurnished and decorated to make them more conducive to relaxation while patients maintain their only contacts with the outside world? It could be done by small contributions.

It is difficult for both patients and visitors to maintain anything resembling a natural, easy relationship against drab walls and stiff drab furniture awkwardly placed. Surely, something cleaned also could be pretty! V. L. G.

Knowledge Of Others

Since Mrs. P. J. (letter published June 26) has touched on one of the most important issues of the day (courtesy to foreigners), I feel that the editors should not allow this subject to be hidden in a more or less obscure section of Letters to the Editor.

I have spent a great deal of time in some 30 different countries throughout the world, and in each of these I have felt that I was a guest of the native peoples.

The purpose of this letter is neither to condone nor to condemn Mrs. P. J. or a reader who writes in the July 2 issue, but rather to point out the fallacy of both attitudes. Most peoples in other countries treat you just about the same way they are treated. I do not mean governments—I mean the average person. It can be said that foreign countries throughout the world tolerate another language more gracefully than we Americans.

The average person in his respective country has treated me with the utmost courtesy, and by this I do not mean that a few unthinking people are always so kind. Here is where almost all of us go wrong: We are inclined to judge a whole population by a few maladjusteds.

I wish it were possible to recommend tourist travel as a means of correcting these wrong impressions, But I have found that just to know a little about a group of people runs the risk of being more dangerous than to know nothing about them. Perhaps a broader exchange of educators and students is the best answer.

Let us, Americans, be the first to start a campaign of "Get acquainted!", since two wrongs never make a right.

HENRY F. BRAY.

"Tug Of War"

Your July 2 editorial on the Berlin impasse seemed to me singularly ill-advised.

As well as I can recall, your principal points were as follows: (a) that the policy of maintaining Anglo-United States-French forces and administrative control in Berlin had been deprived of essential meaning by the decision to set up a united western German government and allied administration, with comments and an apt quotation on the folly of clinging to an outworn policy; (b) though prestige ("face") factors should not be entirely disregarded, such factors should not be allowed to stand in the way of a realistic withdrawal to positions, previously prepared in clinging to the foregoing, that our persistence in Berlin, in terms of would amount to a rash and unnecessary tweaking of some part of the bear's anatomy.

Aside from my conviction that this attitude is strongly imbued with the small-change "realism" implicit in the entire process of inter-war appeasement, even the opportunistic advantages of "strategic retreat" at this point and time seem very questionable.

Advantages: (1) A point of friction with Soviet forces is removed; (2) a drain on resources is stopped; (3) Allied administrative headquarters are transferred geographically to the area to be administered, sans the intervention of some miles of "hostile" territory.

Disadvantages: (1) The Soviets are left freer to apply pressure at one or more other points (i.e., attrition is bilateral); (2) a valuable "listening post" for surveillance and the gathering of first-hand information is lost; (3) prestige, in the flouting of our right and privilege to remain, is vastly diminished—"loss of face" is too trivial a term for such a catastrophe—and Soviet prestige and, thereby, capabilities is correspondingly increased; (4) the Soviets are considerably convenienced in their aim of gaining sole control of western Germany, as a prelude to gaining the whole; (5) a precedent of retreat in the face of pressure is established, which will make firmness on our part in holding the many other disputed areas more difficult, and more fraught with the danger of an armed clash with an overweening aggressor, who is already famous for tailoring infiltration and conquest to the calculated odds; (6) German supporters of the western Allies and non-Communists generally will suffer severely (economic discrimination, enslavement and physical elimination); (7) this latter abandonment of our collaborators to Soviet mercies will scarcely facilitate recruiting and maintaining the loyalty and trust of "democratic" forces elsewhere.

As to a proposed policy for dealing with a situation to which there is obviously no "solution," as the matter is often erroneously phrased, I can see no good alternative to the continuance and intensification of our refusal to be blackjacked, in Berlin or elsewhere, the support of this policy by all the diplomatic maneuverability, determination and power presently at our disposal, and by the definite commitment of whatever is necessary in addition to do the job. In such case, I predict that the Soviets will find it possible to mobilize their vast technical resources and apply them to the prompt mending of those railroads, rather than to the invention and profferance of further bald hypocrisies.

I can only hope that the considerable influence of The Washington Post will not continue to be exerted in favor of a policy of "wince and retreat" just at the point where that of "containment and pressure" has begun to bear a few concrete, if scraggly, Yugoslavian apples.

Lesson For Democrats

By Malvina Lindsay

No Archaic Oratory

IF DEMOCRATIC convention orators next week want to appeal to the millions of independent voters who will be at radio and television sets they will hold back on bombast and name calling. They will avoid the curling lipped sarcasm, the sneering personal jab, the furious face-making denunciation of "rascals." Above all they will steer clear of hitting below the belt with personalities.

For though these tricks may draw laughter and applause from a partisan audience, they don't go over with those listeners and watchers in living-rooms who regard neither Republicans nor Democrats as monsters. On television sets especially an orator's angry antics become suggestive of his jungle forbears on a rampage.

The ranks of independent voters are increasing rapidly, and this campaign finds about 16,800,000 eligible voters in that category—many of them women. Nearly 1 voter in 3 regards himself as independent, polls show, as against 1 in 5 in 1944. This means that the independent vote will determine the election.

THOUGH misanthropes may contend that campaign oratory goes over only when it is rabble rousing, yet the response at the recent Republican Convention, both among delegates and the unseen audience, to former President Hoover's speech would indicate the reverse. And the unseen audience responded well to Governor Dewey's acceptance speech though some convention wheelhorses were disappointed that it was on such a high level.

But among the general listeners, women particularly, there was much criticism of Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce's caustic speech, reminiscent of her technique in The Women. Many of those who had recently been looking hopefully to Mrs. Luce as a spiritual force were especially disappointed. Similarly, the old-fashioned ranting speech of Senator Bricker merely amused much of his politically independent audience.

Since such a large proportion of independent voters are college educated—39 per cent according to the Gallup Poll—the old angry, inflated oratory isn't good enough if such voters are to be influenced. And the average noncollege independent voter no longer responds to wordy pointing with pride and viewing with alarm, unless he belongs to that vanishing species of Democrat or Republican who still boasts of his political family tree.

Democrats traditionally have been even more oratorical than Republicans, so, likely, an exhibition of spellbinding is on schedule for Philadelphia. Southern oratory is due to erupt over civil rights and regional grievances, and the row over President Truman may inspire hyperbole. Anyway, the convention must be prolonged five days.

NATURALLY no one expects a party convention speech to be all sweetness and light. But the Democrats would be smart if they would find a way to make vital speeches about what should be done tomorrow—not yesterday—and to grapple with issues rather than dodge them by name calling. They would be smart to look into what history, psychology, jury trials and camp meetings have demonstrated about the way people are influenced—not for the moment, but permanently.

They would also do well to investigate a campaign technique that recently went over well in Maine, that of Margaret Chase Smith, who won the Republican nomination for Senator with more votes than her three men opponents together. Yet she never mentioned her opponents, nor talked against anything, rather told what she was for, and what she would do if elected.

All political orators might well remember that the speeches that have lived have not been the "agin'" ones, but rather those that have tried to throw some kind of gleam on the foggy road ahead: as Washington's farewell address, Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Jefferson's inaugural . . . "Every difference of opinion is not a difference of principle; we are all Republicans, we are all Federalists" . . . Churchill's "we shall fight on the beaches . . ." Roosevelt's "all we have to fear is fear itself."

Political orators of course are not thinking about history but of their immediate audiences. These frequently enjoy the invective and the patriotic platitude. But this year many voters are too concerned with the threats of war, depression, the still unbridled force of atomic energy, to have much zest left for political cockfighting.

Low Flying Planes

I heartily indorse the protest of Leroy E. Peabody in your issue of July 3 entitled "Low Flying Planes."

We have bought a home near Arlington Village and the low-flying planes passing overhead continually night and day make life almost unbearable. The roar is deafening especially on some nights when no sleep is possible until after 1:30 a. m. Is there no law to protect the tired city workers from these air bulldozers?

Many years ago "mufflers" or "silencers" were invented for the automobile engine. Cannot something of the sort be invented for the airplane? Meanwhile could not airways be established over the Potomac for planes when in the vicinity of metropolitan Washington so that residential areas will have some peace at least during the night hours.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Vandenberg's Handiwork

THE AUTHORSHIP of diplomatic notes is never made known. But in the stiff note sent by the American Government to Moscow the phrases of one of the authors should be readily identified by those familiar with his skill in using forceful language.

Childs

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg has long had a close and friendly working relationship with Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett. Scarcely had Vandenberg returned from the GOP Convention in Philadelphia before the two sat down together to frame what may prove to be one of the key documents of American foreign policy.

Leaks deliberately arranged by the Foreign Offices in Paris and London disclosed that in the opinion of the French and British governments the note was "provocative" and that it was toned down on their insistence. Consequently, some of the warmer Vandenbergian phrases may have been eliminated.

This was not, of course, a new role for the Senator from Michigan. It was a continuation of the bipartisan foreign policy that he has made a working reality since the war's end.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey claims to have initiated the bipartisan policy in his 1944 presidential campaign. While Dewey may have technical priority for this claim, he was acting under wartime compulsion. Since the lid has been off since the end of the war, it has been Vandenberg who has done the tough, day-to-day spadework.

THE SENATOR is in agreement with the Administration's firm stand on Berlin. He believes, along with Secretary of State Marshall and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, that to be forced out under Soviet pressure would be to weaken the United States position in Europe irreparably.

Along with almost everyone else, Vandenberg assumes that the present crisis will be resolved short of war. That is one of the phenomena of this curious summer. Everyone goes about business, pleasure, and politics as usual. Yet if you take the headlines from Berlin at their face value, American policy-makers are walking on the edge of an abyss that drops down to the most terrifying depths.

The key, it seems to me, lies in a psychological factor that is shared by the United States and the Soviet Union. It is the belief that, since neither country wants war, each side can carry the challenge a long way.

There is a very grave danger in this attitude. Both sides may be emboldened to go so far that there can be no turning back short of armed conflict. If it were not for the conviction that each side will do everything to avoid a war, the controversy might not be pushed to such lengths.

Vandenberg has left for his home town, Grand Rapids. He will stay there until the end of July and then he and Mrs. Vandenberg hope to go on a Scandinavian cruise. They are planning now to leave for Great Britain about August 1 and join a holiday cruise there.

The Senator needs a vacation and most Americans would agree that he richly deserves one. The session of Congress that ended on the eve of the Republican Convention saw him in the middle of one struggle after another for the great objectives of a responsible foreign policy.

His final success was in the adoption of the resolution preparing the way for far-reaching cooperation with western Europe. First steps are now being taken in conferences with western European Ambassadors, looking to political and military support within the framework of the United Nations. At the same time, in a last-minute appearance before the Senate Appropriations Committee, Vandenberg saved the ERP appropriation from Representative John Taber's meat ax.

Then came the GOP Convention. That the party did not turn to him in the midst of a deadlock was a source of immense relief to Vandenberg.

What his role will be in January, assuming Dewey's election, is still a matter of speculation. Since Philadelphia, he has had several long talks with John Foster Dulles who, it has been assumed, would be Dewey's Secretary of State. But it is possible that Dulles, a reserved and retiring man, will not want this difficult and conspicuous position.

Vandenberg has repeatedly said that he would prefer to stay in the Senate, where his position as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee makes him a key figure in policy-making. Certainly, millions of independent voters, who would have chosen Vandenberg over Dewey, will regard him today as the leader of his party in the foreign field and they will be disappointed if Dewey does not work with him.

voters would favor the civil rights guarantees.

When Williams declared white people "brutalize every decent instinct" when they keep the Negro in an inferior position, Sparks declared the witness was going "a little too far."

The former Governor said "Tom Dewey put a fair employment practice law into effect in New York so you ought to be for him."

Last day questioning of witnesses pointed up a decision to hit vigorously at the record of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress—again following the pitch set by the President on his coast-to-coast tour.

One of the last witnesses was AFL President William Green. Prodded by Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and former Senator Hugh Mitchell of Washington, Green said he is keeping a "score card" on the records of members and added:

"I could be arrested for what I think of the last Congress."

The select group which will spell out the first draft of the platform, and clear it with the White House, will be headed by Resolutions Chairman Francis J. Myers (Pa.).

Other members were not immediately announced, but it was learned that Solicitor General Philip S. Perlman (Md.) Senator Scott Lucas (Ill.) and former Gov. Dan Moody of Texas will fill three more of the key posts.

The presence of Myers, Perlman and Lucas on the group assures that the first blueprint of the platform will be written by Truman men.

Moody, who with three other Dixie members of the larger resolutions group has opposed anything stronger than the 1944 Civil Rights declaration, will be the South's lone representative on the small drafting unit.

Closed door sessions will continue over the weekend before the platform's formal unveiling in the full committee early next week.

Heard By Committee

Before winding up the testimony, the committee heard:

1. Harold L. Ickes, former Secretary of Interior, demand a clear party stand backing up the decision of the Supreme Court that the Federal Government has paramount interest in the oil-rich coastal tidelands claimed by adjacent States. Ickes proposed that royalties from tideland oil wells be paid into a Federal aid to education fund, "for the good of all the States."

2. Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of the American Zionist Emergency Council, urge a plank for repeal of the Palestine arms embargo, saying that now fighting has been resumed, the new state of Israel can defend itself "only if the embargo on arms is modified." Leon Henderson, representing Americans for Democratic Action, also called for repeal of the arms embargo, and asked in addition that the Arabs be declared the aggressors in the Holy Land conflict.

3. Bernice B. Heffner, acting president of the American Federation of Government Employes, called for an immediate increase in the base pay of all Federal workers to meet rising costs and optional Civil Service retirement on full annuity regardless of age after 30 years of service.

Mrs. Heffner supplemented a Government worker plea by AFL President Green.

Federal Employe Planks

Green urged these Federal employe planks among others:

Revision of 1923 Classification Act salary schedules and elimination of ceiling in pay and overtime.

Appropriation for all Federal agencies commensurate with their work load to insure security on the job of employes doing satisfactory work.

Greater participation in personnel matters by employes and employe organizations, with union representation on wage boards.

But Green chiefly plugged for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, another issue that has the resolutions committee tied in knots. A majority of the Democrats in both houses voted to override the President's veto of the labor law.

The AFL leader predicted that if Republicans are returned to control of both Houses in November "we will get a worse Taft-Hartley act than we have now."

In recommending the Government take over all tidelands and set up oil reserves to support educational institutions, Ickes tangled with former Governor Moody, of Texas.

Moody maintained the State of Texas did a better job of operating oil lands than the Federal Government.

Ickes, however, charged there has been "reckless waste" of tideland oil both in Texas and California. He said that unless Federal rights are maintained "these rich gifts will go to the oil companies."

Solicitor General Perlman, Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio and Representative Emmanuel Celler of New York sided with Ickes.

Tidelands Oil

Green attacked the Republican platform declaration for restoration of tidelands oil to the States as a "special interest plank." He said all 48 States would benefit under Ickes' plan. The five-man subcommittee was known to be considering such a plank as an offset to the lukewarm GOP stand on Federal aid to education.

The former Cabinet officer, who resigned in a row with Truman, said one oil man told him there is more oil off both coasts than on the whole continent.

Ickes said he would go beyond the 3-mile limit to drill for it, assign the proceeds first to the schools and any excess could be used for Social Security, Indian welfare and road-building costs.

Truman on 1st Ballot Seems Sure After Eisenhower's 'No' time to fall off with it, still was not heard from.

But tonight James Roosevelt, a leader in the Eisenhower movement, notified the Eisenhower headquarters by phone from Pittsburgh that "I am now convinced that General Eisenhowever would not serve if nominated." En route here with the California delegation, he said his actions now will be guided by the wishes of the Californians, who will caucus at 2 p. m. EDT.) Saturday.

In his statement Roosevelt said that "because of the personal and confidential telegram I have just received from General Eisenhower I am now convinced he would not serve if nominated by the Democratic Party.

"The whole purpose of my effort has been to give the people of the United States the opportunity of voting for this ablest and most experienced man and the man who repeatedly has been shown to be the choice of the people themselves."

Leon Henderson, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, tried to launch a boom for Justice Douglas, at a press conference late this afternoon. He called for a free convention. He thought the party would have to nominate Douglas or "invite disaster."

Henderson had hardly concluded his indorsement when Douglas, in a telephone interview from Wallowa, Oreg., told the Philadelphia Inquirer, "I am not a candidate, never have been, and don't plan to be a candidate." He said he had "no comment" when asked whether he would accept the nomination if drafted. But he termed a "more realistic question" and inquiry whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination as Mr. Truman's running mate.

Truman on First Ballot

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath cheerfully told newspapermen that President Truman would be renominated on Wednesday, might make his acceptance speech on Thursday. He predicted that the only opposition on the first roll call would be the complimentary votes for favorite sons. It seemed a safe prediction tonight.

Senator McGrath disclosed the National Committee's reaction to General Eisenhower's thumping "no" when he met reporters at 4:30 in a press conference at the Bellevue-Stratford. He walked into the camera-jammed press work room in a cheerful mood.

"Looks like Hollywood stuff—you'd think Jimmie had arrived," he quipped, as he stepped around a clutter of newsreel cameras and microphones.

Beaming at the response to his wisecrack at James Roosevelt, he then introduced Sam Morris, National Committeeman of Arizona, and disclosed that Morris would yield to Missouri for Truman's nomination.

What did he think of the Eisenhower statement?

He thought it proved that "no" meant the same thing even though it is spelled differently in different languages.

Did the general's "no" strengthen his belief that Eisenhower's name would not go before the convention.

It hadn't changed his view. He never did think the general would let his name go before the convention.

Was Administration support indicated by Attorney General Tom Clark's statement that Senator Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming was out in front for Vice President?

No, it didn't indicate that. The Administration was not supporting anyone for Vice President. It would be a free convention, no letters (such as those President Roosevelt sent to Chicago) have been written. No one has had a "nod" or a "nudge." No "nudges" are expected.

What did McGrath think of Mr. Arvey's statement and Mr. O'Dwyer's statement supporting Truman. He was happy to have the support of "these two great leaders of large and important States."

Had he heard from Hague?

No, and he didn't expect to hear from him. But he would be glad to see him and hoped to have a call from him on his arrival here.

He said the same went for other leaders arriving in Philadelphia. What was he told by members of the Virginia delegation?

That Truman would carry the State in November, if nominated.

Who told him that?

G. Fred Switzer, Harrisonburg, Va., newly elected State chairman.

Had he made an estimate of the Truman vote?

He had not, but he believed the President would get all the votes cast except those given favorite sons, and committed under law by some Southern States.

Anti-Truman Caucus

Did he expect the anti-Truman caucus to be held Saturday?

He hadn't heard that it was dropped, but he felt that the position of New York and Illinois leaders would cause others to withdraw from the caucus.

Did he know if the Eisenhower statement had changed the plans of Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina to bring before the National Committee a resolution calling upon President Truman to withdraw?

He hadn't been in touch with Senator Johnson. He thought it would now be an act of direct disrespect to present Eisenhower's name to the convention.

President Truman's nomination probably will come Wednesday, in McGrath's opinion. The vice presidential nomination will be made Thursday.

Did McGrath think the "stop Truman" drive was on a detour.

He thought it now was in "a rut on a detour."

Was Virginia backing out of the "stop Truman" front in view of the forecast that Truman would carry the State?

That wasn't discussed. All he got from Virginia was that Truman would carry the State if nominated.

What States did McGrath think would walk out if the platform committee wrote a strong civil rights plank?

He did not expect any States to walk out.

What was going to happen in Alabama? (It is bound against Truman.)

They could refrain from voting, or cast their vote for a favorite son.

Did he think he would get a platform that the Southerners would not walk out on?

He hoped to get one that would be acceptable to all elements of the party. He expected the drafting committee to put together a platform that would meet with general approval.

Did he expect Eisenhower's name to go before the convention?

He thought it would be discourteous for anyone to put him in nomination now.

Leon Henderson took over where McGrath left off in the second of the "chain" press conferences. He issued a prepared statement. It said Americans for Democratic Action had fought for a "free and open democratic convention at which the delegates could select a nominee who met the great requirements for American leadership in this era."

"We are not quitting," said Henderson.

He said Truman "has been repudiated."

In the light of Eisenhower's statements A. D. A. was supporting Justice Douglas.

"Officialdom" Blamed

He accused "Democratic Party officialdom" of "having helped to persuade General Eisenhower to reject the draft." He forecast they would try the same thing on Douglas.

A. D. A. thought this proved "Truman cannot be confident of victory unless he has eliminated all potential opposition before the convention begins."

A. D. A. has no assurances of any kind from Douglas. It has asked for none. But they are "convinced that he will accept a draft if the delegates are given the chance to call on him."

Henderson promised that Douglas' name will be put before the convention.

While seeing little difference between Truman policies and A. D. A.'s program, Henderson thought A. D. A. was opposed to the President because of his appointments and his ineffective leadership.

Where would A. D. A. go if Truman were nominated?

That said Henderson, would be decided next August. It won't go for Wallace. He can't say it won't go for Dewey. It has no bosses to speak for it and say where it will go.

Senator Pepper followed Henderson. He stepped before a battery of microphones and newsreel cameras, with two telegrams in his hand.

"I have in my hand," he said," a telegram I received from General Eisenhower which has finally and firmly closed the door on the possibility of giving him the Democratic nomination. I therefore regard General Eisenhower as definitely out of the picture."

Pepper hoped the party would pick "the best man" left. He thought the choice would be determined by the convention itself and not in a smoke-filled room.

Did he have a choice?

No—not now that Eisenhower was out of it.

Would he attend the "anti-Truman caucus" Saturday? If held, he would attend.

Eisenhower Telegram

Pepper read the Eisenhower telegram giving the following text:

"The public press reports that you may be considering, in spite of my recent statements, the presentation of my name to the Democratic National Convention for nomination to the office of the Presidency. If these reports are correct, I respectfully but earnestly request and urge that you drop such intentions because I assure you that to carry it out would result in acute embarrassment to all concerned as well as confusion in the minds of many of our citizens.

"My decision, which has twice been made public, is based upon my sincere conviction as to the best interests of our country. Under no conditions will I be in the position of repudiating or even seeming to swerve from the letter or spirit of my prior announcements. I will not violate my own conception of my appropriate sphere of duty. No matter under what terms, conditions or premises a proposal might be couched, I would refuse to accept the nomination. I keenly realize that your reported statements not only do me high personal honor, but imply the greatest possible confidence in me. I venture to invoke the aid of that confidence in asking you to accept my refusal as final and complete, which it most emphatically is."

Then the Senator read his telegram replying to the Eisenhower statement. In it he said that he "reluctantly" bowed to the General's wishes; that it was and still is his opinion that "the American people have a confidence in your leadership and wanted you as their next President."

"In compliance with your request," Pepper wired the General, "I will not submit your nomination."

Senator Pepper was asked if he thought it would be discourteous to put the General in nomination now.

He didn't think it would be discourteous but he thought it would be useless.

South Carolina Governor Asks Truman to Quit

New York, July 9 (AP).—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina tonight appealed to President Truman to withdraw from the presidential race.

He asked Mr. Truman to "cooperate in nominating a ticket which will enable the Democratic Party to win."

His statement listed no alternative nominee. Thurmond stated flatly, however, that if Mr. Truman is nominated, South Carolina will not support him.

Governor Says Arkansas Will Combat Truman

St. Louis, July 9 (AP).—Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas said today that delegates from that State to the Democratic National Convention will "fight to the last ditch" to prevent the nomination of President Truman.

"Nominating Mr. Truman would be the worst thing that ever happened to the Democratic Party," Laney told newsmen.

Women Seek Equality Plank Of Democrats

Philadelphia, July 9 (AP).—They fought another round today in the battle of the sexes, and gentlemen—I mean, you brutes—you took an awful beating.

Eighteen militant ladies, members of the National Woman's Party, appeared before the Democratic Convention resolutions committee. Their purpose was to get an "equal rights" plank into the party platform now in process of construction. Rolling up in relays, they talked for 66 minutes.

And they had nothing good to say for that half of the human race that wears suspenders.

For example, do you know why, in some places, women are not permitted to work after 10 o'clock at night in an ice cream parlor?

The question was asked by Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, leader of the party. She waited in vain for an answer from the committee.

"I'll tell you why," said Mrs. Miller. "Because after 10 o'clock the tips are bigger, that's why."

She paused a moment to let this sink in. Then she added, "that's why the men are so chivalrous . . . won't let women work late at night . . . so-called protective legislation for women." Mrs. Miller sniffed. "It's because the tips are bigger."

Mrs. Miller then summoned the other 17 ladies.

The majority of them seemed to be professional women, doctors, lawyers, politicans. No housewives appeared. They had grey or greying hair. And they wore floppy hats, print dresses and glittering spectacles. One of them declined to sit before the microphone, asserting, "everybody can hear what I'm going to say."

Briefly, their argument is that discrimination against women is practiced generally in business. They proposed to end this by legislation.

Among their opponents on the issue is the C.I.O., which argues that the special privileges for women, now guaranteed by many laws, will be lost if equality on all points is written into the statues.

One-Man Gang For Ike Sees Boom Bust

By a Washington Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 9.—In the whole city of Philadelphia there was only one remaining splutter of the Eisenhower boom tonight. That was in the Philadelphia Stock Exchange building, just across Walnut st. from the Bellevue Stratford Hotel. There in an old office suite, Joe Nachman, a Philadelphia shirt manufacturer, still had the flag flying.

A great banner proclaimed: "Eisenhower for President. This man portrays our ideas and hopes for the world of tomorrow."

At the curb in front of the headquarters, a bright red jeep, like all the thousands of jeeps that carried General "Ike" and his soldiers to battlefronts, carried on a political role as a sound truck. From a rigged-up amplifier came a recording of a chorus singing:

"We want Ike for President."

Inside the entrance a large man on high stilts handed out Eisenhower campaign buttons. As the boom deflated, the stilt-man gave up and sat on a desk. He looked very hot.

Small boys filtered in and out, picking up campaign buttons, folders and reprints of the Eisenhower campaign song.

Joe Nachman watched the boom bust. He thought the Eisenhower telegram was "unfortunate." He couldn't understand it. How could the general duck a draft? Nobody else could. The country needed him.

All the campaign staff drifted off.

Three small boys took over the receptionist desk. A 10-year-old red-head in a striped tee shirt was still for Eisenhower. A small Negro boy, perched on a desk corner, thought he would be nominated somehow. The third little boy just looked sad and said nothing. It was clear they thought the future very dark.

The last three supporters of the Eisenhower boom took the general's telegram awful hard.

You couldn't help but wish the general had explained it all to them by telephone. The older politicians on the south side of Walnut st. may have had mixed motives in urging the Eisenhower support. But these three were personal followers. They deserved something more personal than a telegram. But that's the way it is in politics. People get hurt when booms bust. Sometimes even 10-year-old boys get hurt.

Voters Give Reactions to Way GOP Ran Its Convention

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 9.—If the Democratic Party is anxious to please the general public during next week's nominating convention it can get some valuable tips from voter reactions to the way the Republicans ran their convention two weeks ago.

A Nation-wide Institute survey among representative voters of varying political affiliations suggests that future convention managers wishing to escape unfavorable public opinion might consider these steps:

1. Cut the length of the convention, or try to eliminate all appearances of wasted time and confusion.

2. Limit the time allotted to all speakers, but most particularly the keynoter and the nominators.

3. Avoid appearances of extravagance and wasteful spending of money.

4. Advise speakers to spend less time on attacking other parties and more time on the constructive proposals of their own party, and avoid tiresome repetition in speeches.

5. Eliminate long stretches when apparently no important business is being conducted by the delegates, and avoid appearance of behind-the-scene activities.

These tips are based on the things that voters say they liked least about the convention proceedings after reading about them in newspapers or listening to radio and television broadcasts. The most vehement comments of critical voters were saved for the length and content of the speeches.

Large numbers of American voters took advantage of the unusually heavy coverage of the convention to keep informed on what was happening in Philadelphia. Voters in today's survey were asked:

Did you happen to read about the convention?

Yes, most of it	20%
Yes, only part of it	44
No, not any of it	36

The percentage of voters throughout the country witnessing parts of the convention on television, of course, includes those watching in taverns, hotels, restaurants and other public places, as well as in homes.

Did you happen to listen on the radio to the Republican Party Convention in Philadelphia?

Yes, most of it	24%
Yes, only part of it	50
No, not any part of it	26

Did you happen to see any part of it on television?

Yes	4%

Virginia Democrats Lose Hope For Stop-Truman Caucus Coup

Richmond, Va., July 9 (AP).—Virginia Democrats were faced with the "if you can't lick 'em, jine 'em" solution today.

The heavy accents that General Eisenhower put on his final "no" convinced even those leaders of the dominant State organization who were hoping against hope that some way would be uncovered to stop the nomination of President Truman next week.

There was no comment for public consumption, but privately the politicians conceded they were licked before the stop-Truman caucus set for Saturday night even had a chance to map strategy.

They accepted the part about being "licked." The "jining" of the Truman forces, though, was another matter. The dominant wing of the State party still stood ready to line up with any stop-Truman move, but they didn't see any hope of a serious one materializing.

The State convention here last week instructed the delegates to Philadelphia to vote for Eisenhower. But in view of the general's firm "no" today it was expected that Virginia's 26 votes may be tossed in complimentary fashion to Senator Barkley or some other acceptable figure if the first roll call is inconclusive at the time Virginia is called.

Governor Tuck had no comment about the likely course of the Virginia delegation.

He indicated, however, that he still planned to attend the stop-Truman caucus—if, indeed, such a caucus materializes.

Tuck will leave Richmond Saturday morning. He will be accompanied by E. R. Combs, who recently stepped down as Virginia's national committeeman.

The President's Calling List

President Truman saw the following White House callers yesterday:

GEICO Vote Slated on 66% Capital Boost

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of Government Employees Insurance Co. will vote at a special meeting Wednesday on a proposal to increase authorized capital from $300,000 to $500,000.

Goodwin

Leo Goodwin, sr., GEICO president, said yesterday the plan, approved by the board of directors, contemplates the declaration of a stock dividend of 50,000 shares of the company's $4 par stock.

If stockholders approve, the $300,000 capital, increase will be accomplished by transferring that amount from surplus. Goodwin reported that GEICO surplus as of May 31 was $1,067,082 and total assets were $5,659,897. Capitalization of the Washington firm now consists of 75,000 shares of $4 par stock, which will be boosted to 125,000 shares, upon approval by stockholders.

The 66 2-3 per cent capital increase, Goodwin explained, will allow the fast-expanding company to obtain a license in certain States where an insurance firm needs $500,000 minimum capital to operate.

GEICO, until March of this year, was owned by the Rhea family and Goodwin. In March the Rhea interests sold their GEICO stock to a group consisting of Graham-Newman Corp., a New York investment trust; David L. Kreeger, Washington attorney, and E. R. Jones & Co., Baltimore securities dealer. To meet Securities and Exchange Commission regulations, Graham-Newman Corp. distributed its GEICO stock to its stockholders.

This was accomplished by a splitup of GEICO stock, 25 for 1. The 3000 shares of outstanding $100 par stock were divided into 75,000 shares of $4 par stock. In turn, Graham-Newman stockholders received 1.08 shares of GEICO stock for each G-N share. As a result, GEICO now has 263 stockholders and its stock is traded over-the-counter. It was intimated that listing of the stock on an established exchange is likely.

WILL RETURN HERE: Resignation of Donald D. Hogate as director of public relations of the New York Stock Exchange, effective July 16, was announced yesterday. Hogate will re-enter public relations work in Washington, the announcement said. At one time Hogate was associated with the Washington offices of McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. and General Motors.

ODD LOTS: Merger of Allied Oil Co., Inc., Cleveland, into Ashland Oil & Refining Co. will be voted on by stockholders of the latter at a meeting July 30 . . . Firestone, falling in line with other tire makers, has raised prices 5 to 7½ per cent . . . Tucker Corp. has closed its Toronto offices because of "prohibitive" taxes on importation of autos . . . Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. and subsidiaries have asked ICC authority to effect a general readjustment of outstanding obligations . . . General Electric Co. will redeem all bonds held by the G. E. Employes Securities Corp. at a premium of 15 per cent above face value.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in the week ended July 3 showed a spectacular jump, but figures sometimes are misleading. For instance, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday that local sales in the July 3 week jumped 48 per cent as compared with the same 1947 week. The comparison, of course, was distorted because the July 4 holiday was included last year, but not this year. In other words, a six-day week was compared with a five-day week last year.

CHAIRMEN NAMED: Charles F. Suter, president of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, yesterday announced committee chairmen appointments as follows: Leopold V. Freudberg, cooperation with attorneys and trust officers; Joseph A. Marr, business practices; W. Elwood Baker, education; Raymond A. DuFour, law and legislation; Joseph S. Baldwin, membership; Charles P. Rice, programs; William J. McCausland, publicity and bulletins; Mrs. Thelma Davenport, women underwriters; W. Neal McCord, 1950 national convention.

DIVIDENDS: Directors of McLachlen Banking Corp. have voted an extra dividend of 3 per cent in addition to the semiannual dividend of 3 per cent on capital stock, payable July 15 to stock of record July 8. The same 5 per cent total was declared last year at this time. Directors also authorized the transfer of $50,000 to surplus, raising that account to $450,000.

EARNINGS: General Tire & Rubber Co. reported net earnings of $1,713,367 for six months ended May 31, equal to $2.46 a common share, compared with $2,650,912 or $4.06 a share in same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Mother Who Beat Girl, 5, Released

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson changed his mind yesterday about jailing a young mother in a child-beating case, deciding that a year's probation would serve justice just as well.

As a result, a 38-year-old waitress, her jail sentence suspended, was joyously reunited with the 5-year-old daughter she had been convicted of beating black and blue.

The woman, Mrs. Anna Majerska, 1635 Q st. nw., sobbed as she waited for the child, Janet, outside the Children's Receiving Home. The child was placed in the home Wednesday after her mother was sentenced to 10 days' imprisonment and fined $50 for beating her.

Janet was garbed in a simple white dress with red polka dots furnished by the Home. When her mother arrived, she was too overjoyed to wait for the home to return her clothing.

After a few short, inaudible whisperings, mother and daughter were driven home by Mrs. Majerska's attorney, Harry Ahern.

Earlier in the day, the woman, her face waxen with grief, had to be helped by attendants into Neilson's court to hear Ahearn plead for her release after two days' imprisonment.

"This woman has suffered enough," Ahern said. "The ends of justice have been met . . ."

Judge Neilson interrupted the lawyer's appeal: "Numerous people have called or written me concerning this case, a very few of them seeking sympathy for this woman but most of them protesting the leniency that this court showed her . . .," the judge said.

Read Police Records

"The court has read the records of the police department . . . in the case and the public does not know what was in them.

"I will not be swayed by minority pleas . . . the child is entitled to the protection of the court from this brutal and malicious assault. I am not going to be influenced by public clamor. This child was beaten with a stick and not with a hand."

Neilson then accused the press of not having presented all the facts, saying if reporters had been present at the first hearing, the public would have known the whole story and would "have realized the court was indeed lenient."

The judge then ordered suspension of the remaining eight days of the jail term and of the fine and placed Mrs. Majerska on probation for one year.

The judge explained later that the probation move was not a matter of leniency but was done to have the woman placed under surveillance of probation authorities for a year rather than merely spend 10 days in jail.

Neilson told reporters later that neighbors had complained of other assaults on the child. He said: "Police records show the woman had beaten the child numerous times and had even tied her to a bed."

Emergency Ford Pay Talk Called by UAW

Detroit, July 9 (AP).—An "emergency" conference of union delegates from Ford Motor Co. plants across the country was called by the CIO United Auto Workers today for Thursday.

That day has been set by the UAW as the deadline for reaching a new wage agreement under a reopening clause in the two-year Ford ontract.

Kenneth Bannon, UAW national Ford director, said any decision on setting a strike date at Ford would be left to the delegates.

so clear that he was able to describe its colors, blue and white, and remember that there was a woven wooden basket on the handlebars.

It was then, James said, that the "impulse" gripped him. He said he tried to give the impression he was walking past the girl.

Pulled Knife From Belt

He pulled the knife with the 10-inch narrow blade from his belt and slashed at the child's throat. He said he thrust once at the left side of her throat and then again at the right side of her throat. The girl collapsed in the underbrush, James said.

The Barrett-Raspberry statement said that James told them he experienced sexual gratification at the moment of the kill.

James said he heard someone approaching and that he huddled by the girl's body while a man and a woman passed by on the path. They were so close, he told police, he could have reached out and touched them.

The janitor told police he had been pretending the knife, which he had tucked into his belt and hidden under his trousers leg and an overhanging shirt, was a saber.

He said he wiped the knife clean with a handkerchief which he later threw away "near the tracks," possibly the streetcar tracks on 14th st. nw.

He was hot and perspiring heavily, he said, so when he found a stream nearby he stopped and bathed his face.

He said when he left the park "a couple of people" were walking behind him. It was then, he said, he realized what he had done and "felt bad."

James said he made his way back to the freight yards and stole a ride back to Baltimore, arriving there at about 8 p. m.

Continuing, he related that after a cup of coffee in a restaurant he went to his home in northwest Baltimore where he lived with his mother and sister.

Then, he said, he decided to hide the knife, so he left the house and walked about a mile to a remote spot in the woods where he covered the knife with rocks and placed twigs upon the rocks so he could identify the spot.

The following morning, James told police, he returned to the spot and recovered the knife, then returned with it to his house and hid it beneath his mattress.

He also told police that after killing the Brill girl in Baltimore Tuesday with the same knife he again returned the weapon to the same hiding spot and covered it with rocks.

Police Recover Knife

It was there that Baltimore police found the knife, described as rusty and dirty, when James was taken to the murder scene.

Although he admitted the murder of Carol Bardwell, police said, James steadfastly denied that he had raped her. The coroner's office here announced several days after Carol's murder that a chemical analysis showed she had been raped.

The alert memories of two Baltimore policemen—one a captain and the other a police department mechanic—tripped up James. He was picked up six hours after the slaying of the Brill girl in Baltimore on the tip of Milton R. Elmore, the mechanic who formerly was a foot patrolman.

Remembered 1940 Crimes

Elmore remembered that James had been arrested in 1940 after a series of knife attacks and assaults on white women in northwest Baltimore.

He probably would have been released after routine questioning. Police had nothing on him. He was just one of many men pulled in by the police dragnet.

However, Capt. Clarence O. Forrester, head of the Baltimore police motorcycle division, arrived at the station where James was being held. The captain's sharp eyes spotted a leather thong and rosary around James's neck.

Forrester recalled that a 38-old housewife who had been raped in Baltimore June 15 had told police her attacker wore rosary beads around his neck.

"You've got nothing on me," police said the suspect remarked.

But after brief questioning he admitted the rape of the housewife. He continued to deny he had anything to do with the murder of Marsha Brill.

Taken to Scene of Crime

The admission of the rape was the wedge police needed. They bombarded him with questions. Thursday afternoon James, handcuffed to two policemen, was taken to the spot where the Brill girl had been fatally stabbed.

Here his defense dropped completely. He admitted stabbing Marsha. He led police to the place he had cached the death weapon.

He was booked on charges of murder and rape by Baltimore police at 7:30 p. m. that night and an hour and a half later three Washington detectives began questioning him about the Carol Bardwell slaying.

He denied that at first, too, but after four hours admitted the crime and recited it in detail.

Detectives were surprised by the keen memory of the prisoner. He described in detail the area in which the Bardwell girl was slain. He remembered that her hair had been done up in pigtails.

He described perfectly the girl's bicycle, a description never published in the newspapers, police said.

Washington detectives said James told them he had lived in Washington for about a month in 1939, but could not remember the address.

Clothes Being Analyzed

Police said James told them he was wearing light tan trousers and a sport shirt the day he visited Washington and killed Carol Bardwell. Baltimore police obtained the clothes at the janitor's home and are sending them to Washington for study.

During his questioning, James several times remarked that since childhood he has suffered "spells." When he was tried in 1940, defense testimony contended that he had been struck on the head with a club as a boy and since had suffered "mental blackouts" periodically.

FBI records show James, a native of Baltimore, was arrested June 2, 1940, by Baltimore police and charged with assault, robbery and burglary. On June 27, 1940, while free on bond, he was rearrested and charged with robbery, assault to rob and assault to murder.

Police said the charges involved complaints of 15 women in the northwest Baltimore area who had been assaulted and attacked with knives.

James was sentenced to serve two 10-year concurrent terms in the Maryland State Penitentiary in Baltimore. On December 10, 1943, he was transferred to the State penal farm at Roxbury, Md., and was given a Christmas parole last December 22.

Since his parole he had been employed as a janitor and general handyman at a northwest Baltimore apartment house. It was while cleaning one of the apartments, he told police, that he found the knife later used to end the lives of the two girls.

An oral confession was obtained by Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives; Lieut. Edgar E. Scott and Detective Sergt. John L. Sullivan at about 1 a. m. yesterday.

The trio returned to Baltimore later yesterday with Capt. Raspberry and Detective Sergt. Walter Vogelsang, a transcription specialist, to obtain a written statement.

It was reported the confession and other data on the case will be turned over to the Office of the U. S. Attorney here for any further action. This may mean an indictment by a District grand jury.

However, Baltimore has first claim on the prisoner and James already has been indicted there for the murder of Marsha Brill.

He will be arraigned in Baltimore Criminal Court Tuesday before Judge John T. Tucker. James is now confined in the Baltimore City Jail.

The solution of the Bardwell murder case eased the anxiety of many parents in the neighborhood near Rock Creek Park where Carol lived.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bardwell, of 1635 Webster st. nw. Her father is a Federal Trade Commission examiner.

Search for Carol Begins

When she had not returned home by 6:30 p. m., her father and neighbors began searching for her. Two strollers in the park discovered Carol's body at about 7:50 p. m. It lay under a fallen tree about 25 feet off a path leading from 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw., which is about six blocks from the Bardwell home.

After an autopsy, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald announced the girl's throat had been slashed from ear to ear. He said her jugular vein had been severed, but not her windpipe.

Police investigation was hampered by a dearth of clews. More than a 100 men were taken into police headquarters for questioning.

But it was in nearby Baltimore that the first big break developed. The murder of Marsha Brill was almost a carbon copy of the Washington slaying.

Both girls were 11. Both were out bicycling when they were killed. Both were slain with knives. And both were attacked in lonely, out-of-the-way spots.

Major Barrett announced before James' confession he was "convinced" that the same man had killed both girls.

Mechanical Engineers Unit Honors Marshall

Secretary of State George C. Marshall received a certificate of honorary membership in the Society of Mechanical Engineers yesterday, in a ceremony at the Statler Hotel.

Secretary Marshall was cited by the society for outstanding services as Chief of Staff and General of the Army, and as present Secretary of State. E. G. Bailey, New York engineer and president of the ASME made the presentation.

Summer Schools Gain in Popularity

To many of the District's youngsters summertime means vacation Bible school time.

Interest in this phase of summer church work has hit a new high this year, according to Mrs. Josephine H. Kyles, assistant executive secretary and director of children's work of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Summer church schools began in June and will continue until September, she said.

A full report on the number of schools and the number who attend them will not be available until September, Mrs. Kyles stated.

Schools Show Increase

Last summer there were nearly 300 such schools with an attendance of about 20,000. The previous year there were only 200 schools with 10,000 students.

Mrs. Kyles is confident that additional gains in schools, attendance and projects will be shown.

Many churches are combining their resources this year to conduct longer and better schools, Mrs. Kyles said. She noted that some are conducted for all children in the community, regardless of their religion or race.

Mrs. Kyles feels that vacation religious education this year is showing less denominational spirit and a greater tendency toward interest in the community at large. Workers are teaching children cooperation and fellowship in addition to religious doctrine, she said.

Programs Expanded

Summer programs have also been expanded to provide activities for the afternoon and evening hours, and for all ages, from nursery tots through teen-agers.

Schools are planned and run by individual churches or denominations, but the federation also assists in the program, Mrs. Kyles said.

During the spring a training school was conducted for teachers and later there was a clinic devoted entirely to the problems of vacation church schools.

The federation office at 1751 N st. nw. furnishes audio-visual aids for vacation school projects for a slight fee. These may range from nature film strips to pictures of the life of Christ by great artists.

The demand for these has been so great this summer that the federation has had trouble meeting it, Mrs. Kyles said.

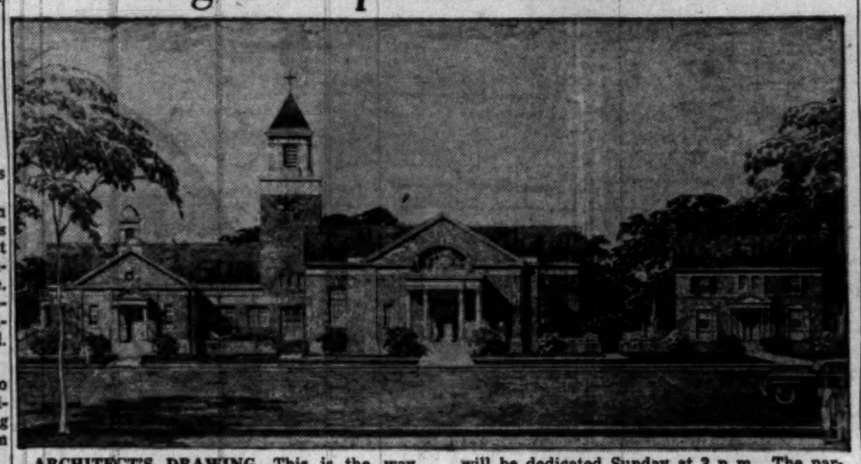
New Arlington Chapel to Be Dedicated



ARCHITECT'S DRAWING—This is the way the Evangelical United Brethren Church project at North Glebe rd. and 25th st., Arlington, Va., will look when completed. The chapel (left) will be dedicated Sunday at 3 p. m. The parsonage (right) was dedicated in January. Two central units will be completed in the future, according to plans

Dedication Scheduled Sunday For United Brethren Chapel

The chapel of the new Arlington Evangelical United Brethren Church, North Glebe rd., at 25th st., Arlington, will be dedicated at ceremonies at 3 p. m. Sunday.

Bishop J. Balmer Showers of the eastern area of the Evangelical United Brethren Church will deliver the dedication sermon and denominational leaders will attend the services.

The chapel is the second of four units of the church to be completed since it was organized early in 1947. Ground for the first permanent edifice of the church was broken last June. A new parsonage was dedicated early in January.

Services were held in the parsonage and later in the basement of the chapel. Last week the congregation, which now numbers more than 80, met in the chapel for the first time.

The present unit will contain a temporary church office and a kitchen, rooms for church school and recreational facilities.

Still to be completed are the main sanctuary unit and an educational unit, which will contain a gymnasium, assembly room, stage and additional recreational facilities.

The completed church is expected to cost about $250,000, according to the Rev. George B. Riley, pastor. H. F. Lane is chairman of the building committee and Dr. A. L. Maiden is chairman of the board of trustees of the church.

Cruise Scheduled By Youth Society

The Pentecostal Holiness Youth Society will sponsor a moonlight cruise at 8 p. m. July 12 on the S.S. Potomac. The cruise is for the benefit of the new church being erected by the denomination at 6th st. and Maryland ave. ne. Servicemen from the Washington area and patients at local military and Naval hospitals have been invited.

Two Religious Forums Set for Franklin Park

Two religious forums have been scheduled for Sunday in Franklin Park, 14th and K sts nw., by Washington Catholic Evidence Guild.

From 3 to 5 p. m. seminarians from Atonement College will conduct a forum. From 7:30 until 9:30 p. m. a second forum will take place. The Right Rev. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, 10th between F and G sts. nw., will preside as honorary chairman.

Sixth July Yule Service To Be Held

Christmas comes but once a year, except at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., where the yule holiday also falls on the second Sunday in July.

The annual "Christmas-in-July" service at Calvary will be observed Sunday at 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, minister of the church, will conduct the sixth annual Christmas service.

Funds collected at the service this year will be used to send new missionaries to the field, according to church workers. The unique summer service was originated when it was necessary to send gifts to missionaries in the summer in order for them to reach their destination by Christmas.

Later funds were used to establish a church in Haiti, and last year a room at George Washington University was furnished in memory of Dr. William Allen Wilbur, a member of the church who died in 1945.

Christmas decorations and special Christmas music will be a feature of this year's service.

French Pastor To Speak Sunday

Ground to Be Broken for Parish Hall

Ground for the new parish hall of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave., will be broken at ceremonies at 11:45 a. m. Sunday.

The ceremonies will follow the 11 a. m. service and will be lead by George E. Harris, lay leader. The minister, Dr. Clifford Homer Richmond, will be the speaker. Members of church organizations will also participate in the ground breaking.

The parish hall will form the ground floor of a new church structure. Later, a new sanctuary will be erected above it.

More than twice the size of the present stone sanctuary, the parish hall will provide space for church school departments, programs and banquets, and will contain a modern kitchen.

It will be equipped with collapsible sound-proof partitions by which it may be divided to provide meeting places for several groups at once. Heating, plumbing and electrical equipment for both the sanctuary and parish hall will also be in the first unit.

Estimated cost of the parish hall is $200,000 and about one half of the sum has been raised. The church hopes to pay off the remaining amount within the next three or four years before beginning work on the sanctuary.

Father McGratty To Speak at C. U. Summer School

The Rev. Arthur R. McGratty, national director of the Apostleship of Prayer, will speak at the summer school of Catholic Action at Catholic University, August 9-14.

He will speak on the importance of the League of the Sacred Heart in parishes and schools. The league is an association with some six million members in the country.

Born in Brooklyn, Father McGratty attended Georgetown and Fordham Universities and Woodstock Seminary. During the war he served as a Navy chaplain and after his release was editor of the Messenger of the Sacred Heart. He was recently appointed national director of the Apostleship of Prayer.

Mount Rainier Church Call Taken By Rev. Brinson

The Rev. Marion B. Brinson of Newport News, Va., has accepted a call to the Mount Rainier Christian Church.

He will take over here early in September. Mr. Brinson is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College, Vanderbilt University and Yale University. He formerly was pastor of a church in Richmond, Va., for 10 years and for the past 13 years has been minister of the First Christian Church in Newport News.

The Mount Rainier church has been without a pastor since February, when the Rev. Charles H. Frick resigned. Chaplain Harold G. Elsam has been serving as interim pastor since Mr. Frick's resignation.

New St. John's Church Opens Doors Sunday

The new $200,000 St. John's Episcopal Church, Bradley lane and Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, will be used for the first time Sunday at services at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Creighton

At 11 a. m. the rector, the Rev. William F. Creighton, will give a prayer of dedication for the new building. Actual dedication of St. John's will not take place until the mortgage for the church is paid.

Canon Crawford Brown of the Washington Cathedral will speak at the service at 8 p. m., and clergymen from Greater Washington have been invited to attend.

Ground for the new church was broken about a year ago, and in October the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Diocese, laid the cornerstone.

St. John's Church was founded in 1873 and the first chapel was built a year later. The old building was destroyed by fire in 1913, and the present church was constructed in 1914.

Members of the church will continue to use the old building, which is next to the new church, for meetings and choir rehearsals. The church is named after St. John's Church, Georgetown, and land was given by the late Col. Robert P. Dodge, a member of the Georgetown church.

The new building will seat 500 and is built of red brick in southern colonial design. It includes a sacristy and church offices on the ground floor, and a large assembly room and kitchen in the basement.

Richard K. Akers is senior warden, Lane W. Hildreth junior warden and Charles S. Embry is chairman of the construction committee.

Australian To Speak in 2 Churches

The Rev. Alan Walker, minister of Waverly Methodist Church, Sydney, Australia, will speak in two local churches on Sunday.

He will be guest preacher at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw., at 11 a. m., and will speak at 8 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Mr. Walker is official delegate from the Methodist Church of Australasia to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches, to be held in Amsterdam in August. In addition, he is religious editor of the Sydney Morning Herald, vice president of the Australian Institute of Sociology and lecturer at the University of Sydney.

Dr. John W. Rustin will speak at 9 and 11:15 a. m. services at Mount Vernon Place. His sermon topic is "The Sources of Power." Speaker at 8 p. m. at Foundry Church will be the Rev. Garland Evans Hopkins, Associate Foreign Secretary of the Methodist Church.

Methodists Elect Northcott Bishop

Indianapolis, July 9 (AP).—The North Central Jurisdictional Conference of the Methodist Church today elected the Rev. H. Clifford Northcott of Champaign, Ill., as a bishop.

The conference previously had elected the Rev. Richard C. Raines of Minneapolis and the Rev. Marshall Reed of Detroit to fill two episcopal vacancies.

After naming Dr. Northcott the delegates resumed balloting for a fourth bishop.

Dr. Northcott, a native of Exeter, Canada, and 57 years old, has been pastor of the First Methodist Church at Champaign since 1928.

The conference approved several resolutions, including one which instructs ministers never to perform a marriage ceremony without a preliminary conference with the bride and groom to impart advice to the couple on the founding of a successful home.

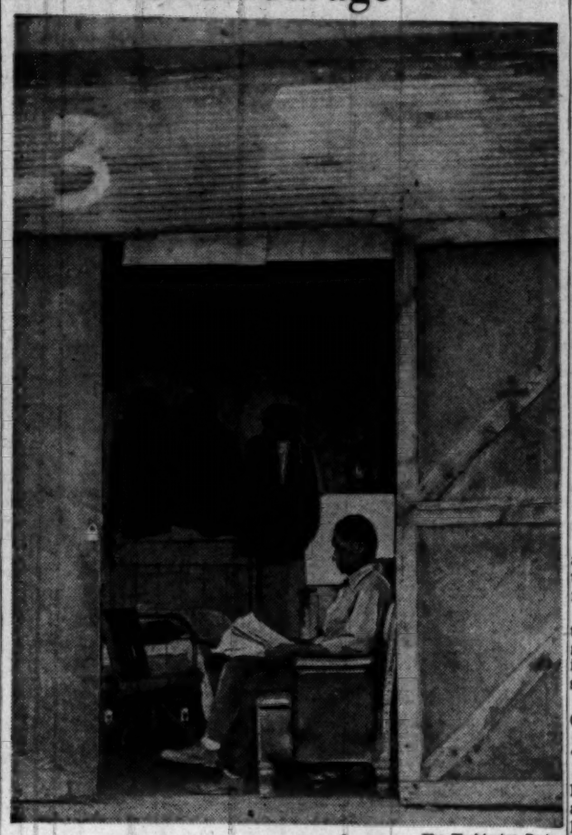
500 Boy Scouts Ready For Summer Camp

Five hundred Boy Scouts from the District and neary Maryland and Virginia can thank their Scout leaders for a chance to go to the Scouts' Camp Roosevelt, located at Willows, Md., on Chesapeake Bay this summer.

One hundred and fifty Scout leaders from the National Capital Area Council have spent a weekend each since last March clearing woods and building tent platforms for five extra camp sites. The camp expects 2000 Scouts to attend this year between opening day July 5 and August 28.

At Home in a Garage



The Washington Post

DWELLING SCORED—Alexandria grand jury, probing insanitary conditions in the city, yesterday cited this garage-home as one of two examples of substandard housing. The jury said "about six families" live in two garages. This one is situated at 528 N. Alfred st.

Jury Scores Slum Conditions

bid persons living in garages and similar structures, and extend its inspection of hotels and restaurants to include rooming houses.

City Attorney Joseph Pancoast said there is no city ordinance to regulate overcrowded living conditions.

Probing further into Alexandria sanitation, the jury criticized Pancoast for failure to enforce the city code and require families with privies to connect to adjacent sewer lines when available.

Connections Not Used

Listing the locations of 210 privies in Alexandria, the jury said 93 of them "have sewer connections available" but do not use them.

Pancoast admitted he knew of "some houses" which should be hooked to adjacent sewer lines. He said lack of materials during the war had help up more recent conversion of the privies.

According to the grand jurors, failure of the city to collect "scavenger fees" for collecting privy refuse is costing Alexandria more than $15,000 annually.

Also scored in the grand jury findings was Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan, who was urged to impose "more severe" penalties on chronic drunks and vagrants.

Jurors reported that in 20 drunk or vagrant cases they investigated between January 1, 1946, and May 30, 1948, the persons involved were arrested and re-arrested 347 times —299 times "within a one-block area of the 400 block of King st."

The five jury members asked that the present city ordinance be amended to give the judge authority to "commit repeated offenders . . . to a clinic."

A long-planned Alexandria Alcoholic Clinic is scheduled to open by August 1.

In their report, the jury also asked for establishment of a police trial board and called for the setting up of "an adequate retirement system" for police and firemen.

Other grand jury members, who began their work after completing indictments for the June term, were Irvin Hufford, Edward W. Dixon, W. Bruce Silcox, and Ernest L. Mankin.

National Airline Held Wrong In Row With Striking Pilots

By The Associated Press

An emergency fact-finding board reported yesterday that National Airlines, Inc., was in the wrong in its dispute with its pilots, clerks and mechanics.

It told President Truman after a 30-day investigation that the airline had violated the Railway Labor Act, and recommended that it reinstate striking pilots, and try to reach an agreement with clerical employes.

Nonunion pilots have kept the lines operating since the strike began.

Report Not Binding

The report is not binding and the company does not have to comply.

The airline's clerks went on strike January 23, charging the company refused to sign a contract.

Members of the International Association of Machinists (independent) refused to cross the clerk's picket lines. The clerks belong to the machinists union.

Ten days later the pilots, represented by the AFL Airline Pilots Association, struck in a dispute over the discharge more than two years ago of a pilot. The flier, Marston G. O'Neal, was fired after a landing accident at Tampa, Fla.

About 145 pilots were involved in the February 3 walkout which temporarily grounded National's 22 planes serving 29 cities in 11 States and Cuba. Company headquarters are in Miami, Fla.

The company told the pilots they had "voluntarily left" the company's employ and hired others to take their places. Service was resumed, and has continued ever since with new pilots.

The emergency fact finding board was named by the President May 15 to investigate the strike. Efforts of the National Mediation Board to solve the snarl had failed.

The three-man emergency board was composed of Grady Lewis, Washington attorney, chairman; Curtis W. Roll, Kokomo, Ind., a former Indiana State Supreme Court justice, and Walter V. Schaefer, Northwestern University law professor.

Regarding the company's claim that the pilots had voluntarily left their jobs by striking, the report said that decisions of Federal and State courts have thoroughly established that an employe does not "cease to be such because he is on strike."

Recommend Rehiring

Consequently, the board recommended that they be rehired, even though this forces the company to fire those who replaced the strikers.

"Where the strike is connected with or results from the violation of a statutory duty by an employer, he is compelled to rehire the striking employes even though that course involves the discharge of employes hired to replace those in strike," the board said.

Further, it said the strike was "not in violation of the Railway Labor Act" but added the airline has "repeatedly been guilty of conduct which violated the provisions of the Railway Labor Act."

CAB Report Gives No Hint Of Crash Cause

The Civil Aeronautics Board made a preliminary report yesterday on the United Air Lines DC-6 crash in which 43 persons died near Mount Carmel, Pa., June 17, but gave no hint of the cause of the accident.

The board summarized known facts in the case and said its final report will be issued after a hearing to receive technical evidence from the investigators.

The report gave little support to early theories of fire beyond what had been indicated early in the investigation—that the pilot, George Warner, reported by radio he had released the fire extinguishers in the forward cargo pit and was making an emergency descent.

A major clue in the investigation appears to be wire recordings of that is believed to be the pilot's final messages. At 11:55 a. m. (EST.) Warner had said in response to a question that the plane was in good condition and ready for an immediate turn around—that is, to start another trip.

The radio operator at LaGaurdia Field, New York, heard an unidentified voice loudly calling "New York" at 12:31 p. m., with subsequent messages garbled. The LaGuardia operator made repeated attempts to contact the caller.

Exchange Interpreted

Investigators have tentatively interpreted the exchange between LaGuardia and a plane assumed to be the United airliner as follows:

12:32 p. m.—The plane: "New York."

LaGuardia: "624 (number of the United flight) hello, New York. Go ahead."

The plane: "York (or possibly fire) . . . We released the fire extinguisher . . . in the forward cargo pit.

LaGuardia: "Will you try VHF (meaning switching to very high frequency radio which is free of static interference.)"

The plane: "Emergency descent."

LaGuardia: "Try again." (No response). "Trip calling New York try it again please."

The plane: "(. . . undeciphered) Forward cargo pit . . . Emergency descent."

No further contact was made. The crash occurred at 12:41 p. m.

Employment In June Hits All-Time High

Employment smashed all records in American history during June, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

There were 61,296,000 persons holding civilian jobs and another 1,261,000 in the armed forces—62,557,000 job holders in all. More than five out of six jobs were for 35 hours or more a week.

Government analysts forecast that July, peak job season, will break the record again. The lure of high pay—and the pressure of high living costs—had Americans job conscious as never before.

Startling June Upswing

The June figure on civilian employment reflected a startling one-month upswing of 2,636,000 jobs. With schools out, youngsters swarmed into the labor market.

Most of them hit it just right. Farm employment neared its summer peak at 9,396,000 for June, and nonfarm employment hit an unprecedented 51,899,000 total.

Some youngsters—chiefly teenagers, the bureau said—missed an immediate connection, with the result that unemployment went up along with employment. The rise was 423,000 and the total of jobless reached 2,184,000, highest since July last year.

The backbone strength in labor demand lay in the business boom. Some Government experts spoke of prospective labor shortages when the youngsters go back to school in the fall.

Some Not Really at Work

The bureau's figures on job holders included about 2,500,000 who weren't actually at work because of vacations, illness, strikes, bad weather, and temporary layoffs.

They covered everyone working for pay, hope of profit, or for family benefit, leaving out housewives. The bureau noted a rising proportion of women entering the labor market throughout 1948.

Total civilian employment in June cracked the previous record, set in July last year, by 1,217,000, and left the one-time goal of 60 million jobs far behind. While unemployment also was up during June, it was 371,000 below a year ago.

ture, declared that in spite of the increase in food production in this country, the world won't reach prewar production figures until 1951.

"Between 1938 and 1946 world population went up 130 million people," Dodd remarked. "In order merely to catch up with where we were 10 years ago—when the situation was bad enough—the world has to produce enough additional food to feed more additional people than the whole population of the United States."

Other grain estimates were:

Oats, 1424 million bushels, against 1215 last year.

Barley, 307 million; against 279 million last year.

Rye, 26 million, against 25 million last year.

Flaxseed, 43 million, against 39 million last year.

Rice, 79 million bushels—the same as last year.

Hay 95 million tons, last year 102 million.

Potatoes, 391 million bushels; last year 384 million.

Sweet potatoes, 49 million bushels; last year 57 million.

Tobacco, 1757 million pounds; last year 2107 million.

Sugar cane, six million tons; last year five million.

Sugar beets, 10 million tons; last year 12 million.

Apples, 100 million bushels; last year 113 million.

Peaches, 70 million bushels; last year 82 million.

Pears, 26 million bushels; last years 35 million.

Oranges, 115 million boxes; last year 104 million.

Grapefruit, about the same as last year.

The increase in corn, which is America's greatest crop, is expected to result in more livestock raising. Cattle, sheep and hogs have dropped sharply in numbers in the last two years, with meat becoming scarcer than in several years.

However, it takes years to build up cattle and sheep herds. The first increase in meat, which cannot come before next year, will be pork. Corn is the chief feed for hogs, and is the fattener for cattle and sheep.

The increase in corn also is expected to result in rebuilding of the Nation's dairy herds, which have decreased sharply in the last year.

The same result is expected in chickens and turkeys, both of which are fewer in number than in years.

Wheat Shipments Glut Kansas City Terminals

Kansas City, July 9 (AP).—An embargo on wheat shipments into Kansas City, effective at 11:59 (CST) tonight, was announced today by Ralph E. Clark, manager of boxcar distribution for the Association of American Railroads.

The action was taken as the tide of the grain from the Southwest glutted the terminals here with record-breaking arrivals.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BUCKY HARRIS won the honor of managing the American League All-Star team of 1948 when he took his Yankees to the pennant last season. Managing the All-Stars was a secondary consideration with Harris in the waning days of last September. Getting his Yankees home was the big idea, but now that he has the All-Star job he is going to play it to the hilt.

POVICH

It's going to be an all-Yankee operation as far as management and coaching of the American League team is concerned. Harris has designated his own Yankee colleagues, Chuck Dressen and Red Corriden, as the coaches and at least two Yankees, Joe DiMaggio and George McQuinn, will be in the starting lineup.

"The fans picked my starting lineup except the pitchers," Harris was saying yesterday, "and I have no choice there. They picked a good one, and I'm not going to make any changes unless we get desperate for pinch-hitters. This is the fans' game and I'm going to let them see the players they picked.

"I'll name the pitchers. That looks like the biggest part of my job. You wouldn't call it a hard job would you? Not with what we have to pick from."

HARRIS DIDN'T say who his starting pitcher would be. There are eight at his command—Vic Raschi, Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Hal Newhouser, Walter Masterson, Joe Coleman, Joe Page and Joe Haynes. But he had a significant answer when asked if he intended to use Feller and Newhouser.

"What do you think?" Harris smiled. "If you had Feller and Newhouser available and you wanted to win a big game, would you leave either of them on the bench.

It's apparent that Harris isn't going to leave either of 'em on the bench. A fig for the guys who have better pitching records than Rapid Robert and Prince Hal. When Harris wants to win a game badly, he wants guys like Feller and Newhouser throwing their fast balls down National League throats.

They're both having poor years as Feller and Newhouser seasons go, but that fact isn't disturbing Harris. It's meaningful that he overlooked Allie Reynolds, a man on his staff who has won 10, lost 3, in selecting his pitchers. Harris is no slave to the figures. He knows, however, who can be the toughest guys to beat.

IT APPEARS NOW that the Cleveland Indians will provide three fourths of the American League's infield. Joe Gordon at second base and Lou Boudreau at shortstop were the fans' selections, and since the injury to George Kell's ankle threatens to remove him from the third base job, second choice Ken Keltner will also be in Harris' lineup. The only non-Indian infielder will be First Baseman George McQuinn.

The American League lineup is loaded with more home run threats than is the National League's. Until Catcher Buddy Rosar is reached in eighth place in the batting order, any of his predecessors could knock the ball out of the lot and occasion no surprise. Look 'em over. An outfield of Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Pat Mullin. The infield of McQuinn, Gordon, Keltner and Boudreau.

It has been American League power that has prevailed in most of the All-Star games. Williams hit probably the two most historic All-Star homers. He crashed that ball into the third deck at Detroit with two out in the ninth in 1941 to beat the National League. And a couple of years ago at Boston he proved that a good American League hitter could knock Rip Sewell's blooper ball out of a park and did it, for the first time in history.

THE TWO ALL-STAR teams played a close game at Philadelphia a few years back, but again it was an American League home run that swung the decision. And where did the A. L. get it from? Down in eighth place in the batting order they found a guy who could hit a timely homer—Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox.

If times get tough for American League pitching next Tuesday at St. Louis, and he needs relief help, Harris is ready to call on his own man, Joe Page. This year, Page is having a poor season. He has won only three games against four defeats. But as we were saying, figures like that don't sway Harris. He'll go with Page despite his 1948 record, on the theory that figures or no, Page is still the best relief man in the business.

That's what Harris was thinking in that important seventh game of the last World Series when he needed a relief pitcher and phoned the bullpen where Allie Reynolds and Page had been warming up. "How do they look?" he asked. "The big Indian (Reynolds) is knocking the mitts off the catchers' hands with all the stuff he's got," Harris was told. "Okay," said Harris coldly uninfluenced, "send me Page."

Skip Alexander's 64 Paces Columbus Open by 2 Strokes

Columbus, Ohio, July 9 (AP).—Big Stewart (Skip) Alexander from Lexington, N. C., fired his way into a two-stroke lead over a classy field today in the opening round of the $10,000 third annual Columbus Open, with a scintillating 32-32—64.

The cup looked as big as a tub through the thick-lensed glasses of the former Duke University captain. He holed putts from everywhere for seven birdies and 11 pars.

Two strokes back, with 66 strokes each, were Lloyd Mangrum, former National Open champion from Chicago, and George Schoux, 29-year-old star from Mamaroneck, N. Y. Schoux had 34-32—66 on the 36-35—71 Wyandot municipal layout, while Mangrum had 32-34—66.

Bobby Locke, the 1947 victor in this 72-hole fixture—and the pretourney favorite to win again—wound up five strokes off the pace with 34, 35—69 after a couple of arguments with amateur photographers who insisted on snapping cameras as he putted.

Just back of Schoux and Mangrum, with four-under-par 67's, were Dr. Cary Middlecoff, from Memphis, and Johnny Bulla, from Phoenix.

Next, with 68 each, were Ellsworth Vines, Iowa City, Iowa; Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., and Freddie Haas, jr., New Orleans.

Frankie Stranahan of Toledo, British and Canadian amateur champion, skidded two over par with a 36, 37—73 and yielded the simon-pure leadership to Eddie Meister of Cleveland.

Ewell Ties Record, 10.2, In 100 Meter

By Ted Smits

Evanston, Ill., July 9 (AP).—Barney Ewell, holder of six national sprint titles, scored a surprising upset tonight when he won the 100-meter dash, pulling away from a brilliant Olympic tryout field that included Mel Patton of Southern California and Harrison Dillard of Baldwin Wallace.

The time was announced as 10.2, which equals the world record held by Jesse Owens and Hal Davis of the United States. The wind was quartering, not a factor in the race.

Ewell started fast, went in front at 20 meters, and increased his lead all the way. The big Negro devoured the ground with long strides that more than matched those of Patton, reckoned as America's prime hope for sprint titles at London.

Mathis Falls on Face

Ten yards from the finish Bill Mathis, former National AAU champion, fell flat on his face, as the result of a leg cramp. He lay inert on the cinders for several minutes.

The battle for second place was close, but the judges, after a huddle, awarded it to Patton with Dillard third.

Martin Biles of the San Francisco Olympic Club surprised the experts by winning the first final, the javelin, with a toss of 225 feet 9 inches, followed by Robert Likins of San Jose State with 222 feet 3½ inches.

Dr. Steve Seymour of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, who holds the American record at 248 feet 10 inches, placed third with 218 feet 9 inches.

Biles, Likins and Seymour thus became members of the American Olympic team. Although Seymour's performance was below his standard, he is looked on as the man most likely to surprise the European throwers.

Stone First in 5000 Meter

Curtis Stone, formerly of Penn State, won the 5000-meter run by five meters from Jerry Thompson of Texas, who came up fast on the last two laps but could not match Stone's finish.

Each won places on the team along with Clarence Robinson of Brigham Young University of Utah. Boo Black of Rhode Island State dropped out with a lap to go. The time was 14:40.7.

Here are team members selected in the tryouts tonight, listed in the order of their finish with the winning performance:

Who Qualifiers Are

5,000 meter run—Curtis Stone, Philadelphia, Pa.; Jerry Thompson, Texas; Clarence Robinson, Brigham Young, 14:40.7

400 meter hurdles—Roy Cochran, Los Angeles Athletic Club; Richard Adult, Missouri; Jeff Kirk, Penn., 51.7 seconds.

High jump—Verne McGrew, Rice; George Stanich, Los Angeles Athletic Club; Dwight Eddleman, Illinois, 6 feet 8¼ inches.

Javelin throw—Martin Biles, San Francisco Olympic Club; Robert Lilkins, San Jose, Calif.; Steve Seymour, Los Angles Athletic Club, 225 feet 9 inches.

Hammer throw—Bob Bennett, Apponaug, R. I.; Henry Dreyer, New York Athletic Club; Sam Felton, Harvard, 177 feet 8½ inches.

100-meter dash—Barney Ewell, National AAU champion; Mel Patton, Southern California; Harrison Dillard, Baldwin Wallace. (Ed Conwell, Jersey City, probable qualified.) Time: 10.2 seconds.

These men, together with 15 who qualified for the team previously in separately conducted trials, will be joined by an equal number tomorrow when the tryouts are concluded in the remaining 11 events, starting at 2 p. m., EST.

If there was any surprise approaching the sizzling triumph by Ewell before 20,000 fans, it came in the high jump, where McGrew and Stanich both cleared 6 feet 8¼ inches. Both had barely qualified for the finals in the AAU and NCAA championships, which served as the semi-finals for this first pre-Olympic showdown in a dozen years.

McGrew was declared the winner, since he had only two misses during the event, compared to four for Stanich.

Rees Wins Irish Open

Portmarnock, Eire, July 9 (AP). Dai Rees, British Ryder Cup golfer, won the Irish Open golf title today with a four-round aggregate of 295.

Washington's Jayvees Reach Finals of Olympic Rowing

Princeton, N. J., July 9 (AP). Four University of Washington jayvees succeeded today where the Husky varsity oarsmen failed a week ago and reached the final round of the Olympic tryouts with the fanciest performance of a day that abounded in record-breaking feats.

The Washington four-oared crew with coxswain, the "stern" four from the boatload that won the junior varsity at Poughkeepsie, whipped four Princeton varsity men in an exciting race to enter the final against Yale and the Westside Rowing Club of Buffalo, N. Y.

It was at the same stage of the eight oared trials a week ago that the Washington varsity was eliminated, losing to California in a photo finish.

Aided by a brisk following wind, the Washington four turned in the remarkably fast time of six minutes, 35.7 seconds, the best of a day that saw the Olympic standards beaten by four crews in two events.

Six finals will be rowed tomorrow, starting at 3 p. m. (EST) and after three days of eliminations, here's how the field shapes up:

Singles—Kelly and Trinsey, Vesper Boat Club, and Angyal, New York A. C.

Doubles—Gallagher and Angyal, Penn A. C.-New York A. C.; Charles and Joseph McIntyre, Vesper; Krementz and Whitney, Yale.

Fours without coxswain—Yale and West Side Rowing Club, Buffalo, N. Y. Only two finalists.

Fours with coxswain—Washington, Yale, West Side.

Pairs without coxswain—John Wilson, Wilbur Garside (Coxswain) Union Boat Club, Boston; Joseph Toland, Vincent Deeney, John McIntyre, Vesper; John Brooks, jr., Wyatt Garfield, James Beggs, Yale.

Girl and a Boy

17-Year-Olds Win Olympic Swim Berths

Detroit, July 9 (AP).—An Andover Prep boy and a California school girl—both 17 — outclassed their fields today to win No. 1 berths on the American Olympic swimming and diving teams.

They are Jimmy McLane of Akron, Ohio, who swamped the opposition in winning the 400-meter free style final trial, and Zoe Ann Olsen near-perfect fancy diving high school senior from Oakland, Calif.

McLane touched the finish in the 400 nearly three lengths ahead of veteran Smith, Hawaiian from Ohio State University who has racked up 17 national championships ranging from the sprints to the middle distances and going back as far as 1941.

Miss Olsen heads an all-California contingent in the women's springboard diving. Her teammates in this event who will catch the boat for London at New York next Wednesday are Victoria Manolo Draves of Los Angeles AC, and Patricia Elsener of San Francisco's Crystal Plunge.

The Oakland girl set herself far apart from the field with a score of 117.39. Mrs. Draves and Miss Eisener barely beat out Olympic veterans Marjorie Gestring, champion at Berlin in 1936 when she was 13 years old, and 31-year-old Katherine Rawls of Miami Beach, Fla., springboard second placer at the 1932 and 1936 Olympics in Los Angeles and Berlin.

Another California girl, 22-year-old Ann Curtis from San Francisco, set the pace in the wo. .n's 100-meter free style finals where six in all won place on the Olympic team. Miss Curtis, holder of three world records for women, was timed at 1:07.7.

The five other free style sprint qualifiers for London competition who will handle the three individuals and 4x100-meter relay assignments with Miss Curtis are, in the order of their finishing: Marie Corridon, Norwalk, Conn.; Brenda Helser, Los Angeles; Thelma Kalama, Hawaii; Jackie Lavine, Chicago, and Pat Healy, Watchung Lake, N. J.

Browns Beat Indians and Lemon, 5 to 3

Cleveland, July 9 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns got away to a three-run first inning and went on to defeat the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 5 to 3, tonight.

The Indians out-hit the Brownies, 12 to 9, but couldn't connect when they needed them. Fred Sanford, who was removed when the Indians threatened in the seventh, was the winning hurler. Sanford helped his own cause with a home run in the second inning. Bob Lemon was charged with the defeat.

The game marked the major league debut of Leroy (Satchel) Paige, famous Negro hurler, who was purchased by the Tribe Wednesday.

Paige entered the game at the start of the fifth after Lemon had been removed for a pinch hitter. He hurled two innings, shutting out the Browns with two singles and striking out one batter. He also forced another Brownie to line into a double play.

40,000 Fans Watch Three Night Events

Perfect weather and three stellar attractions lured nearly 40,000 Washington area sports fans last night.

The Nats-Yankees ball game at Griffith Stadium drew the largest turnout, 22,615. The Laurel harness races were run before a meet record crowd of 12,000. At West Lanham, 5100 spectators were on hand for the midget automobile races.

Record 12,000 See Riddick Win 3 Races

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The largest crowd of the meeting, more than 12,000, saw Roy Riddick, a newcomer, make the veteran driver literally take a back seat last night at Laurel Raceway.

Riddick, 30, who has been behind the trotters for only three years, came through with three winners. The Elizabeth City, N. C., native capped a fine performance by taking the feature with David Spencer, $14.80 outsider.

Although only two favorites won the record crowd refused to be discouraged and established a record handle of $218,231.

Riddick, the boy who couldn't lose, was lucky to be on the track at all. Injured in an auto crash last Tuesday, he still limps badly.

He started his streak in the third by getting home with Little Me, one of the two winning favorites of the night who returned a $6.60 mutuel. Riddick, who drives trotters as a hobby, came right back in the next race with Pat Song, $16 outsider.

Riddick did a nice job of rating David Spencer in the featured mile trot. Tom Wingate's Josedale McElwyn grabbed the early lead and Riddick was content to lay second with David Spencer, 9-year-old gelding who once trotted the mile in 2 minutes flat.

Albert Washington, one of the few Negro drivers in the country, won the first race with Midnight Sun, believe it or not, a 10-year-old maiden who paid $21.20.

Johnny Mallalieu, 70 year old-ster, scored another upset in the second when Topsy Scott ($33.60 to $2) beat the favorite, April Day. The daily double combination (2 and 3) paid $237.80.

Sain Pitches 11th Win for Braves, 13-2

Boston, July 9 (AP).—Aided by a 14-hit attack, Right-hander Johnny Sain became the National League's first 11-game winner by hurling the top-place Boston Braves to a 13-2 win over the Phillies tonight before a 27,050 crowd.

Nicholson's Homer Beats Pirates, 2 to 1

New York, July 9 (U.P.).—Big Bill Nicholson's eleventh home run of the season with Andy Pafko on base carried the eighth-place Chicago Cubs to a 2 to 1 victory over the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates before a ladies' day crowd of 23,609 fans in Wrigley Field today. Nicholson's booming smash high into the right field bleachers was responsible for the fourth loss of the season for Elmer Riddle.

Pappas Boots 5-Year-Old To Graw Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., July 9.—The old adage, "Don't count your chickens, etc." has been changed hereabouts to "Don't count your winnings before the finish."

Backers of Flying Weather, owned by D. K. Kerr, jr., of Washington, saw the favorite take the lead approaching the wire and then ran toward the pay-off windows. However, they had a rude awakening. Tacaro Briar, owned by Robert L. Hall, jr., of Marlboro, Md., had been running in the early stages like a fugitive from a can of dogfood.

But, nearing the wire, Tacaro Briar put on what appeared to be a jet-propelled drive and the 5-year-old sizzled through the last 25 yards to force the judges to call for a picture. The camera gave the result—Tacaro Briar by a nose with Flying Weather second.

Two lengths behind the tight finish was J. M. Geisey's Island Nymph, a 6-year-old who had set most of the pace in the test of six furlongs involving eight starters and dubbed "The Otsego Purse" for some reason or another.

Tacaro Briar was making his eleventh start of the year today and turned in his third victory. With Flying Weather getting the majority of the play, backers of Tacaro Briar collected $10.40 for the deuce investment.

The winner, acquired by Owner Hall from the W. T. Leatherbury Farm down by Herring Bay, was clocked in a creditable 1.11 3/5 for the three quarters of a mile.

Bovard Has Forage Poisoning

Havre de Grace, Md., July 9 (AP).—Sylvester W. Labrot, jr.'s, Bovard, one of the top Maryland 3-year-olds, was stricken here today with forage poisoning and is reported to be in critical condition.

Forage poisoning usually cames from moldy hay or grain. It has caused the deaths of a large number of stake horses in the past, including Phar Lap, the Australian champion

So Says Ed Furgol

Playing Golf Pro Must Win $9000 a Year to Break Even

Columbus, Ohio, July 9 (AP).—Just how much does a guy have to win in a year to break even on golfdom's professional tour?

Well, let's let Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., tell about it. Ed, as most folk know, is one of the phenoms of the play-for-pay brigade, having overcome a childhood accident which left his left arm shrunken and rigid.

Furgol is 29 years old, and turned professional in 1944 after a fine career as an amateur. He has no club affiliation, being strictly a tournament tourist. He's married, and Mrs. Furgol is always on the tour with him.

Back in 1946 Ed won $4821.66 to win up twenty-fifth in the country. In 1947 he climbed to eighth place with $14,168.10. Right now, with the season about half over, he's in sixteenth place with $4576.98—but hopes to boost that figure in the $10,000 Columbus Open.

Anyway, Ed has won $23,466.74 in the last two and one-half years, a pretty fair figure to a 29-year-old with a crippled arm firing against the best professionals the country has to offer.

Furgol takes in the complete tour, one of the few stars who makes all the stops. Last year he and Lew Worsham were the only ones to play 104 rounds of tournament golf, and Ed outscored the 1947 National Open king by 40 strokes as he averaged 70.67 shots per round.

This year Ed has played 67 rounds for an average of 71.78, and only Lloyd Mangrum, the 1946 National Open king has been in more tournaments. Mangrum has played 71 rounds.

And Ed says: "If you want to get back home with a dime in your pocket, you have to win more than $8000 a year. That's the absolute minimum, and maybe $9000 is closer to what you'll spend."

Mrs. Bailey Golf Winner

Mrs. George Bailey, jr., and Mrs. R. W. Horner grabbed most of the honors in yesterday's special golf tuornament at Washington Golf and Country Club which was sponsored jointly by Mrs. Gordon O'Neill and Mrs. E. M. Hutchison.

Mrs. Bailey took the low gross award with an 86 and Mrs. Horner's 93—15—78 won the low net prize.

Second low net was taken by Mrs. G. W. Calvert, 94—14—80, and Mrs. E. M. Norton, 97—16—81; Mrs. Howard Lady, 105—24—81, and Mrs. Richard Sutton, 96—15—81, tied for third.

Next was Mrs. J. J. Corson, 93—11—82, followed by Mrs. H. H. Goodman, 97—14—83. Low putt award went to Mrs. R. Rife, with 31, while consolation prize was won by Mrs. B. B. Cann.

Cremona Show Listed Tomorrow

The annual Cremona Horse Show will be held Sunday at 9 a. m. at Cremona Farm, off Highway No. 5, Mechanicsville, Md., for the benefit of the Mechanicsville-Hughesville Volunteer Fire Departments.

The program lists seven classes in the hunter division, five for open jumpers, two junior classes, two local events, a harness class, and a Western horse class. Championships will be awarded in both the hunter and jumper divisions.

The feature events of the day are the $100 stake classes offered for both hunters and open jumpers.

Local exhibitors expected to make the trip to Mechanicsville are Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hallman with Gray Lark, Miss Shelley Warren's Bill's Lass, Avon Shockey's Red Knight, Claude Owen's Sky's Image, and Betty Standish's old-timer, Little John.

Hippenstiel Plays Johnsen

Dr. David Johnsen and Capt. Robbin Hippenstiel yesterday reached the men's singles finals of the District tennis championships on the Edgemoor club courts.

Johnsen won from Capt. Arthur Dreyer, 6—3, 6—4, in one semifinal match while Hippenstiel eliminated Don Leavens, 6—2, 6—3, in the day's other contest.

The finals will be played this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Edgemoor. Hippenstiel was seeded No. 2 and Johnsen No. 3.

The women's finals also will be played today with Willie Herbert meeting Charlotte Decker for the title. They were seeded No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, and advanced to the finals earlier in the week.

Marx Wins 1st Half; Plumbers Lose Lead

Hayes, Curtis Aid Winners Tie for Lead

A double by Gabby Hayes and an error by Bob Curtis in the eighth inning gave Washington Gas Co. an important 1-0 victory over Merchandising Plumbers yesterday on the South Ellipse.

By their win, the Gasmen knocked the Plumbers out of first place in the Departmental League and moved into a tie for the top spot with Federal Bureau of Investigation. Garland Curles was the pitching hero, besting Warren Webb in the duel.

Junior All-Stars Announce Changes

Washington's junior all-star baseball team which plays the Brooklyn all-stars Monday night at Ebbets Field, sneaks in a practice session this morning at 11 o'clock on the West Ellipse.

Manager Jim Munro announced a change and an addition to the Washington squad which leaves by train Monday morning. The addition is Tommy Nolan, former Georgetown University star, now coach at Anacostia High, to the coaching staff.

Bobby Johnson, home-run hitting Central High second baseman replaces Leonard (Spike) Bauroth because Spike accepted an invitation to represent Washington at a baseball festival this weekend in Van Buren, Ark.

De Giorgi Sparkles In 12-to-7 Triumph

Defending champion Marx Jewelry Co., defeated Hardesty's Market, 12-7, yesterday at Taft Field to win the first half Junior City League championship.

Two members of the Washington All-Star team which invades Brooklyn Monday night, paced the Marxmen to their sixth win in seven games. Ed Claxton cracked out three singles and a double to drive in four runs. Sal DeGiorgi hit a single and a grand slam homer.

McAndrews Wins Lanham Feature

Leon "Shorty" McAndrews of Allentown, Pa., won the 25-lap feature midget auto race at the West Lanham Speedway last night after his stretch-running opponent Mike Josephs suffered a blowout and piled up uninjured on the twentieth lap.

More than 5100 fans saw McAndrews finish well in front of George Fonder, Larry Bloomer and Jim Forte. McAndrews was timed in 5:52.11 in the feature and set a new Lanham 15-lap speed record of 3:30.72 in a semifinal heat.

One on the Aisle—

A Newsgal Romps Through Western

By Richard L. Coe

WHETHER Elizabeth C. Seaman ever heard of Connie Faulkner I don't know, but it's perfectly possible Connie was one of Elizabeth's girlhood heroines.

Elizabeth C. Seaman was the baptismal name of Nelly Bly, that lively newsgal whose jaunt around the world was news in 1889. Nelly also wound up in Texas, which is where I came across Connie yesterday on the Columbia screen.

Connie is the heroine of one of those Westerns that positively defy any fresh approach on the part of a commentator. This one is called "The Gallant Legion," with William Elliott in the starring role. Bill, you shouldn't have to be told, is one of those strong, virtuous gentlemen who sees to it that lawnorder blossom in his reckless trail.

In this Western, which obeys all the traditions of its vast breed, Connie proves to be no end of trouble to Bill. Adrian Booth, who plays the lady, achieves that curious marriage of the furbelowed period with the sleek coiffeurs of the present. In an intricate plot, concerning attempts to split Texas into four independent parts, Connie is a newsgal who goes out into the wilds where the Rangers, good guys, are battling with the Renegades, bad guys.

There's not another reporter in sight, but that doesn't keep Connie from being the Malvina Lindsay of her day. Connie's against whoever's causing all the trouble in Texas, and when one of the villains turns out to be her own Senator-Uncle, Joseph Schildkraut, Connie goes right ahead and reports the truth.

Bill's Still the Hero

"I only report," says Connie, "what I see with my own eyes." And she scribbles away, notebook and pencil clutched in her well-manicured fingers, on trains and in the brush.

Yes, Nelly, who was 7 when this adventure of 1874 was taking place (she died in 1922), would have been excited about Connie, if such a person really existed.

Don't get the idea from this windy digression that Connie's the star of this piece. Actually, she proves a stubborn creature and, in the way of all right-thinking Westerns, it takes Bill to show the youthful, beautiful reporter The Truth. This probably would have displeased Nelly Bly, but at least she'd have had the satisfaction of seeing a woman reporter uncovering a story while her male contemporaries attended only parties, as they're shown to be doing early in "The Gallant Legion."

Even more villainous than Schildkraut is that basest of heels, Bruce Cabot, who does battle, fisticuffs and otherwise, with Elliott. Andy Devine is on tap with some new twists to his familiar dumb lummox characterization, and the action, while jerky, is certainly forceful.

JOSE FERRER and Eugenie Leontovich, stars of next week's comedy at the Olney, "Twentieth Century," will put in an appearance with the Musical Arts Choir at the Americans for Democratic Action party Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, 501 Dorset ave., Somerset, Chevy Chase . . . Another guest on the entertainment program will be pianist Juanita Russell.

WHILE Frank Fay's "Harvey" will be closing its record-breaking run tonight at the National, the comedy will be breaking another record on the New York stage, where Fay created "Harvey's" friend . . . Tonight's will be the 1559th consecutive performance on the stage of the Forty-eighth Street, which means the rabbit comedy has outlasted "The Voice of the Turtle" . . . Only four other plays of the American theater have longer runs racked up: "Life With Father," "Tobacco Road," "Abie's Irish Rose" and "Oklahoma" . . . James Dunn is now playing the lead in New York; after tonight's closing Fay takes off for a holiday in Hollywood . . . He'll be off to the road again come fall.

NO TIME FOR THIS: Though Richard Widmark and Joan Chandler look like close friends in this scene from "The Street With No Name," there's not much time for romancing in the film from the FBI files now in its second week at the Palace. This one's an action-packed melodrama

Installment Sales By High Pressure Are Investigated

Justice Division Studies Complaint; Merchants Turn to Courts to Collect

An inquiry is under way to determine whether some merchants are deliberately high-pressuring installment buyers into purchasing more than they can afford—then taking court action to recover the debts.

Justice Department attorneys have discussed such complaints—which are reportedly not new here—with Municipal Court judges in an effort to find how widespread they are and what, if anything, can be done in the situation.

A. Abbot Rosen, chief of the Justice Department's civil rights division, yesterday said his office had been designated to study the complaints, although no specific aspect of civil rights is involved.

Called "Social Problem"

He termed the alleged practices "in some respects, a social problem," and said the reason his office was assigned to the investigation was because the complaints involve low-income groups, particularly Negro buyers.

James H. Rowe, jr., first assistant to the Attorney General from 1941 to 1943, brought the issue to the Justice Department's attention last March, stating some local stores "resort to every kind of device first to get these people to use credit, and, second, to overextend themselves."

When credit payments are not made, merchants can obtain summonses through the Small Claims Division of Municipal Court, to be mailed to the debtor, or, on payment of a $2.50 fee, obtain the services of a United States marshal to serve a summons in person.

If the claim is justified, the debtor's salary can be attached, although Federal workers' salaries are exempt from attachment.

Informed yesterday that an investigation was being made, Rowe declared:

"I'm delighted to hear about it—it's an old problem in Washington. Why should Uncle Sam be a bill collector?"

New Law Held Necessary

Rowe said he believed only new legislation could change the situation, and several local attorneys expressed a similar opinion.

Attorneys pointed out that the District Code, under a 1901 statute, provides that the salary of the head of a family is exempt from debt attachments for earnings only up to $100 a month, for two months after a writ of attachment is issued.

Items fully exempt from attachment include wearing apparel, "one horse, mule, or yoke of oxen," and similar property. Bedding and furniture are exempt up to $300.

This legislation should be brought up to date, to meet current living and salary conditions, one Justice Department attorney stated. In New York State, he said, salaries below $15 a week are fully exempt from attachment, and beyond that amount, only 10 per cent of wages can be attached.

Wartime Curbs Off

During the last war, and continuing to November 1, 1947, curbs on installment buying tended to prevent overbuying by low-income groups. Down payments of one third the price were required on automobiles and household appliances, and down payments of one fifth on furniture and rugs, with a 15-month limit on payment.

A firm denial that "legitimate" stores engage in forcing customers to overextend their buying came yesterday from John K. Althaus, general manager of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington, which he said is the credit-clearing house for 1000 firms in metropolitan Washington, including large department stores.

"The extent of credit in the City of Washington is based on the ability of a store's customers to pay for the purchases which they may desire to charge," he said.

"For the convenience of their customers, there are regular 30-day terms, or if desired, installment terms can be paid over a period of months. Retail stores are most careful that customers should be protected against even their own tendencies to buy too much, if they are so inclined.

"There certainly is no reason to believe the legitimate stores of this city ever have, or ever will, influence you or me to charge that which we cannot conveniently pay."

D. C. Man Gets $20,000 For Injuries of 1944

Front Royal, Va., July 9 (Spl.).—A Washington, D. C., welder and sheet metal worker was awarded $20,000 damages by the Warren County Circuit Court last night for injuries suffered in a traffic accident here in 1944.

Washington neurological and orthopedic specialists testified that the plaintiff, Wesley M. Childress, had become incapacitated for his trade as a result of his injuries. Childress said he suffered an injury to his spinal cord when an automobile driven by Ward E. Myers, jr., crashed into his parked car on October 28, 1944.

His Jaw Hurt

Boy Coughs Up Bullet At Hospital

An 18-year-old youth coughed up a bullet before the eyes of amazed George Washington University Hospital physicians last night after saying he injured his jaw in a fall.

When he reported for treatment, William McClaine, 1021 30th st. nw., had a "very small" cut on his lip and five teeth on the upper right side of his jaw were knocked out. The injuries could have resulted from a fall, Dr. Jerome Pollack said.

A tiny cut was then discovered at the back of the patient's throat as he was about to be dismissed. In the final swabbing, McClaine gagged and coughed up the bullet, the doctor said.

Shortly after, police arrested John J. Brown, 28, 1074 30th st. nw., an ironworker, and charged him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

McClaine's sister, Ellen Brown, also of 1021 30th st. nw., said a shooting occurred while her brother was pitching horseshoes in a back lot near their home.

Licensees Hit ABC Plan for More Data

Protests against two proposed alcoholic beverage control regulations which would require increased bookkeeping by licensees were filed with the ABC Board yesterday.

The new rules would require restaurant and taproom proprietors to keep separate records of their receipts for food and alcoholic beverages, and for all sums disbursed by the business. The purpose of the latter amendment, Alan W. Payne, chairman of the board explained, would be to reveal hidden owners of such establishments.

A. H. Dressel, president of the Washington Restaurant Association, protested against the second regulation, declaring that disbursement records would not necessarily show a hidden owner if the restaurant licensee were dishonest.

Privacy of Records

Watson B. Rulon, a past president of the association, also objected to the second amendment, contending that such profit and salary records should be private.

Speaking against the amendment on beverage and food receipts, Philip A. Guarino, operator of Phil's Spaghetti House, 7307 Georgia ave. nw., said that if it were put into effect, 95 per cent of Washington's licensees of small restaurants might find themselves in an illegal position.

Payne, who pointed out the legal requirements already on the books, told the protestants they should appeal to Congress if they disagreed with the separate receipts aspect of the law.

Insurance Man Likes Proposal

Speaking in favor of the first amendment, R. A. Farretta, an insurance company attorney, said many licensed places keep such poor records it is difficult for them to recover insurance after robbery.

The need for the proposed regulations has been felt by ABC inspectors so that they may know whether the law is being obeyed.

Police Recover Body of Man in Kingman Lake

After 16 hours of dragging, harbor police yesterday at 12:25 p. m. recovered from Kingman Lake the body of a man identified as Julian Smith, 21, laborer, of 1520 Gales st. ne.

Police had searched the lake since about 8 p. m. Thursday when Smith fell into the lake while fishing with his wife and brother, about 100 yards north of Benning rd. ne.

His family reported that Smith had decided to swim, after he toppled into the water. He removed his shoes, then sank, they said. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death due to drowning.

Woman Found Dead Under Bed In St. Elizabeths

A 49-year-old Washington woman was found dead under her bed at St. Elizabeths Hospital last night after she had failed to appear for supper.

Hospital authorities said the woman, Mrs. Gladys Williams, was found with the strings of her jacket knotted about her throat. She was pronounced dead at 5:37 p. m. by a staff physician.

Mrs. Williams, whose address was given as 2700 Wisconsin ave. nw., had been an inmate of the hospital since 1946. She had shown signs of depression and was upset mentally, hospital authorities said, although she had appeared in good spirits at the 3:30 p. m. check.

Prizes Awarded to 45 Safety-Conscious Youths

The Washington Post

COMMISSIONER OFFICIATES—District Commissioner John Russell Young, holding the list of prize-winners over his head, tells Washington youngsters the awards they won in the District's Summer Traffic Safety Essay Contest

"This summer I plan to be very careful and use safety first."

That's the way Susan June Tassler, 7, began her essay on Traffic Safety, and the judges were so impressed with her letter they gave her first prize in the contest.

Yesterday, Susan and 44 other District area youngsters crowded around a truck full of prizes in front of the District Building while Commissioner John Russell Young, Leon Chatelain, jr., president of the Washington Board of Trade, and A. Julian Brylawski handed over prizes in the District's Summer Traffic Safety Essay Contest ranging from a $100 savings bond down to roller skates, dolls, a radio, and bicycles.

Nearly 1000 Entries

Susan Tassler's winning essay was picked from nearly 1000 entries, and was chosen on the basis of originality, instructiveness and neatness. She wrote:

"This summer I plan to be very careful and use safety first. Everyone wants to save lives, so I will not play in the street, nor run out after a toy. I know children love toys, but life is more important. Also, children should not hitch rides or run between parked cars. If you play in the street, you could get killed, while playing on the sidewalk is much safer.

"Children should only cross streets at the corners when the green light says 'go.' So you see, if you follow safety first you will be happier and much more safe!"

Runners-up for the grand prize were Jean Kissick, 10, of 4028 8th st. ne., who won a radio, and Ramon Valencia, 14, of 3418 Brown st. nw., who won a bicycle.

First prizes of wrist watches went to John Lewis Smith 3d, 6, of 2801 38th st. nw., in the under-8-years age group; Virginia Lee Freeman, 11, 6433 8th st. nw., in the 8-to-11 age group, and Barbara Key Weigle, 13, of 5324 41st st. nw., in the 11-to-14 age group.

Gift certificates of $25 from downtown department stores were awarded to Ralph Kissick, 7, 4028 8th st. ne.; Virginia Lee Hood, 11, 5000 Ventnor rd., Green Acres, Md., and Angela Dondero, 13, of 5602 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md.

A total of 36 other prizes, including sporting goods, roller skates, dolls and games, were awarded to other contestants. One of the winners in this group, Mary L. Arnold, 12, of 630 Park rd. nw., is almost completely deaf and blind. At her own request she received a pair of roller skates. The Board of Education recently arranged to send the child to a special school for her education.

Others Winners Named

Other prize winners were: Margaret Carroll, 8, of 6303 Maple ave., Chevy Chase, Md.; David P. Herren, 10, of 1208 Congress st. se.; Alan Desseff, 12 of 5025 Edgemoor Lane, Bethesda; Mary Mullins, 8, of 1644 W st. se.; Barry Fribush, 7, of 319 Douglas st. ne.; Orah Edwin Folks, 8, of 4721 3d pl. nw.; Joe Dillon Holthouser, 8, of 401 V st ne.

Ronald Krieger, 7, of 1460 Euclid st. nw.; Jane L. Goldsmith, 6, of 3219 Cathedral ave. nw.; Clare Pratt, 8, of 404 Rosemary st., Chevy Chase, Md.; Carolyn Grace Schneider, 8, of 427 Kennedy st. nw.; Sara Jane Rodgers, 8, of 246 33d st. ne.

Cox Offering Two District Rule Planks

Gives Democrats Choice of Language On Voting Right

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 9.—A District of Columbia home rule plank identical with the GOP platform stand for local suffrage, today was presented to the Democratic resolutions committee.

Gen. Albert L. Cox, a member of the D. C. delegation, and its representative on the Democratic platform-drafting group, said it is one of two local planks he will ask the committee to choose between.

The home rule plank, like the 11-word declaration in the Republican platform, reads:

"We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

As an alternative District voting plank, Cox also presented the Democratic Party's 1944 suffrage stand:

"We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

Cox told reporters the District delegation is "for both" and will let the committee choose.

The shorter declaration, previously embodied in the Republican platform, was construed by the GOP plank makers as supporting the Auchincloss plan which reached the floor of the House in the last Congress, but never passed.

Cox said he thought either plank he presented would provide backing for the Auchincloss home rule idea, or broader proposals.

Francis J. Myers, resolutions chairman, told reporters he could not forecast the action of his committee, but felt certain local District suffrage in some form will be indorsed, as it was by the Democrats in 1944.

The 12-member District delegation, which will cast six votes in the Democratic convention, is instructed as a unit for President Truman. Cox said the delegation will caucus Monday.

Women's League Ends Bond Drive

The Women's Bond-a-Month League, composed of 300 Washington women, headed by Mrs. Harry S. Truman as honorary chairman, wound up its Security Loan campaign yesterday.

More than $2,300,000 in bonds were sold. Thirty-four teams were awarded prizes for outstanding sales.

Mrs. Thelma N. Dawson, secretary of the Building Trades Council, won first prize by selling $803,500 in series E, F and G bonds.

Expert Advises Falls Church To Annex Five Communities

Immediate action to annex five adjoining communities was urged upon the Falls Church Town Council last night by an annexation expert, following a two-day survey of the area.

Dr. Thomas Reed, employed by the City of Roanoke, Va., emphasized possible loss of future revenue and increased expense of remedying mistakes of poor planning as the price of delay.

"The character of the area is being fixed so rapidly that any annexation for orderly use must come fast," Dr. Reed told council members in the town hall.

He pointed out that in uncontrolled areas building growth takes place without any orderly scheme of street layout, building lines or business zoning. This leads to great confusion in attempting to bring about compliance with existing regulation of the controlled area when annexation occurs.

Specifically, Dr. Reed recommended the employment of a planning engineer to determine what area should properly be taken into the community, and what services could be offered the annexed sections.

Communities which Falls Church hopes eventually to annex are East Greenway Downs, Jefferson Village, Lee Boulevard Heights and Birch subdivisions, plus the remainder of Hillwood. All lie on the Fairfax County side of the town.

Griffin Heads Publicity Unit Of Chest Drive

Tom Griffin, advertising manager of the Washington Daily News, has been appointed chairman of the publicity committee for the 1948 Community Chest federation drive.

The annual campaign raises funds for six Community Chests in the Greater Washington area. Griffin's appointment was announced by Col. Chauncey G. Parker, director of administration of the World Bank and general chairman of the drive.

Griffin succeeds Matt Meyer, who has handled Red Feather campaign publicity for the past four years. Griffin received his appointment as publicity chairman from Ben Strouse, president of the Washington Advertising Club, which is sponsoring the campaign publicity drive.

The Ad Club has sponsored publicity for the drive for the past four years. The committee will be made up wholly of club members. Griffin has served with the Daily News for 10 years as classified advertising manager, national advertising manager, and now as advertising manager. He lives with his family at Linden, Md.

113 Employes Of Red Cross Get Awards

The Red Cross handed out awards yesterday to 113 employes of its national headquarters here who have served a total of more than 770 years. Ceremonies were held at the national headquarters garden.

Ribbons for 30 years of service were presented by James T. Nicholson, executive vice president of the Red Cross, to Mrs. Miriam Knox of 1812 K st. nw.; Antoinette Hardisty of Lanham, Md.; Doretta Taylor of 1812 K st. nw.; Mrs. Mattie Whitney of 4706 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, Md.; Mrs. Lucille Robinson of 6805 Laurel st., Takoma Park, D. C., and Herman Hughes of 532 20th st. nw.

A 20-year service bar was awarded Mrs. Bertha Thomas of 815 18th st. nw., and 15-year bars went to Mrs. Rhoda Davis of 1537 T st. nw. and Roderic Gillette, now of San Francisco.

Ten-year service bars were given to Suzon Bell of 1303 Decatur st., nw.; Joseph Leverenz of 3614 Oval dr., Alexandria; Alice McPherson of 6320 14th st. nw. and Caroll O. Minor of 117 M st. sw. One hundred bars for 5 years of service also were awarded.

Judge to Study Contempt Charge

Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the Arlington Circuit Court yesterday took under advisement whether or not Arlington County is in contempt for failing to grant a building permit to a District realtor.

The order is being sought by the Garfield I. Kass Realty Co., whose permit to build at 3006 Wilson blvd. was denied because the county claimed the structure as planned violated building regulations.

But the Circuit Court ruled the Arlington Building Code had a loophole, ordered the county to grant the permit. Although the county board later remedied the loophole, Kass attorneys have maintained during two days of hearings that the new law does not apply to the case and are asking the county be held in contempt for failing to grant the permit.

Roy J. Mickey, Hit by Auto June 19, Dies

Autopsy Scheduled Today to Determine Exact Cause of Death

A 75-year-old man recuperating from injuries in an auto accident last month, yesterday collapsed and died while walking in the 5100 block of Chevy Chase pkwy. nw.

He was Roy J. Mickey, retired Bureau of Engraving and Printing machinist, of 5112 Connecticut ave. nw. An autopsy is to be performed today to determine if death was traceable to the auto accident injuries.

Mickey was struck by a car driven by Robert E. Leonard, 25, of 1335 North Carolina ave. ne. at Connecticut and Nebraska aves. nw. on June 19, police said. Mickey, who suffered left leg and forehead injuries and a nasal hemorrhage, was under treatment at Suburban Hospital until eight days ago.

Since his release from the hospital, Mickey had been under the care of a nurse, Mrs. Hattie Brooks, at his home. Mrs. Brooks said he left home about 1 p. m. yesterday for a walk. He collapsed soon after he left.

Mickey retired some four years ago after 30 years service with the Government, his family said. He was a Spanish-American war veteran. He leaves a stepdaughter, Mrs. Susanne Worford, of the Connecticut ave. address, and a sister, Miss Virginia Mickey, of Cleveland.

10 Pct. Rent Hike Granted To Apartment

A 10 per cent increase in rents for the tenants at the Warwick apartment house was approved yesterday by the District of Columbia Rent Control Administration.

The increase, which affects 75 units, was granted to J. Charles Shapiro and Katherine Kamen, owners of the building at 3051 Idaho ave. nw.

The hike was asked because of a rise in taxes, maintenance and operating costs, and in water rent, which the apartment house owners said had been "substantial" since 1941.

Originally they had requested the Rent Control Board to grant a 19 per cent increase in the rent, but this figure was reduced by William F. Mansfield, examiner, who conducted the hearings.

The increase will amount to $6161.40 on an annual basis. The scale of rents now is $49.50 to $110 per month, and will go up to $54.05 to $120.10 per month.

Dr. Ruhland Acts To Curb Spread Of Tuberculosis

All Indicted

29 Plead Not Guilty in Gaming Cases

Twenty-nine persons pleaded innocent in District Court yesterday to grand jury charges of numbers game operations here. The pleas were taken by Justice David A. Pine.

The indictments on which the pleas were based were returned by the regular grand jury. A special grand jury has been investigating the gambling situation here since May 17.

In all cases yesterday, defense counsel received 10 days in which to file motions in the cases. The charges were: operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips, and, in certain cases, setting up a gaming table.

Entering the not guilty pleas were:

Ralph A. Frazier, 48, of 3756 Grant st. ne.; Edward Hughes, 42, of 104 N st. sw.; Mrs. Edna Hughes, 42, of 104 N st. sw.; Novella Coghill, 21, of 30 Patterson st. ne.; Ell Johnson, 49, 56 Patterson st. ne.; Louise Johnson, 42, of 56 Patterson st. ne.; Fred Makin, 40, of 418 Alabama ave. se.; Joseph L. Holmes, 38, of 56 N st. sw.; Charles E. Hines, 29, of 2628 Barry rd. se.; Frank J. Battista, 33, of 1400 Woodside parkway, Silver Spring, Md.; John Fitzgerald, 43, 1414 Pennsylvania ave. se.; George L. Langley, 33, of 2524 N. Florida st., Arlington; William Perry, 40, of 1240 Harrison pl. sw.; William E. McGee, 38, of 2715 Central ave ne.; Myer Friedburg, 59, of 807 Otis pl. nw.; Robert Williams, 52, of 508 21st st. ne.; Leslie W. Hayes, 27, Dunbar Hotel; Edna M. Young, 44, of 1125 5th st. ne.; John W. Smith, 51, of 519 L st. ne.; John Rozier, 48, of 76 I st. nw.; Herman G. Brown, 41, of 1036 6th st. ne.; Luther E. Saunders, 44, of 1039 5th st. ne.; Clarence B. Danridge, 37, of 1316 22d st. nw.; Beatrice Campbell, 39, of 1633 4th st. nw.; Jency Garrett, 41, of 611 Aker st. ne.; Otis Jones, 28, 411 E st. ne.; William A. Brown, 30, of 52 L st. nw.; Sam Morgan, 42, of 705 Wayne ave., Silver Spring, Md., and Mary Charles, 31, of 70 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Meeting of Various Health Units Called After Survey Shows 6401 Affected Here

District Health Officer Dr. George C. Ruhland said last night he will call a meeting of public and private agencies soon to discuss the tuberculosis problem here.

A city-wide X-ray chest survey disclosed that 6401 persons were suffering from tuberculosis in various stages. Results of the survey were made known Thursday.

The health officer said he believes a cooperative anti-TB effort can do much to stamp out the disease despite present inadequate facilities here for hospitalization and care.

Hospitalization Lacking

His plan for a meeting to start such an effort came on the heels of a preliminary report showing that some 90 of 190 advanced TB patients are unable to obtain badly needed hospitalization.

The 190 need hospital treatment immediately, health officials emphasized. Dr. Ruhland said "it goes without saying that we are unable to provide hospital care at present" for the additional patients expected to require such treatment in the near future.

The Health Officer said he would ask the cooperation of the TB advisory board—made up of physicians and specialists on the technical level—Federal agencies, hospital officials, the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, social agencies and groups which participated in the chest survey.

"We must have further diagnosis of many of the cases turned up by the survey," he said. "Also, we will have to use facilities for which we can't now get the staff. As for the beds, I hope we can get 100 more beds in hospitals."

"Personally, I see no reason why private hospitals shouldn't take some cases, of certain types," he declared.

"We will need money to employ people," he continued, "and we will need to get people who will work for the money we can pay them. We shall also tackle the problem of how to care for patients at home.

Hopes for Quick Cures

"I hope through cooperation and education we can demonstrate that we can cure minimal cases with the right care and use of penicillin or streptomycin, in the space of four, five or six months," he said.

If the community waits until patients become advanced cases, he warned, "there is little we can do except treat them, usually for two years or longer, and try to prevent the disease from spreading."

A survey of the three District hospitals which have facilities for TB patients yesterday showed a maximum of about 18 TB beds for adults vacant. Health officials pointed out, however, that the patients requiring hospitalization are often not in the right categories to obtain the beds that are vacant.

At Glenn Dale Sanatorium, all but 21 of the 618 available TB beds are occupied, Dr. Daniel L. Finucane, superintendent, reported. Of the 21, six are for children and 15 for adults.

At Gallinger Municipal Hospital, the 181 available and equipped beds are all taken. There is one floor of 52 additional beds which would be available if it could be equipped and staffed, he said.

A maximum of three vancies at this time was reported at Freedmen's Hospital, in the 135 beds equipped and set aside for the care of adults. These three are for women.

Of the 6401 local residents reported thus far by the survey as having TB symptoms, some 5571 were referred to the Health Department for further diagnosis and treatment, while 644 were referred to the Veterans Administration.

Veterans who had wartime service and who required hospitalization but could not afford private care, are being sent to the VA's TB hospitals in the area, the Social Service Section of the local VA office reported. More than 100 have been thus hospitalized so far, at Martinsburg, W. Va., Oteen, N. C., and a few in Richmond or other VA hospitals near the homes of individual patients.

Veterans not requiring hospitalization, whose TB condition was service-connected, are receiving treatment at the regional TB clinic conducted by the VA at 1825 H st. nw., under Dr. Charles Cake, specialist.

Policeman Stages 1-Man Drive on Vice

A policeman testified yesterday in Municipal Court that he was "propositioned" to commit immoral acts five times within 75 minutes in downtown Washington Thursday night.

What is more, the testimony of the policeman, Pvt. Frank N. Manthos of the First Precinct, resulted in convictions in four cases. He was in plainclothes when he received the "propositions."

Young, black-haired and handsome, Private Manthos blushed and had to restrain his giggles as he described the offers of intimacies he received from both men and women as he worked a special detail in a quarter-mile square area centering around 10th and New York ave. nw. He made the five arrests between midnight and 1:15 a. m., he said.

Acted on Complaints

Assistant United States Attorney Robert Short told the court that Private Manthos was put on the job after numerous complaints were made to Police Headquarters that citizens were being solicited in the downtown area.

When it was all over, Defense Attorney Andrew Carroll who had three of the cases, exclaimed in court:

"I'll admit that Private Manthos is handsome but from what he says it seems that men and women were falling over each other trying to solicit him. It doesn't seem right."

Manthos said that he escorted each of the defendants to the call box at 9th and K sts. nw., as soon as they had solicited, and then walked down the dark streets until he was again accosted.

Cases Listed

The cases, all heard by Judge George D. Neilson, follow:

Alice Speak, 39, 909 M st. nw., fined $100 for soliciting prostitution.

Louise Johnson, 21, also of 909 M. st. nw.; fined $100 for soliciting prostitution.

Alberta White, 29, no fixed address, found innocent of soliciting prostitution.

Edward M. Parker, 33, of 933 N st. nw., held under $2000 bond for the grand jury on a pandering charge.

Horace D. Nelson, 29, 1217 8th st. nw., fined $100 for soliciting prostitution.

Private Manthos said that he had worked a shift from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. yesterday, and then was called out on the special detail to investigate the morals complaint.

Vice Squad Plain Closethesman Louis A. Fochette testified that at 1:45 a. m. he was propositioned by Amelia Frazier, 30, no known address. She was fined $100 for soliciting prostitution.

Sailor Is Arrested In Relief Forgery

A 22-year-old Navy steward's mate was arrested yesterday afternoon while cashing a $200 Navy Relief Society Fund check that the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported had been forged.

The sailor, William J. Bunter of 1232 Union st. sw., was taken before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, where he admitted his guilt and was placed under $3000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of violating the National Stolen Property Act.

Bunter, stationed at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Md., was apprehended by an FBI agent at the National Bank of Washington.

The agent was at the bank to investigate $525 worth of bad Navy Relief Society Fund checks that had appeared recently. A teller called his attention to Bunter's check.

Man Fined in Girl Case

Robert Norris, 28, of 71 Decatur st., Kensington, Md., yesterday was fined $25 in Montgomery County Juvenile Court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Police said Norris was arrested on a warrant sworn by the mother of a 14-year-old Kensington girl. The warrant charged Norris kept the girl out after hours sometimes as late as 2 and 3 a. m.

Auto Tag Sought

If police can recover an auto license tag which Henry A. Adams of New Britain, Conn., reported stolen yesterday, he should be able to identify it without any trouble. It has his name on it, or at least most of his name.

The tag, which has simply the letters "ADAM 48 CT." on it, is one of those issued by the State of Connecticut to applicants at least 30 years of age who haven't been arrested for traffic violations during the past five years, Adams explained.

Adams, who bewailed the extra $5 and "two or three months" of waiting for a new tag, said its mate on the front of his car was not stolen, though it was bent, and he asked police to take fingerprints from it. The car was parked in front of 624 9th st. sw., where he was staying.

Envoy Gets Checkup

Paul Humiston Alling, United States Ambassador to Pakistan, was admitted to the Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday for a physical check.

The Ambassador left Karachi, India, June 27 and spent 10 days in a hospital in Istanbul before coming to the United States. He was accompanied by his wife, who said he had been seriously ill for several months with amoebic dysentery and pneumonia.

$10 for Wrong Tag

Leonard Stein, 30, of 212 Oakwood st. se., lost out in Municipal Court on his claim that because he is a resident of Pennsylvania and goes there at least once a month, he does not have to have District tags for his automobile.

Stein was fined $10 by Judge Walter J. Casey for driving his automobile with Pennsylvania tags. It was a retrial for Stein, who earlier was found guilty by another judge.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King contended successfully that Stein's residence is here, so far as the traffic regulations are concerned. King said that Stein has lived here since 1939, banks, works and has a phone here, and even drove a taxicab in the District in 1942.

Policeman on Job

An alert park policeman yesterday recovered a stolen case of cigarettes before the theft was reported.

The policeman, Pvt. John Rensen, observed two boys on a bicycle carrying the cigarettes on Brentwood rd. ne. near Florida ave. about 3:30 p.m. The boys ran into the woods when he stopped them, but one, a 16-year-old juvenile was captured and taken to the Receiving Home.

An hour later, Alexander Listis, an employe of Dailey's Drug Store, 1324 Florida ave. ne., called the Ninth Precinct to report the theft from the store.

Pilot Seeks Damages

Capt. Herbert W. Tansey, 34, pilot of a TWA passenger plane which crashed in Ireland in December, 1946, seeks $20,000 damages from an insurance company in a District Court suit filed yesterday.

Captain Tansey, who now resides in Ontario, Calif., named the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. as defendant. He said he was carrying two $10,000 insurance policies when he lost his right foot and injured his left foot in the crash. He contends the insurance company has failed to compensate him for his injuries.

Beetle Sprays Ready

A free Japanese beetle spray service for Montgomery County homeowners was launched yesterday by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The DDT spraying, which must be requested, will be done first on properties situated closest to public parks. Due to limited equipment, all persons who apply may not be served.

Vanderbilt U. Official Heads U. S. Educational Unit

Bennett H. Branscomb, Nashville, Tenn., chancellor of Vanderbilt University, was named by President Truman yesterday as chairman of the new United States Advisory Commission for Exchange of Educational Information. The appointment is for a three-year term.

The commission was authorized by Congress to recommend to the Secretary of State programs for the exchange of educational information among various nations.

Appointed as members for two-year terms were Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, and Carl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mark Starr, educational director of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, and Martin P. McGuire, professor at Catholic University, were named to one-year terms.

Salvation Army on Air

The history of the Salvation Army will be presented in the "Americans All" radio program broadcast Sunday over station WOOK at 1:30 p. m. The program will include an interview with Capt. Albert Osborn, well known for his Salvation Army work.

Early Reappears in Frederick To Collect $200,000 Ransom

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Frederick, Md., July 9. — Gen. Jubal Early returned to this historic Maryland town today and collected a $200,000 ransom after threat of burning the town to the ground.

The Confederate raider led gray-clad cavalry up Market st. to the Fredericktown Savings Institution where the present town Mayor Lloyd Cullor turned over bags bulging with money.

Townsfolk jammed Market st. to see this reenactment of events that occurred 84 years ago. It was the second annual presentation by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the pageant, "Fighting for Time."

Historians say that the ransom negotiations delayed General Early's forces in Frederick in his march on Washington and enabled Union reinforcements to reach and save the Capital.

The Battle of Monocacy in which Union troops were defeated but gained valuable time was fought at nearby Frederick Junction.

Ransom Still Being Paid

The town-saving ransom, incidentally, is still being paid off. The full debt, which with interest over the years amounts to about $600,000, is expected to be retired entirely by 1951.

Cash payments from a city bonding issue have been made to the lending banks in recent years in annual sums of $1500. Earlier, the payments were accomplished through canceling tax indebtedness of the banks.

Repeated efforts to have Congress reimburse Frederick for the levy have failed to pass in both the Senate and House.

Today's bearded General Early was Richard L. Shoemaker, plant foreman at a baking company and president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Confederate soldiers were members of the Lost Stirrup Riding Club.

Last year the pageant braved rain but today the weather was much like that described by John Greenleaf Whittier in Barbara Fritchie—the poem which, more than the historical importance of Frederick, has made the town famous.

"On that pleasant morn," according to Whittier, the elderly widow Barbara Fritchie defied Confederate troops and waved a Union flag in the face of Stonewall Jackson.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Kelly, a collateral descendant of Barbara, today played her role.

She stood in the doorway of the reconstructed Frietchie home, now a museum, and unfurled a Union flag as the Confederate troops rode by.

Another legend told in Frederick was reenacted by Mrs. Margaret Eula Carter, who, as a "Mrs. Quantrell," waved a Union flag at Confederate soldiers only to have the flag torn from its staff and hurled back at her.

Shoemaker, who literally doubled in brass as both Early and Jackson stopped by the Presbyterian manse and left a note for a minister friend. Frederick historians say that the famed "Stonewall" made such a trip.

Authenticity was lent to the pageant by costumes of the period found in attics in Frederick houses. The town itself to a great extent has defied change. Today it looked much like when Whittier wrote:

"The clustered spires of Frederick stand
Green-walled by the hills of Maryland.
Round about them orchads sweep
Apple and peach tree fruited deep,
Fair as a garden of the Lord
To the eyes of the famished rebel horde."

Inquiry Slated In Arrest of Photographer

Richmond, Va., July 9 (AP).—Governor Tuck said today in reply to a protest against the arrest of an Associated Press photographer in northern Virginia on a charge of refusing to move on from the scene of an accident that he regretted "the occurrence of any incident which would have the appearance of infringing on the rights of the press."

The Governor's statement was made in a letter to Howard Hammersley, jr., Roanoke photographer and chairman of the Virginia Press Association committee on photography.

Hammersley sent the Governor a copy of a telegram he sent to Col. C. W. Woodson, jr., superintendent of State police, protesting the arrest of Joseph D. Jamieson of Washington. He said the action of State Patrolman P. P. Herndon showed that the trooper "has taken advantage of his authority as an officer to set himself up as a censor of the type of pictures to be taken by a professional newspaperman."

The telegram also requested the police superintendent to make a full investigation "and take such steps as may be necessary to prevent a recurrence of this incident."

Woodson sent Hammersley a letter in which he said "I want to assure you and other members of the press with whom I have talked that there will be a very thorough investigation of the arrest of Mr. Jamieson, and appropriate action will be taken."

Both the Governor and Woodson assured the Roanoker that it was the intention of the Department of State Police to cooperate with the press. Woodson noted that in the State Police manual the subject of press relations was covered. He added that if the investigation showed a need for supplementing the general order in the manual, such a supplement would be issued Jamieson's case in Trial Justice Court at Manassas has been continued until July 30 and may be continued to a later date.

Polio in Three States Swells U. S. Figures

The unusual number of polio cases in three States is continuing to swell the Nation's total beyond normal, the United States Public Health Service said yesterday.

In Greater Washington, no cases have been reported since Wednesday, when it was disclosed that three District children and four Virginia patients were under treatment at hospitals here.

Dr. James G. Cumming, director, communicable disease division, District Health Department, said there was the same number of cases during the same period in 1947 and there was nothing in the local situation to cause alarm at this time.

In Virginia, however, State Health Commissioner Dr. L. J. Roper yesterday announced the formation of a three-man emergency staff to coordinate the health department's activities in the event of a polio epidemic this summer.

Dr. Roper said he remains hopeful there will be no Virginia epidemic. Virginia now has 26 cases of infantile paralysis.

North Carolina Hard Hit

North Carolina, one of the three States most afflicted, reported 29 new cases yesterday, with eight deaths in less than a week, the Associated Press said.

The new cases brought the State's total for the year to 437, most of them reported in the past few weeks.

Dr. J. W. R. Norton, State health officer, warned against panic and deprecated warnings of health officers in adjacent States who said their citizens should beware of traveling in North Carolina. "The traffic hazard is considerably more to worry about anywhere than the outbreak here," he said.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has sent extra iron lungs and more than 100 nurses into North Carolina, and Greensboro has broken ground on a $60,000 emergency polio hospital, the United Press reported.

Others Heavily Afflicted

The other two States most heavily afflicted are Texas and California.

Reports to the Public Health Service showed a total of 362 new cases for the week ended July 3, of which 233—or 64 per cent—were reported in the three States.

California for the week ended July 3 reported 74 new cases, against 62 the preceding week. Texas showed a drop, reporting 67 new cases, as compared with 78 the preceding week.

The USPHS said that despite the high incidence in the three States there is no indication at present of a Nation-wide epidemic.

Nationally, cases for the year through July 3 totaled 2367, as compared with 1201 cases for the same period in 1947, and 1854 cases in 1946.

Funeral Rites Are Held for Heber Mason

Funeral services for Heber R. Mason, 76, retired manager of the Washington branch of the Buick Motor Co., were held yesterday at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial was in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Mason, who was known to his friends as "Pop," died at his home, 2824 28th st. nw., Wednesday. He had been in poor health for several years.

Born in Warren, Mich., he was with the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for 29 years. When he left it in 1919, he was commercial superintendent of the Saginaw division of the company.

Mr. Mason came to Washington as sales manager of the Washington branch of Buick in 1919 and was branch manager for two years before his retirement in 1934.

From 1934 until 1945 he was active in the real estate business and had been a salesman for J. Rupert Mohler Co.

He was a Mason and a Shriner.

Mr. Mason is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ada Gregory Mason of the 28th st. addres; two sons, Frank M. Mason of Mount Clemens, Mich., and Gregory B. Mason of 113 Oxford st., Chevy Chase, Md.; a daughter, Mrs. U. S. Gray, 3000 Connecticut ave. nw., and four grandchildren; also a brother, Earl Mason of Ionia, Mich., and a sister, Mr. Walter Bishop of Akron, Ohio.

Lawrence S. Heelen

Funeral services will be held Monday at St. Joseph's Church in Martinsburg, W. Va., for Lawrence S. Heelen, 67, who died at his home Thursday.

Mr. Heelen, a retired railway expressman and a member of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship employes, came to Washington from West Virginia in 1917. He lived at 433 New Jersey ave. se. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Frances Heelen, three sons and two daughters.

Truman Names Two to Capital Park Board

President Truman yesterday appointed Frederick Bigger of Pittsburgh and William Wilson Wurster of Cambridge, Mass., to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Wurster, dean of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology school of architecture and planning, will fill the unexpired six-year term of Henry V. Hubbard of Milton, Mass., which started in 1944. Hubbard, who had served since 1932, died this past October.

Bigger, chairman of the Pittsburgh City Planning Commission, succeeds J. C. Nichols of Kansas City, who had served since establishment of the commission in 1926 and asked not to be reappointed at the expiration of his term last April.

Bigger formerly served with the Resettlement Administration and helped plan Greenbelt, Md., Greenhills, Ohio, and Greendale, Wis. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has been in architectural work about 40 years, specializing in city planning and housing the past 30 years. Since 1940 he has been urban planning adviser to the Federal Housing Administration.

Wurster, a graduate of the University of California, has been in architectural work nearly 40 years, the last 25 years in the East.

In 1943 he was appointed a fellow in the graduate school of design at Harvard and in 1944 dean at MIT. He is also engaged in private practice.

Soldier Held for Rape Pleads Not Guilty

Pvt. John J. Cook, 19, Fort McNair soldier, pleaded innocent yesterday in District Court to a charge of raping a 15-year-old girl on the McKinley High School grounds May 29. In accepting the plea, Justice David A. Pine refused to lower the $10,000 bond under which Cook is held. Pine described the attack as "particularly vicious."

Funeral Rites For Mrs. Evans Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Meta Amelia Morris Evans, 78, who died Thrusday, will be held today at the Lee funeral home, Massachusetts ave. and 4th st. ne.

Mrs. Evans, who made her home at 1305 17th st. nw., was born in Burlington, Iowa, on the estate of her grandfather, Shepherd Leffler, the first Representative to Congress from the State of Iowa.

She was married to George Washington Evans of Clifton, Ohio, and came to Washington in 1900. She was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church and the Chevy Chase Club.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Meta Morris Evans, and a son, Chambliss Evans, both of the 17th st. address.

Nathan L. Kobin

Funeral services were held in Baltimore yesterday for Nathan L. Kobin, 48, foreign proof editor at the Government Printing Office, who died Thursday at Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore.

Kobin was born in Kiev, Russia, and came to Baltmore when he was 12. He was educated at Baltimore City College and Johns Hopkins University. He was selected last year to edit a history of the formation of the United States because of his ability to translate 27 languages.

In World War II he worked with the Navy Department in compiling a Russian-English number code which enabled the Russians and Americans to understand each other when they met.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Kobin; two daughters, Edith and Sonia; and his parents.

Mrs. Ruth M. Ingerson

Mrs. Ruth Martin Ingerson, 50, wife of the caretaker at Calvin Coolidge High School, died Thursday morning in Prince Georges General Hospital of complications resulting from diabetes and pneumonia.

Mrs. Ingerson was born in Laurel, Md. and attended grade school in the District. She married William J. Ingerson in 1923.

Besides her husband, who lives at Route 1, Browning rd., East Riverdale, Md., she leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Artemus S. Martin of 338 11th st. se., and two brothers, Gordon W. of 1036 Ridgemore dr., Silver Spring, and Lloyd T. of the 11th st. address.

Services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at Chambers funeral home, 5801 Cleveland ave., Hyattsville. Burial will be in Washington National Cemetery.

Roy V. Wright

East Orange, N. J., July 9 (AP).—Roy V. Wright, 72, former Essex County Republican State Senator and for many years a prominent railway engineer and transportation editor, died today

Wright was managing editor of Railway Age and editor of Railway Mechanical Engineer at the time of his death.

Lt. T. M. Keely To Be Buried In Arlington

Army Lieut. Thomas M. Keely, jr., 24, of Washington, who died April 30, 1944, of wounds suffered when struck by an enemy hand grenade as he stormed a Japanese pillbox at Hollandia, New Guinea, will be reburied Monday at 2 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Keely

Lieutenant Keely, who attended Roosevelt High School here and was graduated from Fishburne Military School in Waynesboro, Va., received the Silver Star posthumously for rescusing a wounded soldier under enemy fire and for the action in which he was killed. Training Stressed As Teacher Pay Base

Cleveland, July 9 (AP).—Teachers' pay raises should be based only on training and experience because merit-rating systems are unreliable and harmful to professional morale, a majority of National Education Association convention delegates agreed today.

By a vote of 598 to 333, the delegates adopted a resolution by Morris Hamburg of Hempstead, N. Y., opposing merit-rating systems as subjective and invalid methods of evaluating a teacher's worth for pay purposes.

Supporters of the resolution claimed it protected teachers from unfair discrimination based on personal opinions. The sizable opposition felt impartial yardsticks for teaching competence have and can be perfected to go beyond the "professional preparation and successful experience" which the resolution said were the only just bases for salary differentials.

As the five-day meeting of 3500 delegates from every State and Territory drew toward its close tonight, a budget of $2,208,450 was approved for NEA in the 1948-49 year, compared with $1,393,747 in the previous year. Earlier convention action raising dues from $3 to $5 a year assured a hike of about $900,000 in revenue.

An emergency fund of $106,000 was set up in the new budget and earmarked for "Federal legislation, conferences and field services," the fund will provide a "war chest" for the NEA's pledged campaign to obtain passage of a bill for Federal financial aid to public schools.

Miss Mabel Studebaker of Erie, Pa., a high school biology teacher, was elected to the presidency of NEA tonight. Andrew D. Holt of Nashville, executive secretary of the Tennessee Education Association, was elected first vice president.

Eleven vice presidents, chosen from 12 nominees, include Earle T. Hawkins, Towson, Md., and Mary DeLong, Roanoke, Va.

Federal Aid Program Proposed for Schools

Glenwood Springs, Colo., July 9 (AP).—A Federal Government program to boost teacher salaries, increase school services and give financial aid to needy pupils was proposed today to the American Federation of Teachers (AFL).

Selma Borchardt, vice president and legislative representative said the AFL should consult with leaders of Congress and the AFL on a bill to be introduced early in the next session.

She suggested these provisions:

1. Federal aid salaries for public school teachers, to be administered by State authorities.
2. Federal aid for school services for children from 5 to 17 years of age.
3. Federal aid scholarships for needy children and payments directly to the child by a public agency.
4. Federal aid to eliminate illiteracy.

Irving R. Kuenzli, secretary-treasurer of the AFT, urged the teachers to wage a stronger fight "for protection of their economic and civil rights."

Postlude

Musicians Do Justice To Gershwin

By Paul Hume

Had George Gershwin lived, he would celebrate his 50th birthday next September.

He was fortunate, however, before his untimely death 11 years ago, in knowing that his place in American musical history was secure. No name commands higher regard among both musicians and laymen than that of Gershwin. Since his death, it has become almost a national custom to remember his music in annual memorial concerts.

Washington's tribute for 1948 was heard last night at the Watergate. Howard Mitchell directed a program which included the Rhapsody in Blue, American in Paris, the Cuban Overture, and excerpts from Porgy and Bess, Strike Up the Band, and Of Thee I Sing. He was abetted by Agnes Davis, soprano, Harold Ronk, baritone, and Sidney Foster, pianist.

How is one to be objective about Gershwin's music? It has a hold over the hearts and moods of thousands of Americans. The attendance last night was variously estimated at between 12 and 15 thousand. Everyone seemed perfectly happy about the proceedings.

Mitchell has a fine feeling for the rhythms that stamp a piece of Gershwin. In addition, he can make an orchestra play with the right tone color and sparky phrasing to give it a groovy sound.

Agnes Davis sang lines assigned to both Bess and Serena from the opera score, "Porgy and Bess," and her voice was melting every moment. "Summertime," "My Man's Gone Now" and her lines in the duet, "Bess, You Is My Woman," were sung the way they should be. Ronk showed real feeling for the dramatic side of Porgy's songs, and he, also, had a way with Lightfoot's happy scene about all the things that "ain't necessarily so."

Sidney Foster played the Rhapsody here last year. His playing last night drew the crowd's heaviest applause, as is customary, and he played one of Gershwin's piano preludes for an encore.

The orchestra, too, had to reward the clapping listeners twice, and added "Embraceable You" and "The Man I Love." It was a wonderful night for Gershwin-lovers, and there were thousands of them present.

Sunday: Viennese program—Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, and music by Mozart, Kreisler, Strauss, with Agi Jambor, pianist.

Ickes' Stamps Will Be Sold At Auction

That famed stamp collection of the Nation's "No. 2 stamp collector"—Harold L. Ickes—will be placed on the auction block in New York this fall, the former Interior Secretary announced yesterday.

Ickes gained the "No. 2" designation while serving under President Roosevelt, who had an extensive stamp collection. Ickes' collection, including many United States mint sheets autographed by President Roosevelt, is one of the largest in the country, including all regular United States issues since 1847, except for possibly a dozen stamps, and an extensive British Empire variety.

The collection, consisting of 29 bound volumes and 20 volumes of envelopes and full sheets, has been appraised and will be sold by Edson J. Fifield of New York City.

Gutt to Leave For Europe

Camille Gutt, managing director of the World Monetary Fund, will leave New York by plane Wednesday for Europe. He will be away four or five weeks.

Gutt told a news conference yesterday he will visit Belgium, which is his own country; Holland, France, England and Italy. He said he is going not to handle any special problems but for "a sort of routine business which is nevertheless important."

He said he will talk with government officials and bankers in Europe on financial matters of mutual interest.

He plans to deliver two lectures at the University of Michigan next week before departing for Europe.

Gutt also told reporters that:

In June, the Fund made its second loan in Belgium francs, consisting of 100 million francs advanced to Norway;

It also loaned $8,060,000 to India to help difficulties there result from "very bad crops."

These transactions brought total loans by the Fund to date to the equivalent of $631,291,704.

A three-man mission of the Fund will leave today for Colombia to see what can be done regarding recent action by Colombia which, in effect, changed its money exchange rates without approval by or advance notice to the Fund.

10 on Overdue Boat, Object of Plane Search

Woods Hole, Mass., July 9 (U.P.).—A 27-foot vessel with 10 persons aboard was reported "long overdue" tonight and the Coast Guard station here dispatched two boats and a PBY plane from the Quonset, R. I., air base to search the haze-shrouded area.

The missing boat was believed to be a fishing trawler owned by Adolph Richards of Hyannis, Mass.

School Board To Ask Citizen Aid on Policy

Greater participation by citizens in policy matters concerning Montgomery County schools will be sought to end controversies over study programs.

President H. Stanley Stine, of the board of education, revealed yesterday he will suggest that the board consider formation of a representative citizens advisory group at the next regular board meeting on July 13.

Stine's statement followed disclosure that such a move had been suggested by a group which is apparently organizing in opposition to a Bethesda parent group which contends the county curriculum ignores the fundamentals of education.

Present Policies Favored

The group supporting present school policies has written the board of education promising full support.

"We indorse the objectives of the present school system which has been nationally recognized for many years as outstanding," the letter states.

The letter adds that "better understanding by the citizens is essential to the maintenance of a desirable school program.

"Such understanding would assure a free interchange of ideas. For this purpose we suggest the formation of an advisory group of representative citizens to advise with the board of education on matters of policy."

Group Officials Sign

Signers included Herbert N. Eaton, president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, and Nathan R. Gilbert, president of the County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, as well as other civic, P-TA, Farm Bureau and League of Women Voter officials.

Meanwhile, Stine revealed he plans to attend on Monday night a meeting of the disgruntled parent group. The group has urged public attendance at the meeting at which officers will be elected and plans made for collecting 5000 signatures on a protest petition to the school board. The meeting will be held at 9 p. m. in Boulevard Bowling Alleys, Wisconsin ave. and Leland st., Bethesda.

Led by John H. Hiser, Bethesda theater owner, the group contends insufficient attention is paid to the "three R's" in county schools. Because of this, they charge, many children are retarded and more and more parents are turning to private schools.

Women's Bond League Wins Awards

By Genevieve Reynolds

Sold—two million, five hundred thousand dollars in Savings Bonds for the United States Treasury. That's the record chalked up by the Washington Women's Bond-a-Month League of the D. C. Savings Bonds Division, reported at its final session held yesterday in the Washington Gas Light Co. auditorium.

Fifteen achievement awards were presented to leaders of the league in a thank-you ceremony. Mrs. Lindsay P. Rawley, who headed the league's bond drive, read the citations and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, member of the executive committee, in turn, passed out the individual prizes. Mrs. Thelma N. Dawson of Team 9, led the parade of first prize winners for the most cash sales, which totaled $803,500. Mrs. Florence T. Kelly of Team 19 was premiere among the bond-a-month subscribers, and Mrs. Irene W. Streeter of Team 9 took another first as captain of team selling most bonds. Her score was to the tune of $900,000 in sales.

Other prize winners in cash sales included Mrs. Edna H. O'Neill, second; and Mrs. Winifred Burwell, third.

Second and third prize winners in the Bond-a-Month subscribers group were Mrs. Vera W. Rhine, and Mrs. Edith Peacock.

Mrs. Albert E. Carter who set up Capitol Hill Bond Booths was another prize taker as the captain whose team sponsored most unusual activity.

Members who contributed most to success of the Bondmobile receiving awards were Mrs. Jess Haupman of Team 2; Miss Nellie Hart of Team 13, and Mrs. Ira T. Byram of Team 19.

Those cited for outstanding personal solicitation included Mrs. Willia C. Pacheo of Team 20. Mrs. Norman T. Anderson of Team 11, and Mrs. George M. Quick of Team 24.

League members walking off with prizes for conducting intensified mail solicitation were Mrs. Pearl Heagerty, who mailed 22,000 letters to members of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell of Team 8, and Mrs. Charlotte Larson of Team 21.

Among those who contributed outstanding effort to make the league's drive successful were Mrs. Thomas Q. Ashburn of Team 17; Mrs. Albert W. Atwood of Team 11; Mrs. Luna Diamond of Team 6; Mrs. Meta Fay of Team 18; Mrs. Thomas J. Groom of Team 19; Mrs. Minnie Mayfield Goodman of Team 10; Mrs. Frank Grosvenor of Team 19; Miss Flo Lachapelle fo Team 21; Mrs. James MacPherson of Team 21; Miss Mary Elizabeth Mersheimer of Team 8; Miss Margaret Pepper of Team 5, Mrs. Emmaline Samuel of Team 23 and Mrs. Rosella B. Shaw of Team 7.

Orchids were given to two team captains for 100 per cent participation of their groups. These went to Mrs. Jess Haupman of Team 2 and to Mrs. Roselia B. Shaw of Team 7.

For long, faithful service since early war days to the present went an orchid to Mrs. Frederick Norton Newburgh of Team 23, who is currently bond chairman for the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

Two others receiving flowers for volunteer participation and support of league activities were Mrs. Hazel Markel of WTOP and Miss Lynn Allison, well-known singer.

The medals awarded to the two members of the graduating class of Langley Junior High School, were given for outstanding qualities of honor, service, courage, leadership and scholarship.

Capt. Karig Speaks To Alexandria Pen Women

Newspaper training is a handicap in other writing fields Capt. Walter Karig, USN, told members of the Alexandria branch of the National League of American Pen Women at a dinner last night held at the Anchorage Hotel.

"You have to unlearn everything you have learned in newspaper work in order to succeed in magazine and book writing," said Captain Karig speaking from experience.

A writer must have more than ambition in order to succeed, Captain Karig told club members. Besides talent, an author needs a cause to fight for in order that he, being convinced, may convince his readers, he said.

BPW Clubs Elect Dr. Scott As President

Fort Worth, Tex., July 9 (AP).—Dr. K. Frances Scott, associate professor of hygiene at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., was elected president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women in convention here today.

She succeeds Miss Sally Butler of Indianapolis, Ind.

Election of officers wound up the 1948 biennial convention with the exception of selection of a 1950 convention site, which was to be considered at a later meeting of the executive committee. The 1949 board meeting site also was to be selected.

Other officers elected today are: District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, Dallas, first vice president; Miss Ethel Murray Johnstone, San Francisco, second vice president; Miss Helen G. Irwin, Des Moines, Iowa, third vice president; Miss Lula K. Baum, Leavenworth, Kans., recording secretary, and Miss Maude Doyle, Albuquerque, N. Mex., treasurer. Miss Doyle was the only officer reelected.

Dr. Scott defeated Mrs. Nina Horton Avery of Richmond, Va., 833 to 272.

Mary M. Bethune Will Be Honored At Benefit Game

Honoring Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder-president of the National Council of Negro Women, whose birthday is today, the Homestead Grays of Washington and the Clowns of Indiana, will play a benefit baseball game Wednesday, July 14, 8 p. m., at Griffith Stadium.

For the past several years, the Homestead Grays have observed the birthday of Mrs. Bethune with a baseball game in her honor, the proceeds of which go to the National Council of Negro Women for use in the promotion of its national and international program.

Activities in connection with the game are in charge of Jean Clore as chairman, and Viola E. Meekins as cochairman.

NO straight, stringy locks for the girls at St. Vincent's Home and School. Each night before retiring they wrap their hair in curlers, bobbie pins, paper or rags. Here Mrs. Margaret Reese, who spent her youth in the Red Feather Home and is one of its most ardent supporters, lends a hand with the beauty ritual. In the bevy (left to right) are Barbara Grimmel, 14 years of age, 13-year-old Patricia Fink who has her curlers put in by Mrs. Reese, and Mary Ann Woods, 12, who holds a bobbie pin with one hand and a comic book with the other while Sister Agnes expertly winds the hair

Little Girls—Yesterday's and Today's

Mothering at St. Vincent's

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

CURL papers at night! Girls are the same everywhere. They all want curly hair. And before they get big enough and rich enough for permanents, it is curl papers at night.

The girls at St. Vincent's Home and School have a nightly beauty ritual, which Mrs. Margaret Reese, an alumna, remembers well. She recalls many other things about this Red Feather Home which opened its doors when her own home was broken by illness and death.

She especially remembers that bleak February day when she climbed the long steps of the home, tightly clutching the hand of the woman who brought her. She wasn't quite seven, and she had already lived through more than her share of sorrow and insecurity. When the door opened to reveal a little girl in a starched and ruffled white pinafore, Margaret thought, "I won't mind anything if I can just wear one of those."

She had her wish, and many other wishes came true too. She felt secure though her mother could visit her seldom. There was always a sister to tuck a child in bed and listen to her joys and woes. The children who had no visitors or gifts, didn't feel too badly because the sisters saw to it that "haves" shared with "have nots."

Margaret remembers the food was good. The sisters never raised their voices to the girls. The atmosphere was peaceful. Girls performed regular household duties, studied, and had good times in the wide acres surrounding the home. She was always teasing the sisters to let her learn something new. When she became too obstreperous about washing clothes, they placed her before a big wash tub and her ambition oozed out with the suds.

And when she insisted on becoming a cook despite their wish to make her a skilled seamstress, they tested her ambition by having her wash a raft of pots and pans. She withstood the test well. Cooking was in her blood. Later restaurant work became her speciality.

Graduated at 16

Margaret was graduated from both St. Vincent's and St. Rose's which are now combined into St. Vincent's Home for girls from 6 to 18.

Sixteen when she finished school, she married the same year, had three children by the time she was 20 and was a widow. She faced the world alone with three tots to support and the training she had received at St. Vincent's stood her in good stead. She knew how to work. She could get along with people. She had courage.

She applied as a counter girl in a downtown restaurant. To save car fare, she walked from 12th st. ne. to 17th st. nw. She looked so young the owner thought she was telling a tall story when she said she was the mother of three, dependent on her. Though she had no experience, she got the job.

The sisters took care of her children that first summer. Afterwards, there was always a neighborhood family to help, a Red Feather membership in the Y for the boy, the girls playing or working about the restaurant with her. She became assistant manager, vice president and stock owner in Cleves Restaurant. She served on the board of directors of the Washington Restaurant Association. Yet somehow in her busy life, she managed to attend George Washington University for two years, serve as a Girl Scout leader, president of a Parent-Teacher Association, member of the Speakers' Forum of Washington and the Speakers Bureau of the Community Chest and numerous other activities. Withal she raised a fine crop of new citizens.

They grew up with their mother's fine philosophy. They too could work and adjust to other people. The girls married young. Margaret was a grandmother at 34. Her son fought thee years in World War II as an engineer gunner. He had 48 missions over Europe in a B-24 with the Fifteenth Army Air Force.

Life Begins Anew

And Margaret? She started life all over again when she married Charles Reese in 1938 and had another son, now 9 years old. Her home at 3626 Veasey st. is the center for children, grandchildren and friends, of which there are many, for Margaret and her family are Washingtonians from way back.

Margaret retains her interest in St. Vincent's Home and is proud of its progress. Girls today have more freedom. There are more sisters per child. Intensive study of each and better meeting of needs is possible. The 100 girls at the home are divided into five groups with about 20 in each. Each group has its own living and dining rooms, its tables for four. A home rather than a dormitory atmosphere prevades. The ideal is to keep children only until family breaks can be mended or carefully selected foster homes found. Planning is done by professional social workers of Catholic Charities, a Red Feather agency.

Many of the girls who were at St. Vincent's Home with Margaret have settled in Washington where they have made their contribution as wives, mothers and workers in the world. Some have married lawyers, Washington business men, officers in military and naval service. Others are employed as nurses and superintendents of nurses, as dressmakers and designers.

Margaret expresses her faith in St. Vincent's by saying if her little son were left alone in the world, she would want him to go to the Red Feather counterpart for boys, St. Joseph's Home and School.

Hard-Working Office Girls Need Exercise to Relax

By Ida Jean Kain

It doesn't seem right, but what the hard-working 9-to-5 girls need is exercise. But they should be the relaxing kind, for relaxed muscles reflexly relax the nerves. Specifically, these exercises are a combination of rhythmic movements, stretching, bending . . . and good fun.

First, stretch . . . then fold up. Stretch to full extension, standing on tiptoes with arm high overhead. S-t-r-e-t-c-h, every inch, then let your knees sag and your whole body go limp. It's a queer sensation the first time you try it, but you'll like it. Stretch up and go limp, several times.

Most office workers build up tension through the shoulders. Here's an easy exercise to banish the tension: Stand erect, abdomen pulled up, hips under, chest up and shoulders relaxed. Swing one arm straight out in front of the body and the other straight out behind, swinging both arms simultaneously and rhythmically. Reverse the position of the arms, swinging freely and easily to give the entire body a lift. Do not raise the shoulders. Stop before you feel tired.

Now shrug the shoulders up and down. Move them forward and back . . . . move the entire shoulder girdle, not the arms. Then bring your shoulders up about the ears and slowly circle down, back and around. Three times will be enough.

Now an easy exercise lying down . . . lying on back on floor, knees flexed and feet on floor arms flexed limply at the elbow. The exercise, if it can be called that, is to raise one arm and shoulder off the floor, then let it drop effortlessly to the floor. Try the same with the other arm. This can be continued for 10 counts, always slowly and lazily. Throughout the exersise keep the lower abdominal muscles pulled up and in and the small of the back pressed against the floor. This position rests the back and helps restore tone to the abdominal muscles.

Now for a thorough-going stretch through the midriff. Sit up, legs stretched wide apart, arms upstretched above head. Bend the upper part of the body sidewards to the right, sway over the leg with the entire trunk and touch fingers of right hand to the right leg. Stretch to the opposite side, and continue for four counts.

Now standing, hop three times on the left foot, shaking your entire body loosely, then hop three times on the other foot shaking yourself lose-jointed. Let go with all the muscles.

You can take these exercises at home, or join a rhythmic exercise class, or take dancing lessons.

About Removing Mildew Stains

Will you tell us how to remove mildew from a cotton dress? It is white but trimmed in green plaid. I have tried lemon and salt—also bleach. D. W. H.

It is not always possible to remove mildew since the fungus penetrates the fibers. As a matter of fact, since bleach failed to remove it, this stain may be there to stay. However, you might try sodium perborate, another type of bleach, on it. Dampen the spot, sprinkle powdered sodium perborate on, and let stand for 30 minutes, rubbing between the fingers occasionally. If this lightens it, repeat the process.

Could you possibly tell me if any store in District of Columbia handles Morgan Fath creations? If not, could you sugrest some way I could locate a store where I could order it? F. G. N.

A check of several department and specialty stores fails to find one which sells this particular make of dress. Perhaps the address of the firm which makes this dress can be obtained by writing the advertising department of the magazine where you saw them advertised.

We have an old wooden bread trough which I wish to use as a salad bowl. Will you tell me how to finish the surface—with what wax or shellac or varnish—to make it waterproof and tasteless? G. McI.

You can use a high grade spar varnish to finish your salad bowl. Such a product will dry with a very hard surface and will be waterproof and tasteless when thoroughly dried.

What is the best way of cleaning jewelry, i. e., gold, diamonds, gold with inset diamonds, etc. I suppose that silver polish is the best thing for silver jewelry. R. C. J.

Because of the danger of loosening the stones from their settings it is not considered wise for an amateur to attempt to clean jewelry with diamonds in it. Then, too, it's very good insurance to occasionally leave your jewelry with a repairman for cleaning and checking the settings. The charge is nominal and you have the satisfaction of seeing your jewelry look brand-new again!

Pieces with no sets in them can be cleaned by dropping them into ammonia and, after they have brightened, buffing vigorously. As you say, silver polish is best for silver. Or it can be cleaned by boiling in a solution of one teaspoon salt and one teaspoon soda to one quart of water in an aluminum pan. Allow to boil only until silver is bright. Do not use this method on chased jewelry.

Md. Pentecostal Parley Opened By Bishop Synan

Fight evil and build the Kingdom of God, Bishop J. A. Synan of Hopewell, Va., said last night at the opening services of the Maryland Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church.

"Wield the sword with one hand and the trowel with the other," the bishop, head of the denomination's First Jurisdictional Area, urged the approximately hundred persons at the meeting in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1015 D st. ne.

The Maryland Conference, which includes the Washington church, will begin its business sessions at 9 a. m. today. The Women's Auxiliary will meet from 12 to 3 p. m.

The Rev. Kenneth Harrington of Cumberland, Md., will lead the 7:30 p. m. meeting at which the Rev. Virgil Gaith of Oklahoma City, International Youth president of the church, will speak.

The meetings will conclude Monday.

Midnight Deadline For Police Jobs In Prince Georges

Applications for appointment to the Prince Georges County police force will not be accepted after midnight tonight, Police Superintendent Ralph W. Brown announced yesterday.

Applications can be submitted throughout the day to Mrs. Betty Tayman, clerk to the county commissioners, at her residence, 2710 Cheverly ave., Cheverly. A competitive examination will be held July 15 at 7 p. m. in the County Service Building at Hyattsville for the more than 50 men who already have applied.

There are now two vacancies on the county force, Chief Brown said, but the county commissioners are expected to authorize appointment of additional men in the near future.

Application for police appointments also are being accepted in the town of Bladensburg, in anticipation of appointing three full-time officers in line with a recommendation of the town's police committee.

U. S. Contributed Over 103 Millions For World Groups

The United States contributed $108,504,788 to the United Nations and 45 other world groups to which it belongs during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures announced yesterday.

In a report drafted by a subcommittee, the Senate watchdogs found that the United States is paying the "lion's share" of the expenses of the international organizations to which it belongs.

The subcommittee said this was necessary since contributions were based on ability to pay, but it called for all international organizations to keep their budgets at a minimum.

Emergency Group Backs Move to Get State School Aid

The Northern Virginia School Emergency Committee yesterday indorsed action of the Fairfax Board of Supervisors in calling on Gov. William Tuck to provide funds for school construction in the State.

The Fairfax School Board recently estimated that about $7,500,000 would be needed in the county alone to meet school building needs; and pointed out that no funds were available.

The School Emergency Committee announced it was now securing signatures on a petition to Governor Tuck urging action along lines suggested by the Fairfax board.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Commissioner of Customs, Treasury Department, has issued an order on June 30, 1948, authorizing the name of the gas yacht Debonair Duchess, official number 224976, owned by J. Deane Rucker, Jr., of which Washington, D. C., is the home port, to be changed to Marcours. ROBERT B. APPLEBEE, Deputy Collector. 8-10,12.

NOTICE OF SALE—THE NATIONAL Capital Housing Authority, herein referred to as the "Authority," will offer for sale and removal from the site four portable houses located at the following addresses in Washington, D. C.: 49 E Street S.E., 1 K Street S.E. 1002 Half Street S.E., 1711 14th Street N.E. The above houses are of the portable (removable in panels) type consisting of living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath (including toilet and shower). They are of temporary construction, do not meet with the District of Columbia building requirements and are not suitable for long term residential use. They are, however, adaptable for vacation-type summer housing, tourist cabins, migratory seasonal farm labor, and non-residential use. Prospective purchasers contemplating any use of the houses other than nonresidential are advised to first clear with the proper authorities within the area in question concerning such case. Applications for the purchase of these houses in sealed envelopes marked "Application for Purchase of Portable House" will be received until 3 p. m. on the 23rd day of July, 1948, in the Legal Office of the National Capital Housing Authority, 1737 L Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., when they will be publicly opened. The houses will be sold for cash only. Fifty dollars (money order or certified check) must be enclosed as a deposit with the offer to purchase. This deposit shall not apply as a part of the purchase price, but shall be held by the Authority to insure compliance by the purchaser of the terms of the sale and removal contract, and not to exceed twenty-five dollars ($25.00) thereof shall accrue to the authority to reimburse it for capping the sewer and water systems. The balance of the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser upon satisfactory completion of the sales contract. Deposits will be returned to unsuccessful bidders. The authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in connection therewith. The sale of the houses is subject to the following terms, conditions and priorities: 1. Only one house will be sold to any one bidder. 2. The successful bidders upon notification shall enter into a sale and removal contract with the Authority embodying the terms and conditions of this proposal. 3. The successful bidder shall be required to remove the house at his own expense within fourteen (14) days from the date of notification to so do by the Authority. The site shall be left clear of all building material and debris. Any excavations, holes or ruts, made or resulting from the removal, shall be filled in and levelled off. In the event that the house is not removed and the site restored within the prescribed time, the sales and removal contract shall be considered breached, and the Authority reserves the right to consider the purchase price forfeited and remove and dispose of the house without recourse by the purchaser. The deposit balance shall be treated as stated above. 4. Successful bidders shall be determined in the following order of priority: a. Government agencies. b. State and local governments. c. Nonprofit institutions. d. Individual consumers: (1) Veterans of World War II and Servicemen. (2) All others. Documentary evidence that a prospective bidder is an eligible purchaser within the above classifications shall be furnished the Authority in the event of the bids within the priority classification, the Authority will draw lots to determine the award. The applicable definition of Veterans of World War II and any further information can be obtained in the Legal Office of the Authority, 1737 L Street, N.W. WM. R. SIMPSON, Jr., General Counsel. Official Notices 5

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Commissioner of Customs, Treasury Department, has issued an order on June 30, 1948, authorizing the name of the gas yacht Debonair Duchess, official number 224976, owned by J. Deane Rucker, Jr., of which Washington, D. C., is the home port, to be changed to Marcours. ROBERT B. APPLEBEE, Deputy Collector. 8-10,12.

NOTICE OF SALE—THE NATIONAL Capital Housing Authority, herein referred to as the "Authority," will offer for sale and removal from the site four portable houses located at the following addresses in Washington, D. C.: 49 E Street S.E., 1 K Street S.E. 1002 Half Street S.E., 1711 14th Street N.E. The above houses are of the portable (removable in panels) type consisting of living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath (including toilet and shower). They are of temporary construction, do not meet with the District of Columbia building requirements and are not suitable for long term residential use. They are, however, adaptable for vacation-type summer housing, tourist cabins, migratory seasonal farm labor, and non-residential use. Prospective purchasers contemplating any use of the houses other than nonresidential are advised to first clear with the proper authorities within the area in question concerning such case. Applications for the purchase of these houses in sealed envelopes marked "Application for Purchase of Portable House" will be received until 3 p. m. on the 23rd day of July, 1948, in the Legal Office of the National Capital Housing Authority, 1737 L Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., when they will be publicly opened. The houses will be sold for cash only. Fifty dollars (money order or certified check) must be enclosed as a deposit with the offer to purchase. This deposit shall not apply as a part of the purchase price, but shall be held by the Authority to insure compliance by the purchaser of the terms of the sale and removal contract, and not to exceed twenty-five dollars ($25.00) thereof shall accrue to the authority to reimburse it for capping the sewer and water systems. The balance of the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser upon satisfactory completion of the sales contract. Deposits will be returned to unsuccessful bidders. The authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in connection therewith. The sale of the houses is subject to the following terms, conditions and priorities: 1. Only one house will be sold to any one bidder. 2. The successful bidders upon notification shall enter into a sale and removal contract with the Authority embodying the terms and conditions of this proposal. 3. The successful bidder shall be required to remove the house at his own expense within fourteen (14) days from the date of notification to so do by the Authority. The site shall be left clear of all building material and debris. Any excavations, holes or ruts, made or resulting from the removal, shall be filled in and levelled off. In the event that the house is not removed and the site restored within the prescribed time, the sales and removal contract shall be considered breached, and the Authority reserves the right to consider the purchase price forfeited and remove and dispose of the house without recourse by the purchaser. The deposit balance shall be treated as stated above. 4. Successful bidders shall be determined in the following order of priority: a. Government agencies. b. State and local governments. c. Nonprofit institutions. d. Individual consumers: (1) Veterans of World War II and Servicemen. (2) All others. Documentary evidence that a prospective bidder is an eligible purchaser within the above classifications shall be furnished the Authority in the event of the bids within the priority classification, the Authority will draw lots to determine the award. The applicable definition of Veterans of World War II and any further information can be obtained in the Legal Office of the Authority, 1737 L Street, N.W. WM. R. SIMPSON, Jr., General Counsel. MARY WORTH

TO THINK, LEONA, THAT THE GREED OF ONE EVIL, INSIGNIFICANT LITTLE MAN MIGHT HAVE BLIGHTED THE LIVES OF TWO FINE YOUNG PEOPLE FOREVER!
WHAT'S FAR MORE IMPORTANT, AUNT MARY, IT COULD HAVE KEPT JOHN OUT OF THE WHITE HOUSE!
I WOULDN'T ORDER AN INAUGURATION GOWN YET, MY DEAR! THE RECENT UPSURGE IN THE PARTY LEADER'S POPULARITY JUST ABOUT KILLS THE CHANCE OF A DARK HORSE BEING NOMINATED! I HAVE THE LATEST POLL RESULTS HERE, AND...
MY WORD, AUNT MARY! THIS LETTER CAME TO MY OFFICE A LONG TIME AGO!.. IN ALL THE EXCITEMENT, I COMPLETELY FORGOT TO GIVE IT TO YOU!

STEVE CANYON

LOVER, SIR, CONVOY BRING CARRIAGE—NOW YOU RIDE TO INSPECT SHIPYARD IN STYLE OF BIG BRASS!
THIS IS SWELL, CONVOY! BY THE TIME WE GET THERE YOU SHOULD BE IN THE CITY WITH MY LETTER TO THE U.S. CONSUL!
MEANWHILE...
TELEPHONE CAPTAIN AKOOLA—THE YANKEES APPROACH THE SHIPYARD BY THE COAST ROAD—AS ANTICIPATED!

JOE PALOOKA

WHY DON'T WE TRY GOIN' T'GETHER STEADY. I THINK YER WONDERFUL. AN' I GOT NO PERTICULAR GAL...UH HOW ABOUT YOU?
I THINK IT WOULD BE A VERY GOOD IDEE. WE CAN PROB'LY LEARN T'CARE A LOT.
HEY—HOW ABOUT A MOONLIGHT SWIM, TH' TROPICAL SURF CLUB'S OPEN...THEN DANCE AFTER.
LIKEWISE.
CHECK!
WHAT A HONEY, WE'RE GONNA GO STEADY. THANKS FER INTER-DUCIN' US.
GLAD T'BE OF SOIVISS. WAIT'LL YA SEE 'ER IN A BATHIN' SUIT! WHUP!

BARNABY

Barnaby, would it offend your grandmother? If I moved into this lovely old barn instead of into her rather drab farmhouse?
I don't think Grandma will mind. But—
These quaint structures can be made charming!... an imitation tile roof, a coat of pink stucco, a few strips of stainless steel—
Gosh.
BARNABY!
Dinner, no doubt! I don't mind EATING in the house, m'boy. I'll be right there!

MICKEY FINN

THERE IT IS, MICKEY? LOUIE'S!
YEAH! WE'LL PULL AROUND THE CORNER AND WALK BACK!
IF HE CAN HIT A BALL LIKE DANNY SAYS HE CAN, WE'LL HAVE TO CONVINCE HIM, MICKEY!
HE MAY TAKE A LOT OF CONVINCING, TOM! THE COP ON THE BEAT TOLD UNCLE PHIL THAT HE'S AN AWFUL TOUGH LITTLE NUT!
LOUIE'S
THAT MUST BE HIM, MICKEY—AT THE POOL TABLE! A CAP, RED HEADED, HUSKY!
THAT'S HIM, ALL RIGHT—AND THE OTHER KID MUST BE "WEEPY."
HELLO, RED!

PENNY

WHAT ARE YOU LISTENING TO, PENNY?
IT'S ONE OF THOSE SUPER SPOOKER DRAMAS, AUNT ELLEN.
YOU KNOW THE KIND WHERE THE ANNOUNCER COMES ON WITH A VOICE CLEAR AS A BELL FOR THE COMMERCIAL.....
AND THEN THE ACTORS COME ON AND MUMBLE SO THAT YOU CAN'T UNDERSTAND THEM....
AND THEN THE MUSIC COMES ON AND BLASTS THE TOP OF YOUR HEAD OFF! IT'S SIMPLY SUPER!
HAENIGSEN

DOTTY

HORACE, I THINK WE SHOULD HAVE A FIRE EXTINGUISHER IN THE HOUSE!
HUH? WE HAVEN'T NEEDED ONE YET!
DO YOU THINK SO LITTLE OF YOUR WIFE AND THE CHILDREN THAT YOU'D LEAVE THEM UNPROTECTED?!
OKAY, OKAY—I'LL PICK UP ONE ON MY WAY HOME FROM WORK MONDAY!
WHY WAIT? THE HARDWARE STORE WILL BE OPEN TILL 9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT!
BUFORD TUNE

!!! AND THEY ALWAYS SAY A MAN SHOULD GET MARRIED AND "SETTLE DOWN"!

MARK TRAIL

THE CRAZY IDIOT! LEAVING ME HERE TO DIE IN THIS WILDERNESS!..
..WITHOUT MEDICINE OR CIGARETTES!
I'LL DIE HERE!
NO YOU WON'T DIE, TOWNE....THAT IS, UNLESS YOU WANT TO

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Circle Traffic Slowed By Lane-Switchers

District Liner Katherine Peterson is vacationing at Dares Beach, Prince Frederick, Md. But even at that distance she remembers our traffic circles and writes:

"It's amazing how many of our drivers don't have sense enough to follow their traffic lanes around a circle.

"They feel that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, and act accordingly. The result is that in negotiating the circle they're usually in three different lanes."

You're so right, Katherine. The circles are bad enough, without these mechanized cowboys making them worse.

Strangely enough, one of the worst is the one around the Lincoln Memorial. If you don't want to go across the bridge, you draw 10 dirty looks in the space of 500 feet.

It's something like standing on the Times Square subway platform during a rush-hour and trying to resist the mob which is relentlessly sweeping you on to a train you don't want to board.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Sally Orvis of 734 S. 23d st., Arlington, Va., notes that our radio log has been carrying a typographical error for the past three Saturdays.

At 8:30, we've been listing "The Amazing Mrs. Malone." It should be "mister." There is no Mrs. Malone.

Says Sally: "It's a good program, so I sort of resent seeing it Mrs.-named."

Sorry, Sally—but any composing room might have made the same Miss Take. Besides, we've now corrected it.

PERSONAL NOTES

Douglas E. Chaffin, R. F. D. No. 3, Alexandria, Va.: I thought I had that story so well disguised that nobody would ever recognize "my friend Joe." Don't tell me you were the other character involved in it? Or do you trace your ancestry back to Sherlock Holmes?

TWIN BILL

A. Sheehan of 5214 4th st. nw. tells me that the Apollo Theater recently offered its patrons:

"Sinister Journey," "Heading for Heaven."

GARDEN NOTE

Our recent reference to Japanese beetles leaves Bernice M. Willey of Lanham, Md., unmoved. She says:

"The storm of the other day solved all my worries about beetles. It completely denuded our garden."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

People who aren't on the square often find themselves involved in triangles.

MISCELLANY

Dutch Bergman, recently appointed manager of the District National Guard Armory, always carries a pocket full of cigars, but doesn't smoke. He chews them—because he doesn't care for ready-made chewing tobaccos . . . Mary Martin of 3905 Ingomar st. nw. thinks that the Parkfairfax Good Humor man ought to use a bell instead of a horn, and then nobody would object . . . Pauline Friedland of 1605 Osage st., Alexandria, Va., is just back from Los Angeles and reports that out on the Coast the Good Humor men have a contraption which tinkles out a few bars of soft, sweet music which brings the children on the run and doesn't annoy the neighbors . . . Jim Wilfong, jr., of 1541 Montana ave. ne. wonders why some of our chain stores reduce cigarette prices to $1.29 per carton on alternate week-ends only (although wholesale prices remain static). Maybe they're afraid that their customers wouldn't be able to stand the shock of permanently reduced prices in this day and age. . . . Speaking of "hotelevision," as we were the other day, Earl B. Abrams of Television Digest tells me that hotel rooms equipped with video receivers were sold out many weeks in advance of the recent Louis-Walcott fight. The extra charge averaged $3 per room—which means that small groups of fight fans can now "attend" championship bouts in style for about a dollar apiece.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Friendly, affectionate mother cat and five kittens." (Randolph 6900 after 6 p. m., or all day Saturday and Sunday.)

"Well-mannered, well-trained mother cat and three kittens." (Temple 2881.)

"Black male spitz, thoroughly housebroken; loves children." (Woodley 3907 between 9 and 10:30 a. m.)

"Three kittens, two males, one female." (Adams 0928 after 6 p. m.).

"Two little kittens, 3 months old." (Jackson 2109-M after 5:15 p. m.).

"Three black and white male kittens." (Sligo 3115.)

GIVE-AWAY NEWS

Pet owners can now cast me aside like an old shoe, and use the radio to find homes for unwanted animals. Margaret K. Hines is using Give-Aways on her WBUZ-FM "Your Pet" program.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH

Yellowgram, the newsy little weekly put out by the Yellow Cab Co. reminds its readers this week that:

"Good drivers do not boast about getting out of tight places. They don't get in 'em."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

If Mr. Dewey ousts Mr. Truman, will Petrillo force the Republicans to hire a standby piano player for the White House?

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Salvador Dali was asked by a visitor this week about painting technique. "To be a great painter," said Dali, "an angel must be touching your wrist when you apply brush to canvas" . . . "But how do you summon this angel?" the visitor asked . . . "It's difficult to domesticate an angel," replied the painter. "That's a secret known only to a few great painters."

The plan to produce a musical version of "My Sister Eileen" probably will be dropped, because of the objection by Columbia Pictures, which owns the movie rights . . . David Dubinsky, head of the powerful International Ladies Garment Workers Union, leaves for Europe this week to confer with labor leaders abroad, enlisting support for the Marshall Plan.

Swifty Morgan, the soldier-of-fortune and tie salesman, was staring into the windows of Sulka's, on Fifth ave., wondering how he could acquire some of their tie-labels. He suddenly felt a tap on his shoulder and through his mind, as he wheeled, passed all the things for which he felt he could be wanted. The shoulder-tapper was J. Edgar Hoover, who greeted him: "Where were you on the night Bugsy Siegel was shot?" . . . Swifty asked Hoover to hold the package he was carrying, while he searched his own pockets for his alibi. He offered proof of his innocence and then walked away. "You forgot your package, Swifty," Hoover called after him. Swifty returned, took the package and announced to all the people walking on Fifth ave.: "For the first time, J. Edgar Hoover is being bribed." Then he dropped the package—of ties—into Hoover's pocket and rushed off

Fletcher Markle, the producer-director, will become head man of the Ford Theater program in the fall . . . Bruce Downes, former editor of Photo Arts, will be the photo editor of Collier's magazine . . . Harry Warren probably will write the music for the new Eddie Davis show, "Master of Ceremonies," which will star Milton Berle.

The two famed Mexican artists, Siquineros and Diego Riviera, have had many feuds and reconciliations. They once left for Europe, after a bitter fight which ended their friendship. Somehow, by accident they were passengers on the same ship returning to Mexico. They sat at separate tables, each refusing to recognize the existence of the other. On the last day of the voyage, Riviera suddenly screamed: "Help! Help! The Nazis want to poison me." Siquineros rushed to Riviera's table and said: "How, Diego? How?" . . . "I don't know how," Rivera replied, softly. "But it doesn't matter—now that you and I are friends again."

The lists of probable appointees to the Dewey cabinet, published in the last few days, are distressing of course to Democratic office-holders who cannot visualize another man in their job. One political veteran, however, is undisturbed. He accepts it as part of the political game, and tells this story of Will Hays, who was Postmaster-General in the pre-Roosevelt administration. After Roosevelt was inaugurated, Mr. and Mrs. Hays were breakfasting, and Mr. Hays heard his wife groaning at the news-reports of Roosevelt's Cabinet appointments. "Don't be upset, dear," Hays calmed her. "Now it's THEIR turn."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ike Due for Political Role Till '52

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note.—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Dwight D. Eisenhower.)

Philadelphia — When Dwight Eisenhower was a high school boy in Abilene, Kans., he used to play "Fly Lou," a game which consisted of putting pennies on the shady side of the street and waiting for a fly to light on one particular penny. When it did the owner took all the other pennies.

Eisenhower

In playing "Fly Lou," Eisenhower and his pals were always alert to see that no boy put syrup on a coin to attract a fly, for, as young Dwight said: "A fly is smart but even a fly can be tempted."

Democratic leaders at Philadelphia will have to put plenty of syrup on their coin to tempt Eisenhower to fly their way. But whether he lights now or not, Dwight Eisenhower's name is going to be in the political headlines from now until 1952, so here is a further attempt to appraise the most spotlighted man in America.

Brass Hat or Civilian?

Biggest question asked about Eisenhower is how would he act once in the White House—as a civilian or as a brass hat?

It is always risky to take a military man into high civilian office, as Eisenhower himself pointed out. However, those who watched him closely during the war credited Ike with leaning over backward to protect civilian rights. He championed the GI—and most of them are now strong for him, though dead against MacArthur. He gave a break to Negro troops and a chance to the heroic Japanese-Hawaiians to redeem the false accusation of having sabotaged at Pearl Harbor.

Yet Eisenhower let such close friends as Gen. John ("Courthouse") Lee get away with commandeering a whole hotel for himself, plus some of the worst examples of caste system of the war.

In Europe after the war, he arrested 70,000 Nazis, gave strict orders to let no Nazi hold any important job—an order flagrantly violated since by the Forrestal cabal. He also raised cain with his own generals for their treatment of displaced persons.

Eisenhower's chief trouble has been that he has surrounded himself with an iron curtain of brass hats. Once you get inside you find a great human being, but cracking the curtain is sometimes as difficult as penetrating the wall around Russia. And this has continued to be somewhat true even now that the general is at Columbia.

When it came to working with the Russians, Eisenhower got along as well as anybody—perhaps better. With Marshal Zhukoff, the Red army commander in Berlin, he got along so famously that Moscow got suspicious and transferred the marshal. Zhukoff was too much under the spell of Ike's charm.

"Dealing with the Russians," Ike once explained, "is like dealing with your wife. You can lie to her once, perhaps twice, but eventually she catches up with you. So you might as well tell the truth in the beginning."

Eisenhower's Mother

When Sam Goldwyn, who planned to produce a picture on Eisenhower, congratulated the general's aged mother on her son, she promptly replied:

"Which one?"

She was just as proud of all her seven sons as she was of the one whose name is a byword around the world. In fact, Ike's mother may be one important key to his character. She came of a Swiss-German family which fled Europe to escape its wars; so the last thing she wanted was to have her son become a professional soldier.

Perhaps this antipathy for war was inherited by Eisenhower, and suggests that he really meant what he told the graduating class at West Point last year.

"War is mankind's most tragic and stupid folly," he said. "To seekor advise its deliberate provocation is a black crime against all men. Though you follow the trade of warrior you do so in the spirit of Washington—not of Ghenghis Khan.

"As a professional soldier you do not inherit a greater share than your citizen brothers of courage, endurance and fortitude. Neither does your commission confer upon you distinctive right or privilege . . . The arts and sciences, as well as the profession of arms, are bulwarks of security. And the greatest of all is the spirit—the will for freedom and justice."

His Chief Achievement

There are also those who deride Eisenhower for failure to support General Patton, during his lightning advance through France. The Patton diary is supposed to claim that if the gasoline allotted to Field Marshall Montgomery and his slow-moving British army had gone to Patton the war would have been finished four months earlier.

That will be a point for future students of military strategy to decide. But the over-all fact is that in one of the greatest campaigns in history, Eisenhower commanded a miraculously smooth-running machine, operated it on schedule, kept a dozen or so jealous nationalities under him reasonably happy, broke through the famous Nazi wall which Churchill claimed could not be broken, and won a war sooner than anyone expected.

To do this—whatever his human weakness — required genius, foresight and great executive ability. It required the kind of ability that the Nation may need now, when during the next two to four years we face the most difficult period of peacetime stress and strain in recent history.

If the Nation needs to draft men into the Army for the psychological effect upon Russia, as Eisenhower has informed Congress, then so, too, it needs a leader at the helm whose prestige, experience and background will have a psychological effect even more important.

Jewish Center to Open Building Playground

One hundred Washington children from 4 to 12 years old, will begin using the Jewish Community Center's four-story building as a summer playground when the center's day camp opens next Monday at 9:30 a. m.

The camp which will be open for seven weeks is nonprofit and open to all Washington children. A gymnasium, swimming pool, arts and crafts workship, library, dance and drama workshop and an outdoor annex in Rock Creek Park make up the day camp's facilities.

Shopping Dilemma

When I go window shopping and . . . I have no cash to spare
. . . I see a dozen articles . . .
That I would like to wear . . .
I look at all the items that . . .
Comprise the luxury line . . .
And silently I tell myself . . .
I wish that they were mine . . .
But when I have some money and . . . I hold my head up high . . . I seldom gaze at store displays . . . Or feel the urge to buy . . . I weigh the matter carefully . . . To settle every doubt . . . And finally inform myself . . . That I can do without . . . It seems my mind and pocketbook . . . Are never in accord . . . And all I ever want are things . . . That I cannot afford.
